Promises Plum for Boatsmen

Another federal benefaction looms in the 28th District, courtesy of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick. The Ellenville Democrat, who only last Saturday promises swift action to obtain additional recreational facilities along the Hudson River, announced today that initial steps in that direction will begin this Friday.

Resnick, in what is surely a lightning move, has already arranged for a survey team from top governmental departments and agencies to examine the possibility of creating more and better recreational facilities up and down the natural recreation area which is the mighty stream. He has scheduled a boat-and-car tour for this team of experts to view at first hand the current problems which thwart recreation and to judge the possibilities for improvement.

From Washington, Albany and other major centers of government, officials will converge on Kingston and other area communities tomorrow morning to fulfill the promise made by Resnick last Saturday, after he had completed the last leg of his personal tour of the Hudson River to study needs of boat owners and others.

Joining the survey team Friday will be officials of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, U. S. Department of Interior, N. Y. State Conservation Department and the Mid-Hudson River Commission.

Starts at Coxsackie

Representatives from these agencies, including James O'Brien, director of the State Conservation Department, and Col. R. T. Batson, of the Army Corps of Engineers, will begin their study tour at Coxsackie at 10 a. m. Friday. After leaving Coxsackie, they will go by boat to Hudson and, from there to Catskill, for luncheon at the Hop-O-Nose Marina. At this point, the survey team will lose their sea legs, take to automobiles for a motorcade into Saugerties and on into Kingston for a special meeting at the Kingston Power Boat Association.

Resnick has invited all local officials in the district, as well as all boat owners, boat commanders and interested citizens to attend the meeting at the Kingston Power Boat Association. He said the meeting would deal with what sort of activities are being planned by the agencies involved, with emphasis on two major questions. One question which will be answered is which specific agency is responsible for removing the many barges and hulks of river craft which dot the river's edge, half-submerged and rotting. The other question will seek an answer to how many small islands north of Kingston can be turned into recreational parks.

A spokesman at the Congressman's Poughkeepsie office said today that most of these islands are now owned by the Federal Government and that arrangement could be made to turn them over to the state or municipalities for development as picnic or playground areas. All necessary action to accomplish such a move will be taken at the meeting.

Resnick spent the past two Saturdays touring the river; returned to shore firmly convinced that the river is in "dire need" of additional boat-docking facilities, especially along the eastern shore. He pointed out that there is presently no public launching site between Beacon and Albany on that shoreline. He said this problem will definitely get action and that he will do everything possible to immediately expedite a launching site at Hudson, one of the points to be visited by the survey team Friday.

Resnick also favors action to clear up the Rondout Creek near Kingston to convert it to a superior waterway. Noting that three-and-one-half million resi-

Demo Nominee Pledges Reform of Sales Tax

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Democratic party's gubernatorial nominee, Frank D. O'Connor, was pledged today to a "reform of the regressive sales tax" in New York State.

The promise to "reevaluate our present tax structure and seek to eliminate its inequities" was among several the New York City Council president made in accepting the party's nomination Wednesday night.

Spells Out Proposals

The 56 - year - old O'Connor spelled out to the more than 5,000 partisans in Memorial Auditorium here his proposals for ending what he termed "this state's drift and decline."

O'Connor declared that under the administration of Republican Gov. Rockefeller, manufacturing employment has declined by 5 per cent "while it rose 4 per cent in the rest of the country and 6 per cent in California."

Non - agricultural employment, O'Connor said, had risen by "only 3 per cent" since 1959. "But at the same time, it has risen 9.8 per cent in the nation and 17 per cent in California."

He charged that only half of New York State's high school students have a chance to attend college, "while in California, eight of every ten enjoy that opportunity."

O'Connor also cited what he called deficiencies in housing and treatment of narcotics addiction.

Invitation to Leadership

The victory-flushed candidate told the convention that the problems "represent an invitation, and an opportunity for new, progressive, democratic leadership in New York State."

Among the plans O'Connor advocated were:

— A direct primary for nominating candidates for statewide offices.

— A restructuring of the state's institutions, at next year's Constitutional Convention to prepare for "the arrival of a new federalism—through which Albany and Washington will cooperate" on many problems.

— Coordination and strengthening of the state's "scattered efforts for transportation and job development."

Other Proposals

— A single, coordinated system of higher education..."A state university system which is equal to those in California, Wisconsin and Michigan."

— Establishment, through volunteers, of a "teacher corps."

Lanigan Only Newcomer

GOP Poised to Select Rocky, Mates Tonight

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rank-and-file Republicans were poised today to rubber - stamp the nomination of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and the running mates he wants to help him fight for a third term.

Saving the nomination of the 58-year-old governor for tonight, as the highlight of a suspenseless two - day party convention, the 1,417 delegates addressed themselves to the formal selection of the other candidates.

Two Familiar Faces

The men Rockefeller has tapped for supporting roles in the battle against Democratic candidate Frank D. O'Connor are two familiar GOP faces and a newcomer.

Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson and Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz joined the Rockefeller ticket in 1958 when he launched his successful bid for the governorship from the same War Memorial Auditorium that is the scene of this year's conclave.

Assigned to the politically perilous task of trying to unseat three - term Democratic State Comptroller Arthur Levitt is Oneida County Executive Charles T. Lanigan.

Lanigan, 41, former mayor of Rome and the father of five, emerged as an 11th hour choice of the GOP high command. The decision was made to go with Lanigan rather than the man the governor initially favored for the job—State Tax Commissioner Joseph Murphy.

Tax Handle Hurts

Sources close to the GOP's inner circle said Murphy was rejected for the task on the ground that the voters might not be receptive to a ticket that included the state's top tax-collection official.

Against a background of other political developments at Buffalo and in New York City, Rockefeller strategists greeted happily Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.'s decision to accept the Liberal party nomination.

The Liberal party has never before fielded its own candidate for governor, choosing normally to side with the Democratic candidate.

The feeling in Rochester is that a Roosevelt candidacy could siphon away from O'Connor perhaps as many as 250,000 votes. The Liberals took their unusual step after party leaders concluded that O'Connor was too conservative philosophically to merit their support.

Non-Controversial Platform

The Republican delegates Wednesday cleared the decks for today's nominating activity by swiftly adopting a catch-all, basically non - controversial party platform and endorsing 15 candidates for delegate-at-large seats in the 1967 Constitutional Convention.

Meanwhile, the way was clear today for the nomination of Stanley Fuld of New York City as the chief judge of the Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal.

Fuld, now an associate judge on the high court, has bipartisan

Governor Accepts Kingston Lions' Invite Sept. 13

"We count Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and the state's First Lady as special friends of the Kingston Lions Club as they did us the honor of opening the annual Lions Exposition two years ago," said Lions Club President John L. Feltham referring to the Governor's planned visit to Kingston Sept. 13.

Will Even Score

The Governor has accepted an invitation to attend the Lions' weekly Tuesday luncheon at the Gov. Clinton Hotel. Speaking of that visit, Feltham said, "Since we made him pay admission at our exposition we'd like to take this opportunity to even the score by giving him a free meal."

Feltham said he has contacted Rotary President Frank R. B. Hornbeck and Kiwanis President Raymond Myers and told them to invite members of their respective organizations.

According to Feltham, Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan has been invited and will attend. Also included in the invitations were members of the press and radio. Feltham said he expects between 150 and 200 prsons at the 12:10 p. m. luncheon.

The appearance of Gov. Rockefeller, who today was awaiting first of two top Republican visits for a third term run, will be the nomination in Rochester tonight in the area.

Gov. Rockefeller's present running mate, Lt. Gov. Malcom Wilson, who also is expected to be nominated tonight, has scheduled a press conference appearance in Kingston Wednesday, Sept. 28.

Wilson will be at the Gov.

A tax rate increase on true value of all the property in the Consolidated School District will be up $2.91 from a rate of $14.07 in 1965-66 to $16.98 on true value for the 1966-67 school year.

City of Kingston property owners will pay an increase of $5.676 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up from $40.211 to $45.887.

All tax bills will be in the mail on Sept. 14. Taxes will be paid in two installments, the first is due on or before Oct. 15, and the second on or before Dec. 15, 1966.

Taxpayers are advised to observe the following schedule of collection; from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15—no interest; from Oct. 16 to Nov. 15—2 per cent interest on first installment; from Nov. 16 to Dec. 15—3 per cent interest on the first installment.

Penalty and interest on all unpaid installments will be added after Dec. 15, 1966. After that date a penalty of 5 per cent plus additional interest of one-half of one per cent per month, or part thereof, will be charged.

The warrant and authority of the collector of school taxes to receive tax payments ends Dec. 15, 1966. After that date, and for a period of approximately 20 days following, that is to Jan. 9, 1969, taxes may not be paid to anyone. Any taxes then unpaid are delinquent and may be paid after Jan. 9, 1967 as follows: Town properties to County Treasurer's Office, Box 615, Kingston; City properties to City Treasurer's Office, City Hall, 408 Broadway.

Payments may be made by certified check, money order or cash. Uncertified checks will be accepted subject to collection only, and payments will not be recorded nor receipts forwarded until collection has been effected.

Adams Is Named To Head Ticket Of Conservatives

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Paul L. Adams, a Republican who plans to remain one, heads the Conservative ticket today in the splinter party's drive to capture third place in the state's vote.

Adams, a 51-year-old college dean, scored an easy victory, despite a brief floor fight by two challengers, on the only roll-call ballot during the party's one-day convention here.

Kieran O'Doherty, a New York City lawyer, was selected by acclamation as the candidate for lieutenant governor.

Mason L. Hampton, a Garden City lawyer who has been prominent in fighting enforced school desegregation, was selected to run for attorney general. Benjamin R. Crosby of the Bronx was the party choice for comptroller.

The selection of the three New York City-area candidates was seen as underscoring the party's drive to appeal to segments of the urban population by campaigning against civilian-dominated police review boards and against school plans to effect racial balance.

The conservatively - dressed Adams, who quotes extensively from the Bible in his speeches, said he planned to campaign as much as possible without taking a leave of absence from his position as academic dean at Roberts Wesleyan College near Rochester.

"I will be away more than usual, of course," he said.

Adams scored 238 votes on the Big Name Urged To Counter Foes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Frank D. O'Connor, triumphant in his capture of the Democratic nomination for governor, faced the sobering prospect today of having to run against both a Rockefeller and a Roosevelt.

While the Democratic State Convention awarded him the nomination Wednesday night in a crushing victory over Howard Samuels, the consensus here was that O'Connor was entering the campaign as a distinct underdog.

To Line Up Slate

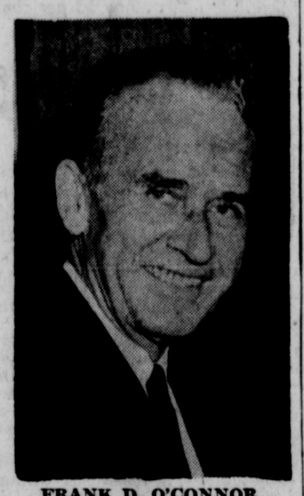

All efforts were bent today on lining up the kind of running mates that would help him counter the "big name" appeal of his opponents — Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller and Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who has agreed to run on the Liberal party line.

Some Democratic strategists urged O'Connor to add the Lehman name to his ticket — by offering the lieutenant governor's nomination to Orin S. Lehman.

Lehman is a grand nephew of the late Herbert Leman, former governor and U.S. senator whose name is thought to have special appeal to liberal-minded voters.

Others considered for places on the ticket were Buffalo's Mayor Frank A. Sedita, a strong vote-getter in the state's second largest city, and William J. vanden Heuvel, a Manhattan lawyer who once ran well in a congressional race against John Lindsay.

Vanden Heuvel is a political intimate of U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who reportedly was boosting him for a place on the ticket.

The word from the O'Connor camp was that he wanted to consult both Kennedy and Vice President Hubert Humphrey in completing his slate.

Designation of the supporting candidates was the principle business before today's final session of the two-day convention.

Humphrey was booked for a guest address to the convention in an appearance regarded as evidence of President Johnson's approval of the O'Connor candidacy.

Kennedy had been unenthusiastic about O'Connor but showered warm praise on the New York City Council president and freely predicted an election victory in introducing the nominee to the convention.

At the same time, Kennedy inferentially cast O'Connor in the underdog's role by likening his status to that of former President Harry S. Truman in the memorable election upset of 1948.

For his part, O'Connor pledged in his acceptance speech to give a "total commitment of time and effort" to the

Blockbuster Never Came for Samuels

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Howard Samuels went down fighting.

The 46-year-old candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination provided high drama in the convention here by refusing to yield to pressure to withdraw in favor of Frank D. O'Connor.

Held to Slim Thread

The millionaire - businessman from Canandaigua held onto a slim thread of hope for the nomination until 5 p.m. Wednesday. It was at that point, after six months and more than a half - million dollars in campaign expenses, that Samuels called it quits.

"I looked for a blockbuster but it never came," Samuels told a reporter sitting with him Wednesday night in his hotel suite nine blocks from the booming O'Connor streamroller in the memorial auditorium.

He wrote careful notes for the speech in which he would call for a unanimous nomination of O'Connor. He was neatly dressed in a blue shirt, red and black tie, and dark blue pin-striped business suit.

Shortly before 9 p.m. Samuels telephoned O'Connor.

"Frank," he said, "this is Howard. Remember four years ago in Syracuse? I'm glad that one of us made it this time. good luck."

Samuels explained that he and O'Connor both thought they had a chance at the nomination but lost out to U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau. Both blamed their defeat on political "bosses" — some of whom helped O'Connor win the nomination last night.

Has No Regrets

"I'll support O'Connor and I'll campaign for him," Samuels said. "But this will be the last convention in New York State. O'Connor and Gov. Rock-

Mayor Asks New Look at Uptown Flow of Traffic

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan today said he was requesting several aldermen by letter to reconsider proposals aimed at relieving the heavy uptown traffic flow particularly on Fair Street.

Tuesday night's Common Council action had failed to approve tests of the present traffic flow mainly affecting Pearl Street and Clinton Avenue, and the mayor feels that something must be done to provide outlets from the one-way traffic pattern in uptown's business district.

DR. WILLIAM J. HAGGERTY

At Paltz Post Since 1944

Dr. Haggerty to Retire As College Head Jan. 1

Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of State University College, New Paltz, will retire January 1 from the college presidency he has held since 1944.

The State University Board of Trustees today accepted the New Paltz administrator's decision to leave the post; however, he will not disassociate himself completely from the university.

State University President Samuel B. Gould said Dr. Haggerty will become a consultant for the university and will conduct a study of teacher education institutions throughout the nation. Like New Paltz, scores of these institutions since World War II have been converting into arts and sciences or all-purpose institutions.

Dr. Gould said, "We in State University are deeply apprciative of the years of truly fine service given by Dr. Haggerty. Under his leadership the College at New Paltz has grown steadily in size and stature, providing opportunities in higher education for thousands of New York State students. We are indeed fortunate he will still be available so the University can benefit from his experience."

President Gould said Dr. Haggerty's assignment will concern itself with the kinds of changes that have taken place in former teacher education institutions, the difficulties which have accompanied these changes, and the results of such changes, so far as they can be evaluated.

Dr. Haggerty's findings will be utilized by the University in a number of ways, Dr. Gould said.

The study will provide an evaluation of the transition of 10 former teachers' colleges into today's Colleges of Arts and Science and will be beneficial in planning future programs for the existing campuses as well as the three new Colleges of Arts and Science now in early stages of development.

Commenting on the research study, Dr. Haggerty said, "I welcome very much the opportunity which President Gould and the State University Trustees have offered me to carry on this study so closely related to the University's growth and development.

"The expansion of public higher education and the directions which that expansion takes in the next decade are important for the country in both its domestic concerns and its international relations.

"At the same time, I will regret leaving many friends among the students; faculty, alumni and staff of the college as well as the community of New Paltz and the Mid-Hudson region."

During his tenure as president at New Paltz, Dr. Haggerty began to develop a liberal arts program in terms of faculty, background curriculum, and educational philosophy as far back as 1948.

Other advances realized during his administration include the recruitment of a highly competent faculty and establishment of a general education program of required courses for freshmen and sophomores and covering the major fields of liberal arts and international and non-Western studies. He has also inspired the New Paltz college's involvement in numerous important regional efforts, both educa-

Resigns Planning Board Position, Scores Majestic

Ralph Brach, chairman of the Ulster County Planing Board has submitted his resignation, effective Sept. 7. He was elected Jan. 1, 1965 and again last January. He had succeeded Deyo Johnson of Ellenville, who reportedly stepped down because of business pressures.

Brach expressed regret at his resignation citing the many pleasurable moments he had working on the board and the fine persons he had met in the performance of his duty.

However, he stated that although he valued the friendships he had made on the planning board and the board of supervisors, the conditions had become intolerable for him and he said it was time he stepped down.

The following is the letter of resignation:

"This is to advise you of my resignation as chairman and as a member of the Ulster County Planning Board, effective immediately.

"A person must expect some differences of opinion to arise in any board, and honest differences of opinion should be respected by any reasonable person, but the conditions under which I have worked during the past year have become intolerable to me and I am no longer willing to sacrifice the time or take the abuse to which I have been subjected to accomplish the objective for which I accepted membership on the board.

Worked 3 Years

"The objective was simply to help make Ulster County a better place to live in, and to that end I have worked to the best of my ability during the past three years and have given unstintingly of my time and of my finances. I expected and wanted no other reward than the self satisfaction of a job well done.

"What I did not realize was that such a reward would not be sufficient for some members of the board or for one member of the Board of Supervisors. A small minority of the planning board has given me an extremely difficult time during the past nine months and has enlisted the support of the planning director and of Supervisor Majestic to make even membership on the board intolerable for me.

"The continual harassment of

Plan New Route in Rosendale

A proposed alternate route for Rosendale's Main Street, a tax relief hearing and two new election districts were discussed at the Rosendale Town Board meeting Wednesday night in the town clerk's office.

The New York State Department of Public Works proposes reconstruction of a 2.1 mile portion of Route 213. The planned improvement would start approximately 700 feet west of the Rondout Creek, proceeding easterly, crossing the creek on a new bridge, continuing easterly on existing James Street to Route 32, on new alignment north of the village of Rosendale.

Supervisor Gerard DeFelicis said he has requested a map of the proposed route and will post it in the town clerk's office when it is received. According to a legal notice appearing in today's Freeman, residents may request a public hearing on the project.

To Split Two Districts

The town has been advised that two election districts in the town have to be split. A special meeting of the town board will be held Monday 8 p. m. to discuss divisions of Districts 1 and 3. Creation of the two new districts would necessitate another voting machine.

A public hearing on tax relief for persons over 65 with income $3,000, or under will be held at the town clerk's office Sept. 19 at 8 p. m. The hearing is required before any action may be taken by the board.

An ordinance to restrict burning was requested by the Tillson Fire Company and the town attorney was authorized to draw up the ordinance.

Car Is Overhauled

It was reported that the constables' car has undergone a complete overhaul and is in A-1 condition. During the time the stables made regular patrols in their own cars.

State Funeral Is Planned Saturday For Slain Chief

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The body of assassinated Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd was to be flown today to Pretoria, South Africa's administrative capital, for a state funeral Saturday.

Verwoerd's widow requested that details of the flight be kept secret. The family requested that the body not lie in state, and it was expected that it would be placed in a private funeral parlor.

Calm Prevails

Flags flew at half staff across the country. All sports events were canceled. Police at Pretoria said calm prevailed in the country of 3.5 million whites and 10 million blacks.

The South African Press Association reported that the ruling Nationalist party would caucus Tuesday to appoint a new leader who automatically will become the next prime minister.

Acting Prime Minister Theophilus Donges, Verwoerd's finance minister, was considered a strong contender, having lost the post to Verwoerd by 12 votes after the death of Prime Minister Johannes Strijdom in 1958.

Other likely contenders are Justice Minister Balthazar J. Vorster and Transport Minister Ben Schoeman.

The Nationalist caucus pledged its "unshakable determination" Wednesday to follow Verwoerd's policies, ending any speculation that his death might result in a weakening of South Africa's stringent racial policies.

Called Deed of One

Without detailing the investigation of the assassination, Justice Minister Vorster said information "indicates it was the deed of one individual and his actions and movements are now being investigated in the finest detail."

Scores of persons were being questioned about the accused assassin, Dimitri Tsafendas, a tall, powerful, gray-haired man in his late 40s who had been working as a messenger in Parliament for a month.

Slugs Abound

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — The medical division of Oak Ridge Associated Universities has issued a call for 1,000 slugs — snail-type, slippery gastropods — and offered to pay five cents for each one they get.

Today they issued this call: Stop the slugs!

Youthful stalkers for science had swamped the division offices with more than 2,000 slugs by late Wednesday.

The slugs are to be used by the Orau Lipid Research Group. Lipids, proteins and carbohydrates make up the principal components of living cells.

In Moscow Contest

Hail 13 Young Musicians for Good Impression

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson hailed 13 young American musicians — winners of an international competition in Moscow — for doing more than diplomats to inspire understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union.

He bestowed the title "national treasures' on the winners Wednesday night before a White House audience that included some of the elite of America's world of music and the performing arts. With the Soviet minister counselor, Alexander I. Zinchuk, in a front-row East Room seat, Johnson declared:

Hopes for Record

"I hope history will record this example of how music has reached across the oceans, the walls and the ideologies that separate us, and found response in the hearts of the Russian people. I hope that it will be followed by other actions in other fields so that other threads of understanding can be strung across the space between us."

Afterwards, mingling at a buffet supper in the state dining room, Zinchuk said Johnson's remarks were "very true."

Was Emcee

Cliburn, 34, of Longview, Tex., was cast in a new role — master of ceremonies.

The star of the evening was statuesque soprano Jane Marsh, 24, of Mill Valley, Calif., and New York, who won first prize in the vocal division of the Moscow competition — the first American to receive that honor.

Amid all the emphasis on excellence, the White House stage lighting failed and the President had to make his spech in a darkened ballroom.

There were warm greetings, even kisses and hugs, as the famous visitors went through the presidential receiving line in the Blue Room after the performance.

Bearded author John Steinbeck was one who got hugs and pats from the President.

Mrs. Johnson summed it up as "a beautiful and brilliant evening."

Ray Hill Named Head Pharmacist At N. Dutchess

Ray Hill, Hyde Park pharmacsit, has taken over management of the Northern Dutchess Health Center Pharmacy, Rhinebeck.

A resident of Hyde Park for 34 years, Hill assumed his new position in July, 1966, replacing DeWitt Gurnell.

"Im leaving now because the duties have become too time-consuming," Gurnell explained. "I have a full-time job in the drug store and I just couldn't do justice to both. I'm still on emergency call and fill in for Mr. Hill on his day off.

"I've been connected with the hospital off and on since 1932 and I'm very proud to say that I was the hospital's first lab technician in those days. Then with the help of Mr. Winston, a member of the State Board of Pharmacy, I organized the pharmacy here in 1965. Before that time there was only a storeroom here and drug orders were filled in local drug stores," he said.

The pharmacy is strictly an intra-hospital service where the doctors' orders are filled and drug stocks for the nurses' stations, emergency ward and clinics are available.

"The biggest difference between a drug store and a hospital pharmacy is the type of drugs on hand," Hill said. "Most of the drugs here are injectables and you seldom carry any of those in stock in a drug store. It was confusing the first few days, but I have them pretty well catalogued in my mind now."

Next to the actual filling of the ordered medications, the paper work involved occupies much of Hill's time. Narcotics, barbituates and amphetimines are under close state control and Hill must keep complete and accurate records of the dispersal of these drugs.

Earliest Measures

Earliest measures were based on the proportions of human limbs. The cubit (elbow point to tip of middle finger) is said to have been in use as a timber measure as early as 7000 B.C.

"But, Mother, I'm UNEASY when my room is neat!"

Mrs. O'Connor Plans Active Campaign Role

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)— "I'll tour the state with him for meetings with larger groups, and then I'll strike out on my own for him when the campaign becomes a more individual thing," says Mrs. Frank D. O'Connor, wife of the Democratic nominee for governor.

Born, Married to Politics

A smiling Mrs. Mary O'Connor said Wednesday she was born and married to politics. Her comments came during the Democratic state convention here where her husband, New York City Council president, received the nomination on the first ballot.

Mrs. O'Connor moved along the platform following her husband's nomination. She was kissed and embraced by well wishers and received their congratulations.

After receiving congratulations from Howard J. Samuels, a candidate who had conceded the nomination to O'Connor, Mrs. O'Connor sought out Mrs. Samuels, and the two embraced. Mrs. O'Connor then kissed the Samuels' children.

"Mr. O'Connor has been involved in politics as long as I've known him — 27 years," added Mrs. O'Connor.

She then pointed out that her father, Arthur A. Kearney, was a politician in her home town of Ashley, Pa., near Wilkes-Barre.

Mrs. O'Connor says she is looking forward to the possibility that her husband will be governor. "I do this with excitement and an awareness of the participation and responsibility I would have to offer as a hostess in Albany," she added.

Notes Tremendous Sacrifice

"There is a tremendous sacrifice involved in politics — but it is one we don't mind making," Mrs. O'Connor said.

Even if her husband becomes governor, she said "I will still consider Jamaica Estates our home. We've put a lot of elbow grease into our home there, and the boys like it, too."

The O'Connors have three sons, Kevin, 23, who is a student at New York Medical College, and Thomas and Terence, 18-year-old twins. Terence enters Siena College this month and Thomas is a sophomore at Niagara University.

It was always Mrs. O'Connor's aim as a girl to someday become a public health nurse. Her dream was fulfilled and after attending a Brooklyn nursing school, she joined the New York City Health Department and rose to a supervisor's position.

"But now — with Mr. O'Connor's many activities and the responsibilities of a mother —I haven't the time for more than part-time work in several of the social and philanthropic areas of Queens County."

Her interests include working with the blind, the Queens Symphony, the Queens Tuberculosis & Health Association and the Queens School of Nursing.

List Schedule For Dem Windup

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Here is the schedule of activities for today's second and final meeting of the Democratic State Convention:

Call to order at 11 a.m.

Nomination of the candidate for lieutenant governor and the nominee's acceptance speech.

Nomination for comptroller and acceptance speech.

Address by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Nomination for chief judge of the State Court of Appeals.

Nomination of 15 delegates-at-large for the 1967 State Constitutional Convention.

Final adjournment, at approximately 4 p.m.

Levitt Critical Of Both Parties On Albany Mall

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—State Comptroller Arthur Levitt says state legislators of both parties circumvented the state Constitution in their method of financing the Albany Mall, a planned complex of state office buildings in Albany.

He called their method "immoral" and said that although the planned cost of the project was $500 million, he expects it will cost $1 billion ultimately.

Levitt, scheduled to be nominated for re-election today at the Democratic state convention, spoke at a Wednesday meeting of the Buffalo Athletic Club booster group.

The state's financial officer claims the Legislature "circumvented the Constitutional requirement of a vote of the people for the state to borrow money."

The governing body made a serious mistake by not "believing in the soundness of the people's judgement," he added.

Albany County is building the complex on a lease arrangement with the state, a method which Levitt says will leave New York with a "phantom debt".

The mall will cost more now than if the state had borrowed the money, Levitt said. There will be an extra burden of interest because the state has a higher credit rating than the county and could have borrowed the money at a lower interest rate, he added.

Levitt said he liked the idea of the mall, because "buildings of rare beauty will rise" on a former slum site. But the financing of the project is wrong, he charged.

Natural Beauty Conference Set In Paltz on 17th

The Ulster County Conference on Natural Beauty will get underway at the State University College at New Paltz Sept. 17 at 9 a. m. in the College Theater.

Early reservations for the conference show that the panel discussion on the Hudson River is of greatest interest. This panel, of which Lelan F. Sillin Jr., president of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, will be chairman, will cover all aspects of the river affecting Ulster County. Other speakers on this panel will be Phillip Dodge, Executive Director of the Hudson River Conservation Society, and George S. Wislocki, director of the Hudson-Catskill Museum. It is also expected that the manager of one of the extractive industries on the Ulster side of the river will speak.

Next in interest is the panel on Historic Preservation. The chairman of this will be Alexander Aldrich, special assistant to the Governor. Other speakers include Harry Rigby, who has been active in the recent survey of Historic Buildings in Kingston, and Williliam H. van Benschoten, well known architect and chairman of the Committee on Historic Preservation of the Ulster County Planning Board.

Of the seven remaining panels, the order of interest shown is: Aesthetics and the Law, Citizen Action, Parks, the View from the Highway, Education, the Landscape.

There will be about 30 speakers, three or four to each panel.

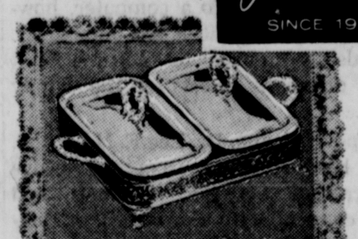

Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of the State University at New Paltz, will welcome the delegates. The college, which is co-sponsoring the coference, is offering its facilities.

The conference is open to all interested persons. Those wishing to attend may make reservations through the Ulster County Planning Board, County Office Building, Kingston.

SIMPLIFYING ENGLISH

Computers will someday be of immense value in retrieving information from the masses of written documents accumulating in libraries. But one big trouble with teaching them the languages is that they take things too literally.

Everyone knows what "Time flies" means, for instance. To a computer, however, the phrase is a little too ambiguous. It could also be an order to clock the flight speed of dipterous insects of the family Muscidae.

Now a psychologist, Dr. Lee E. McMahon, who has been studying ways to improve communications between machines and men, has come up with a new form of English designed to eliminate such confusion. Developed at Bell Telephone Laboratories, it's called FASE, for "Fundamentally Analyzable Simplified English."

McMahon has reduced the English language to a strict form in which word order — subject, verb, object — is always clear. Modifiers like adjectives and adverbs and other parts of speech are also governed by a complicated set of rules to avoid grammatical ambiguity.

It so happens that "Time flies" in FASE would mean the same thing to a computer as it does to a human. To convey the other meaning, the sentence would have to be changed to something like "Determine the speed of flies."

Unfortunately, there is still the matter of semantic ambiguity. "John throws a ball every night" is perfectly good FASE, but a computer might blow a circuit trying to decide whether John was an athlete or a playboy.

Another trouble is that while FASE is indistinguishable from ordinary English, long passages tend to produce a somewhat flat prose. This limits it to applications where clarity of expression is perferable to an elegant style.

PARKING METERS VANISHING

The parking meter may be going the way of the old hitching post.

The American Automobile Association reports a trend toward the removal of these coin-fed sentinels in many U.S. cities. The purpose of course, is to lure customers back to urban business areas.

In a study of 42 cities by the association's Traffic Safety and Engineering Department, it was found that 35 had removed all or most of their curb parking meters.

Among the other findings of the survey:

Most of the cities are under 25,000 population—although one, St. Petersburg, Fla., is over 180,000.

Retail sales didn't noticeably increase after the removal of the meters.

The loss in annual parking meter revenue has varied between $1,000 to $220,000.

The majority of cities did not alter parking time limits—usually two hours—when meters were removed.

It's a good try, and it may be too early to make a final judgment, but it seems obvious that the cities need a lot more answers to the competition of suburban shopping centers with their convenience and unlimited parking.

100 MILLION STRONG

We have passed the 100-million mark in the number of Americans with drivers' licenses in their wallets or purses.

On the basis of data furnished by the states, the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads reports there were more than 99 million vehicles operators' licenses in force at the end of 1965. This was 3.4 million more than in 1964. Thus the estimate that the present number is over 100 million is a pretty well-informed one.

The machines themselves aren't far behind, says the BPR. The total number of drivers figures out to 1.11 for each motor vehicle registered in the country.

SHARPER EYE TO STYLE

This is the time of year when men who have been spending as much of their time as possible in sports shirts and slacks are eyeing the fall suits on display. It also is the time when retail men's wear buyers congregate in New York to put in their orders for spring and summer suits. They have a season's jump on the rest of us.

It has always been thus, but the buyers' task becomes trickier as the average male gets more choosy about what he wears. As one clothing executive put it, "the old 'bread-and-butter' suit is gone and forgotten." American men, it seems, are becoming increasingly fashion-conscious. They fuss more than they used to about the cut of their suits; they have a more knowing eye for color and fabric.

Doubtless this is progress. Certainly the clothing makers and merchants find the prospect enchanting. But though we, too, relish a sharp appearance in a man, we confess to twinges of misgiving. Things are bad enough as it is, with the ladies switching styles every season. We kind of hope the clothing people won't be able to maneuver the nation's men into that kind of concern about what they wear.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

THE GERMANS IN A TIME OF PAUSE

FREIBURG, West Germany—The air mechanics' strike in America had its good side. Arranging for a trip to Japan and Taiwan, I had to buy a ticket from west to east to get off in time. Aside from proving to myself that the world is round, this enabled me to stop off for a few days to see some old friends in the Rhineland. What they have to say about their condition is interesting. They seem a little less sure of themselves than they did a year ago, when they were voting Ludwig Erhard and the Christian Democrats into office. The economic boom is still going strong, and the labor market is still very tight. The tip-off to this is that my son Chris, who knows absolutely nothing of practical science, got a summer job in an electronics factory in Teningen, near Freiburg, with no questions asked. But people who were accepting Erhard as Chancellor last September as the author of the German "economic miracle" are now wondering why he can't loosen up the capital market. The complaints are precisely what they are in America: no money, fears of inflation, and a diminishing assurance that State action can always be taken to prevent depression.

To give credit where it is due, my friend Jurgen, a young medical student who translated Erhard's speeches for me a year ago, has turned out to be a prophet. He reminded me that he said last September that Erhard was a man who lacked force. This isn't necessarily true in terms of character, for Erhard used plenty of intellectual force in his own field when, as Minister of Economics, he abolished price controls a decade or more ago. But in politics appearances are everything, and the fact that Erhard's party has been losing ground to the Social Democrats must make the Chancellor seem personally weaker than he is. The erosion of his position is comparable to that of Lyndon Johnson's.

A popular complaint about the Germans is that they try to push the Nazi epoch out of their minds. My son Chris tells me that this does not apply in the least to the young people with whom he worked in the electronics factory. They talked freely about the remaining physical scars of the war, and invariably the conversations would lead back to Hitler. The young, so Chris says, are very objective about the Nazi years. They welcome the autobahns and the extensions of social welfare that are left over from the Third Reich, but consider that they were definitely not worth the insane tensions of the time. Incidently, Der Spiegel, the leading weekly news magazine of West Germany, has been running a series of critical articles on the Nazi years, which hardly sustains the contention that older Germans are unwilling to look at the past.

Herr Remy, a friend of a year ago, seemed a little more gloomy about the prospects for reunification of the two Germanys.

"The French and the British don't really want it," he says, "and we might as well be objective about it. It isn't going to happen." But then, typically, he said the Germans must do what they could to attain it. Herr Remy seems to express a patience that is characteristic of most Germans when they discuss their position in the middle of Europe.

Says Professor Hermann Heimpel, "No natural right guarantees our unity, if we do not strive for it carefully and keenly. Historical experience bridles ardor by patience. But this patience will only leave its mark in history in the form of controlled ardor. Ardor and patience, patience and ardor—to harmonize both within our souls, that is the task which history has set for us."

Professor Heimpel's tone is reassuring, but if Herr Remy is right about the reluctance of the British and the French to interest themselves in German reunification, and if Americans can think only of Vietnam, one wonders how long "ardor and patience" can be ridden in tandem. The old saying is that hope deferred maketh the heart sick. Hope deferred can also lead to explosions of the sort that have racked Europe many times before.

The DOCTOR SAYS

Reach for Glass of Water Instead of Cigarette

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A reader asks how he can quit smoking. In order to get a line on this question a group of teen-agers were asked why they smoked. A surprising number answered that they really didn't like to smoke but did so because they wanted to be one of the crowd. Unfortunately they forget that the people that the world has always admired most are the ones who stand out from the crowd. Some persons who have smoked for 20 or 30 years say, "I know it is a loathsome, costly and dangerous habit but I just can't kick it."

Deep down these people know that, if they want that to badly enough, they could kick it but they are the ones who never quite believe that nicotine poisoning will affect their heart or their lungs. It may kill some other guy but it won't kill them.

I would say to them: Is it really necessary to have a heart attack or develop emphysema or lung cancer to make you decide to quit smoking?

One aid to stopping is to reach for a glass of water instead of a cigarette. During the first five or six days of going without smoking you should also avoid alcohol. Those who adopt this plan find themselves drinking seven or eight glasses of water a day. This helps to flush the nicotine and other by-products of smoking out of the system. Sweet drinks will help prevent the drop in blood sugar that occurs when you stop smoking. A cold shower and a brisk rubdown will tone up your circulation, which has been impeded by smoking.

When you feel that you just have to inhale, go outdoors and inhale a lungful of fresh air. This and a brisk walk of 10 minutes or longer after each meal are recommended substitutes for the usual postprandial cigarette. Remember, too, that adequate rest is essential. Fatigue and jittery nerves will increase your desire for a smoke and at the same time weaken your resistance.

Antismoking clinics promote a group spirit that may help some persons but experience shows that their relapse rate is high. There is no substitute for a strong desire to stop. Although we all know that life must come to an end sometime let's not hasten it by indulging in senseless habits.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

"Alas, Poor Yorick! I Knew Him—"

Washington News

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the primary election of June 7, 1966, Dorothy Healey, chairman of the Southern California District of the Communist party, ran for Los Angeles County tax assessor.

In a news conference on February 24 she frankly said she had no chance of being elected but she was entering the campaign to permit the Communist party to observe the reaction of the public to a well-known Communist running for public office.

Candidate Healey openly proclaimed her connection with the Communist party. Her workers distributed hundreds of pins read "Vote Communist." She received 86,149 votes.

Thereupon, the Communist Party USA decided to make a serious attempt to win a seat in Congress.

On May 15, Herbert Aptheker, of the Communist party's nation committee, announced his candidacy from New York's 12th Congressional District, in Brooklyn.

There's a story back of Aptheker's decision.

The Communists use two major techniques for taking over governments. The one we're all paying attention to at the moment is guerrilla warfare, as used in Viet Nam, Thailand, Laos and Cuba. But there's also internal political subversion — which overthrew Czechoslovakia and might have succeeded in Indonesia if the Reds hadn't backed a coup too early.

Though the Russians don't exclude revolutions at some time in any country, one wing of the moscow-dominated faction of the world Communist movement has now concluded guerrilla wars aren't always the most practical first step for subverting developed nations.

Excerpts have been shown me from a report by a top Spanish Communist on the possibility of a revolution in Spain:

"We already know that we will gain nothing by force. But there are other ways to attain victory . . . Many of our people are in posts of responsibility and they will open the way for the rest.

"We must attract the Catholics, the students, that middle class which no doubt decided the victory for Franco. Their forces must be divided. Faith has united the Spaniards. They held back before the name of God. For this reason it is necessary not to hurt Catholic feelings until we can impose our law. The new currents which have come up between the French Catholics who are totally divided can be our great solution for Spain."

Once a few Communists work their way into government, these men, through influence and political patronage, bring their associates into key spots.

Top U.S. Communists don't believe the United States is ripe for plucking. They do have three objectives:

1. An Aptheker victory would encourage Hanoi. Anti-American words in the mouth of a U.S. congressman would have weight abroad.

2. By experimenting in elections here, the Reds can develop techniques usable in more susceptible countries.

3. A few Communists in key spots, such as Congress, would be in a position to throw some sand in programs the Communists don't like. Congressmen have access to information. They have an audience on any subject.

Notes Various Approaches Attempted to End Viet War

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — When will the war in Viet Nam come to an end and when will American troops be withdrawn? It may be paradoxical to say so, but neither the United States Government nor the North Viet Nam Government nor the Red China Government today knows the answer.

Behind the scenes one approach after another is attempted by diplomats representing the adversaries, but the net result is for each side to wait for the other to get tired of the conflict and bring about a stalemate.

To put the Viet Nam war into prospective, however, it is necessary to put Red China's relationship to the conflict in Southeast Asia in perspective, too. This is the root of the matter, and until a clearer idea is formed of what contingencies any American step toward peace may bring, no progress will be made.

Would Be Surrender

For General DeGaulle to announce that Americans must withdraw first merely means to recommend that the United States run up the white flag of surrender. To declare, however—as the State Department here has done — that American troops would be withdrawn gradually as the other side also pulls out of South Viet Nam is a reasonable position to take.

If, therefore, the North Viet government wants a negotiation to bring about that kind of result, America would agree overnight. Why then does the Hanoi government hesitate? Does it believe it can achieve the same result by holding on for another year or five years or ten?

What keeps the North Viet Nam government going during a costly war? It is getting substantial help from both the Soviet Union and Red China. But the latter has the opportunity for greater influence because it knows the weaknesses and strengths of the Asian personality.

The United States has told the world it is protecting South Viet Nam at the request of its government, and obviously the protection is against a Communist takeover. Yet if the United States and Red China achieved some kind of truce, the friction in Viet Nam would be regarded by Peiping as hardly worth bothering about.

This is why again and again in discussions of the Viet Nam problem the handwriting on the wall says that the relations of the mainland of China to the rest of the world need prime attention. In this week's issue of "U.S. News & World Report," there's a significant interview on this subject. It was conducted in Vienna between the magazine's staff reporter there—Alex Kucherov, an American citizen of Russian birth—and Dr. Hugo Portisch, editor-in-chief of "The Vienna Kurier," who had just returned from a trip to Red China, where he had talked at length with the leaders there. Dr. Portisch said:

"Marshal Chen Yi, the vice premier and foreign minister, with whom I had a long talk, told me they will need at least 20 years for the whole of China —a huge country—to reach the industrial level of present-day England . . .

Not Traditional Invaders

"The Chinese, by tradition, are not invaders . . . . and when you bring up Viet Nam, they make a point that their troops aren't there . . . . at one point he (Marshal Chen Yi) said to me:

" 'Look, everbody's afraid of China. Well, look at our army. It's a huge army. It's a land army with conventional weapons. Of course, if we sent 3,000,000 men into Southeast Asia, we certainly could kick the Americans out of there, easily. But we know perfectly well that, if we kick the Americans out of there, the Americans wouldn't take that defeat. What would they do? They would attack us with superior means.' "

Dr. Portisch said he understood this meant nuclear weapons. He added that the Red Chinese leader also was sure the Americans wouldn't invade Red China. So the Viennese editor concluded:

"The Chinese Communists talk belligerently, but they act cautiously — in Viet Nam and everywhere else."

The foregoing puts Red China in perspective and points the way not just to diplomatic dialogues on troop withdrawal but to an international plan that could promote Asia's economic development. This offers the real hope. For if the leaders in Peiping were persuaded that it is not a temporary device but a long-range formula, a solution to the internal as well as external problems of mainland China would emerge. Once conferences on economic development and assistance are started and progress is made in this field, the Viet Nam problem would naturally adjust itself.

I am surprised how many folks collect stamps, blocks of stamps, that is four stamps and some like to have the plate block, that is four stamps with the number. Many now send to the post office department for the First Day Covers which are post-marked on private envelopes. There will be the regular stamp in coils of Washington. This goes to Postmaster, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202. The date is Sept. 8, 1966. For coils one usually orders two stamps for each envelope, which thus, will cost 10 cents, for the two stamps. They are the Rembrandt Peale portrait made in 1823, since the design is vertical, the perforations will appear to the left and right of the portrait.

Another stamp which will be out soon after, that is on Sept. 13, 1966 is the "First Day Covers Five Cents General Federation of Women's Clubs Stamp." These envelopes are sent to the postmaster with the above title and are to go to New York, New York 10001. This stamp shows two ladies, one showing long old-fashioned wide dresses and parasol and fancy hat, and the other, the slender lady with dress ending at her knees, and the boyish bob, or whatever it is called today. On the stamp it reads in part "75 Years of Service for Freedom and Growth."

Some time ago in "Your America," an illustrated column by Clark Kinnaird he had a cover of Sarah Joseph Buell Hale and illustrations showing some of the clothes of the Godey's Lady's Book fashions. This remarkable American author and editor was born in Newport, N. Y., Oct. 24, 1788. In 1822 she was left a widow with five small children and so went to work. From 1828 to 1837 she edited the Boston "Ladies' Magazine" and when it was consolidated with "Godey's Lady's Book" published in Philadelphia, she became its editor.

The Gody's fashion book became so popular that the colored plates she so skillfully arranged dictated fashions in the United States. Today these colored plates are collector's items, of course. These plates came out each month. Mrs. Hale, a career woman, brought about child labor law reforms, and arranged for day nurseries, through her writings. She supervised public playgrounds, and tax-supported elementary schools. She advocated domestic science instruction in public schools, and women's property rights. The politicians of 1966 think they invented all that by themselves, so it seems. She died, April 30, 1879, in Philadelphia, Pa.

Today when the table is set for Thanksgiving Day and mother and grandmother presides with great pomp, let them know that it was Sarah Josephia Buell Hale, a widow with five small children, who was responsible for President Lincoln's initiating annual Thanksgiving Day celebrations. Another little item, Mary's Little Lamb, came from her pen, which children loved to learn when school was school. Thomas A. Edison, who too enjoyed these simple little peaceful lovingly lines, recorded it via his revolutionary invention, the phonograph, as the first recitation.

She retired from literary life in 1877, after writing several books in addition to her other works. Now those who plan for a Thanksgiving Day weekend and want to visit other folks in other states, remember it was Mrs. Hale who for some 20 years advocated the keeping of this day as a national festival, to be held on the same day throughout the country, which was done since 1864. Today the powers that be are powerful, but there was one little lady, and in her few years of holding the pen in her hand was able to do so much with so little. Can you imagine what she could have done with the wasted millions used today.

LWV to Launch Annual Finance Drive on Monday

Mrs. Stanley Plasker, league president, has announced the League of Women Voters of Kingston will start its annual finance drive Monday, Sept. 12. Members will call on local residents to solicit their support of the league's non-partisan program.

Mrs. Albert Tannin, finance chairman, pointed out that community support is solicited because the league's program of objective study benefits the community. The group provides impartial information on election issues and makes extensive studies of selected governmental issues on the local, state, and national level.

Each year the league has helped the voter to be informed about the many questions and amendments on the ballot through its publication "Facts For Voters." It has taught citizens to use the voting machines, provided speakers to organizations, free publications on government to schools and youth groups, sponsored contests on the subject of the United Nations, held candidates meetings to bring the candidates closer to the voter, published Voters Guides and booklets about the community, provided rides to the polls, and worked on legislation to liberalize and extend the franchise to all citizens.

Members this year will study city finances in addition to continuing their interest in the Kingston Library and city charter. Many issues which will be taken up by the Constitutional Convention in April are of vital concern to the league. Members have agreed to keep citizens well-informed about the convention throughout its session.

Anyone interested in supporting the League of Women Voters of Kingston or in obtaining complete information about its total program and publications may do so by writing to UPO Box 564, Kingston. Membership is open to any woman eligible to vote.

Speno Indicates Interest in New Statewide Office

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — State Sen. Edward J. Speno, leader of Nassau County's Republican organization, signaled Wednesday night his interest in seeking statewide office in the future.

Members of the Nassau county delegation launched a carefully pre-arranged 12-minute demonstration when Speno's name was mentioned at the evening session of the GOP State Convention.

"Ed Speno, No. 1," was the motto on many signs carried by the demonstrators who paraded through War Memorial Auditorium along with a band and a drum and bugle corps.

The demonstration was triggered after Speno was nominated as one of the party's 15 candidates for delegate-at-large seats at next year's state Constitutional Convention.

Speno has indicated his interest in furthering his political career, including a possible bid for the governorship in 1970.

Speno already has pledged his support for the 1966 election to Gov. Rockefeller, who will be renominated tonight to run for a third term.

21-Gun Salute Due For Burmese Chief

Johnson and the Burmese leader arranged a late afternoon meeting.

Note Peace Corps In Fifth Year Changes Training

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Peace Corps, now in its fifth year, has slowly changed the training methods it uses to prepare volunteers for duty in foreign countries.

Gradually, the corps has shifted training from the ivy-covered lecture halls of the nation's university campuses to the slum areas of the large cities, onto the Indian reservations of the Southwest and West and into the poverty pockets of Appalachia.

Entering Camps

Volunteer trainees also are entering camps such as one in the Florida Keys which is to be similar to what the volunteers will find in the South Seas.

Or, like the Pennsylvania camp at Shawnee on Delaware — some two hours from Philadelphia — where a market place and a temple have been built to give the trainee a touch of the atmosphere of a small village in India.

Other volunteers are being sent overseas immediately to the country in which they will undergo on-the-job training.

"We're just trying to give them something new and different. A new change of life for most of them,' said Brent Ashabranner, director of the Peace Corps Division of University Relations and Training.

"We found that lecture halls and tile showers are detriments to volunteers who will be working in underdeveloped areas."

Ashabranner emphasized that universities — and recently private industry — are running the training programs. They have just moved them from the campus to the field.

The Peace Corps now has 123,000 volunteers serving in 46 nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America. On Aug. 16, Sally Poland of Louisville, Ky., became the 10,000th volunteer to complete service overseas when she returned from Turkey.

Some 7,500 men and women are now in training programs which began in late June and early July and run through September. It is the largest number of trainees to sign up for any one period.

The summer programs train the volunteers in teaching, community development, health, agriculture and foreign languages.

At least 45 different languages are being taught although the Peace Corps is geared to teach about 65.

About 36 per cent of the men and women who complete training will be sent to Latin America, 21 per cent to Africa and the remainder to the Middle East, Asia and the Far East. By year's end, the Peace Corps will have volunteers at work in 53 countries and the trust territory of the Pacific, known as Micronesia.

For the first time, trainees are preparing for assignment in Micronesia, South Korea, Guayana, Mauritania, Chad, Bechuanaland and Libya. The first volunteers to Paraguay will train in early fall.

Study Appeal to Cut Rochester Imbalance

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state education commissioner had on his desk today an appeal to effect a plan that would "materially reduce" racial imbalance in Rochester public schools.

The appeal was put before Commissioner James E. Allen Wednesday by a lawyer for a Rochester citizens group, who said attempts to reach racial balance in that city's schools had been "puny and ineffective."

John McCrory of Rochester asked Allen to order the city's five-member Board of Education to avoid "stalling tactics" and put a racial-balance program into effect.

Allen reserved decision.

"Our contention is simply, that, since 1963, the board has not implemented your plans, nor has it effected any plans other than puny and token efforts," McCrory told the commissioner.

In 1963, Allen issued an order for racial-balance in public schools, stipulating that no school enrollment should be more than 50 per cent Negro.

Denies Overloading Is Pollution Cause

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Red Wing Co. Inc. of the western New York Village of Fredonia contests a State Health Department charge that the plant was overloading community sewage facilities.

James A. Sommer, lawyer for the vegetable and fruit-processing company, argued Wednesday at a hearing here that the state did not have jurisdiction in the matter.

He also said the state had not proved that the plant was the cause of pollution in Canadaway Creek. The health agency maintained that an overload caused by grape and tomato wastes resulted in pollution of the creek.

A spokesman for the department said further study was planned.

The hearing was among those held Wednesday by the department in its drive to end pollution of the state's waterways. Since last September, the agency has held 156 such hearings.

In other cases Wednesday:

—Officials of the Erie County Home and the county penitentiary agreed to comply with an order to halt pollution of Ellicott Creek near Alden, just east of Buffalo.

—Lawyers for the Mechanicville and Town of Stillwater plants of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. agreed to comply with a department order to end pollution of the Hudson River.

Erie County officials also agreed to construct sewage-treatment facilities at the two sites by June 1, 1968.

The paper firm agreed to a three-phase program to treat industrial wastes and sewage.

E. Nobles Lowe, vice president and general counsel for the firm, told department examiners that the proposed facilities would cost nearly $3½ million, "an amount greater than the depreciated value of the entire mill as it now operates."

Newley Leaves Stage for Film Career on Coast

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — No more Broadway for multitalented Anthony Newley, who conceived, coauthored, directed and starred in "Stop the World — I Want to Get Off" and "The Roar of the Greasepaint — The Smell of the Crowd."

Slates First Film

Newley is here for his first Hollywood film, "Dr. Doolittle" with Rex Harrison and Samantha Eggar, and he plans to stay at least two years to pursue his second movie career.

This may well be considered a blow by the London and New York theaters since Newley has been one of the more promising actors in the construction of a new form of stage musical. Not that his efforts have been completely successful. But at least he attempted innovations in an art form that has long been tied to tradition.

"That was the trouble," Newley reflected at 20th Century-Fox. "What I was doing was generally conceded to be avant garde. Because of that, the offers for work in other fields simply did not come. I decided I had to get out of the theater in order to be able to do other things."

Intends to Stay

So he chose "Dr. Doolittle," in which he and his fellow stars are up to their elbows in animals — 1,500 in all. Newley has moved his wife, actress Joan Collins and their two young children to California, and he intends to stay.

"Like all actors, I harbor the urge to direct," he remarked. "The amazing thing about the film business today is that producers are willing to take chances. I had an idea for an adult fantasy which I wanted to shoot in the Big Sur country. I had no trouble getting the backing for the film, and I will be directing it next summer."

His decision to settle in Hollywood was for personal as well as professional reasons, he admitted.

"For two years we have been living out of suitcases in hotel rooms," he said. "It was time to stay in one place for a change."

"Dr. Doolittle" is his first Hollywood film, but Newley is a movie veteran. He made his debut at 14 in England and appeared in 40 movies, his most memorable performance as a boy being the artful dodger in "Oliver Twist."

Martorana Buys Wadlin Insurance

Beatrice H. Waldin of Highland has announced the sale of the Wadlin Insurance Agency to Supervisor Joseph Martorana of Clintondale effective Oct. 1.

In a letter to her insurance clients, Mrs. Wadlin said Martorana will serve his new accounts through a new branch office which he is locating at 6 Church Street in Highland, a short distance from the Highland Post Office. Mrs. Dorothy Dohrman, who has been in Mrs. Wadlin's office for several years, will remain with the agency.

In announcing the transfer of her insurance agency to Martorana, Mrs. Wadlin also said that after vacation she will return to her Highland office to offer legal services in the fields of real estate, decedent estates and income tax. A director of the Savings & Loan Association of Kingston, Mrs. Wadlin will continue to serve in this capacity with particular interest in the Highland Branch.

Commenting on his purchase of the Wadlin Insurance Agency, Martorana said that he considered it fortunate to assume proprietorship of such a fine and reputable agency. He added that he would strive to continue to serve his new insurance clients in the same manner to which they have been accustomed to in the past. The Wadlin agency has been in operation over 20 years with Mrs. Wadlin assuming the business upon the death of her husband, John F. Wadlin, former Assemblyman of Ulster County.

Martorana, who resides on the Milton Turnpike in the Tuckers Corners area of Clintondale, has been in the insurance business several years. In 1963 he purchased the Schantz Insurance Agency and presently maintains an office in Clintondale on the corner of Maple and Main Streets opposite the Methodist Church. A former president of the Highland Chamber of Commerce and vice-commander of Lloyd Post 193 of the American Legion, Martorana has long been active in local civic and fraternal organizations. Active and interested in local government, Martorana serves as supervisor of the Town of Plattekill.

Wilson to Issue Weekly Series on 12 Amendments

Ulster County Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson announced today that he will be issuing a weekly series of informational statements concerning the 12 statewide questions which will appear on the ballot this November. Assemblyman Wilson said the twelve questions will involve one Proposition and eleven Constitutional Amendments, and that every voter in the county should become fully acquainted with all of the proposals before Election Day so that he, or she, will be able to cast an informed vote on each of these important issues.

The local Assemblyman said the Republican Party in the State, and all of the Party's candidates have agreed that a massive effort must be made this year to bring as much information as possible to the voters concerning the state-wide questions so that a truly representative vote can be cast on each issue. Assemblyman Wilson pointed out that in past elections many important amendments to the State Constitution, as well as other issues such as multi-million dollar questions on State bonds, were either adopted or rejected by a minority of the State's electorate because many voters were not well informed about the issues involved. Wilson added that many non-partisan organizations, such as the League of Women Voters, have done an outstanding job of attempting to bring this vital information to the voters, but apparantly an even greater effort is needed.

Assemblyman Wilson, who is also the County Republican Chairman, pledged the Republican Party will do its utmost to get as much of this information as possible into the hands of the voters before Nov. 8, and added that thousands of informational sheets on the state-wide questions will be distributed throughout the County. Wilson said, however, that he will attempt to supplement this information with a series of articles on the 12 questions. The first in the series will be released next week, and will concern one of the most vital questions on the ballot, Proposition One which calls for a $200 million dollar bond issue for recreational development throughout the State.

Charged Disorderly

Herbert Barringer, 31, of Ellenville, was charged with disorderly conduct early this morning after he allegedly disturbed a neighbor by running his motorcycle in the backyard for a half hour. The complainant notified Ellenville state police and Barringer was taken before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel of Kerhonkson where he was placed under $100 bail for a hearing this evening. The complaint was lodged some time after midnight when the complainant reported he was being disturbed by the noise of the motorcycle.

Laboratory in Rockies Exhibits Human Lungs; 1 Had Emphysema

EDITOR'S NOTE — Emphysema is a disease of the lungs, a disease rapidly becoming one of the country s worst cripplers. There is no drug or cure for emphysema, but some hospitals are finding success in rehabilitating and helping victims. Here is the third in a four-part series on the ailment.

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — In a laboratory within sight of the Rockies' foothills there's a mechanical apparatus that looks and sounds like a prop for a chiller-movie on the late-late-late TV show.

It's a breathing exhibit of two human lungs taken from the bodies of dead men, but now working for science.

Encased in a glass chamber, and powered by an air-flow pump, the two bodyless lungs hang side by side and alternately inflate and deflate — swell and droop — just as the living lung does.

Not Very Pretty

Neither is pretty to see. Upon inflation, each looks like a grotesque, roughly triangular, flying machine that has nothing but wings. Deflated, each resembles a limp jelly fish.

But there's a difference between them.

One is a normal lung — from the body of a 70-year-old auto mechanic who died of a brain tumor but had healthy lungs throughout life.

The other is a diseased lung — taken from the body of a 77-year-old laborer who had suffered for years from a tissue-destroying lung disease called emphysema.

Although emphysema is a common killer, this man died of something else.

But scientists here at Webb-Waring Institute for Medical Research —for the University of Colorado Medical Center — say his lung reveals many of the telltale grim legacies of emphysema. For example:

—Even at rest, it's abnormally distended and lacks the elasticity of a normal lung.

—When it exhales, it empties much more slowly, and much less completely, than does the lung on the other side of the chamber. It still holds trapped air — a hallmark of emphysema.

—Its surface is richly and nastily spotted with a coal black pigment — another characteristic of most emphysematous lungs — whereas the normal lung in the exhibit has few such spots.

Used for Teaching

The eerie demonstration is used to help teach medical students about emphysema. It's also used by Webb-Waring scientists to help spread to laymen visitors, including school children, their readily offered gospel that heavy tobacco smoking, especially cigarette smoking, is at least an aggravant of emphysema — if not, indeed, one of its contributory causes.

"The diseased lung in this exhibit is from a man who smoked heavily all his life," said Dr. Roger Sherman Mitchell, whose campaign against cigarette smoking is such that when he has a chain smoking visitor, he offers an ashtray containing mounted pieces of normal and diseased lung.

"The normal lung came from a man who had smoked three or four cigarettes per day for 50 years — but had never inhaled."

At Webb-Waring Institute — named for two pioneering Colorado physicians who helped spearhead the control of tuberculosis in the United States — the lungs of the dead, in various other ways, are helping scientists slowly to unveil some basic anatomical and physiological riddles of emphysema and its satellite maladies, a brigade of foes often as fearsome as tuberculosis ever was.

And, across the roadway at the medical center's great general hospital, doctors report life-saving advances are being made in treating emphysema and allied disease patients who reach the potentially last ditch stage of acute respiratory failure.

Constant Threat

The latter condition — a constant threat to almost any emphysema patient — the stage where the breath of life really fails, and death can occur from suffocation, or failure of a heart laboring itself to breathe.

As yet there's no drug or other cure for emphysema — and victims of it can go for years, battling for breath. Certain treatments are available, though, to ease their plight.

Nevertheless, it is respiratory failure that kills emphysema victims — and the Colorado hospital is cited by the U.S. Public Health Service as having one of the best reported records in saving such emergency cases.

One of the physicians sums up the record:

Was 80 Per Cent Deaths

"In this hospital, up to two years ago, some 80 per cent of these emergency, acutely ill patients used to die in the hospital. Now, since the organization of the respiratory care unit, we've reversed this picture. Eighty per cent now get out — and that's good.'

He says the hospital is employing some pioneering modifications of existing emergency techniques such as:

— More frequent use of tracheostomies — the cutting of a hole into the windpipe and inserting a breathing tube.

— Use of various mechanical ventilators, including a still experimental one, to deliver an increased volume of air to the lung.

— Encouraging patients to get out of bed for brief periods daily as soon as possible after their emergency — and walk up and down a ward corridor "so as to exercise their breathing muscles, and also get a look at the Rockies to help their morale."

— Greater use of oxygen, in low and controlled concentrations, for treating both emergency cases and patients at home — including still-experimental portable liquid oxygen tanks which some patients carry constantly away from the hospital.

Dr. Mitchell says the most important finding emerging so far from postmortem lung and related studies at Webb-Waring is this:

False Labels

"The respiratory condition which almost invariably was labeled 'emphysema' five to 10 years ago — and was often looked upon as hopeless, if not, indeed, misdiagnosed as a cerebral stroke, pneumonia or heart failure — is actually a multiplicity of five interrelated conditions, more than one of which may be present at one time.

"And four of these — chronic bronchitis; pulmonary embolism or thrombosos (blood clot in the lung arteries); bronchiolitis (obstruction of the very small air tubes) and asthma — are treatable and reversible.

"It's true that the emphysema comonent, which involves actual destruction or loss ot lung tissue, is so far nonreversible, and not specifically treatable. But you can do things for tne emphysema part, as well — like teaching patients to breathe evenly and slowly, so as to get the most benefit from their lungs.

Not Hopeless

"And so — and we're very excited about this — we have found that the group of conditions as a whole is not a hopeless one. And this is important, because many doctors are still labeling all cases of chronic airways obstruction as emphysema and hopeless."

Findings like this are emerging from another laboratory project — called the Emphysema Registry.

Started in 1956, it involves attempting to collect living subjects suffering from chronic airways obstruction, keep tabs on them throughout life and, whenever possible, examine their lungs grossly and microscopically after death — including giving breathing tests to the bodyless lungs.

The registry now includes records on 392 subjects — people in all walks of life from a coal miner to a chef — of whom about 125 have died.

Among other findings:

1. "There is an almost direct relationship between heavy cigarette smoking and emphysema-chronic bronchitis," Webb-Waring scientists say.

2. A major factor impairing air flow out of the lungs in these conditions has been identified as the collapsibility of the intermediate and large air tubes.

3. The size of the fully inflated lung — both during life and after death — is the best available method, short of examining the lung tissue sections, to ascertain the degree of involvement with emphysema. And this may help doctors in diagnosing the condition.

Cite New Finds

4. New information about "pink puffers' and "blue bloaters" — a rough categorization of emphysema-bronchitis sufferers according to their outward appearance.

"Pink puffers" tend to be slender people who are very short of breath but have no heart failure. They maintain relatively normal levels of oxygen and carbon dioxide in their blood — thus giving them the pinkish appearance of apparent health.

"Blue bloaters" tend to be overweight people, with a chronic blueness of lips and ears, indicating low oxygen. They also have high percentages of carbon dioxide in their blood. They don't suffer so much from shortness of breath, but they do have a history of serious heart involvement.

Post-mortem studies at Webb-Waring on both types — as well as on intermediate types — indicate the "blue bloaters" are much more likely to derive most of their trouble from changes in their air tubes, as distinguished from destruction of lung tissue that characterizes emphysema. And this, too, may help family doctors in diagnosis.

Marine Gives Award To Dead Comrade

DOWAGIAC, Mich. (AP) — A Marine who won the Purple Heart in Viet Nam has given it to a dead comrade who didn't.

Tom Klein and John Edgerly, both 21, enlisted in the Marine Corps together. Both went to Viet Nam.

Klein stepped on a mine, shattering both his legs. One was amputated.

Edgerly was hit by lightning while standing guard near Da Nang. Because it wasn't a combat injury, he did not receive the Purple Heart.

Still in his wheelchair, Klein attended Edgerly's funeral in Dowagiac recently. He rolled up to the casket and pinned his medal on the dead Marine's pillow.

"I figure anyone who has guts enough to fight over there deserves recognition, no matter how he died," Klein said.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A report shows that one of the candidates for Democratic nomination for governor of Maryland has campaign expenses totaling $4.07.

Andrew J. Easter, who campaigns on the slogan "Christmas for everybody," reported he spent the money on a Santa Claus mask.

Astros Confident Of Space Goals On Flight Eve

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Gemini 11 astronauts, confident and ready to shatter space records, relaxed today as preparations clicked smoothly toward a doubleheader launch Friday.

Go-Ahead on Fuel

Project officials gave a go-ahead to fuel the 90-foot-tall, Gemini-Titan 2 rocket this morning. Ecept for brief meetings with project officials, Gemini 11 pilots Charles Conrad Jr. and spacewalker-to-be Richard F. Gordon Jr. planned only a casual review of their flight plan while relaxing in crew quarters here.

"We've endeavored to lay this flight plan out so we have a chance of doing everything," Navy Lt. Cmdr. Gordon said, "and we think we've got that chance. I couldn't ask for a better flight."

Goals of their planned 71-hour mission include a rapid rednezvous with the Agena target satellite on Gemini 11's first orbit using the Agena's main engine to scoot them to a record altitude of 863 miles, flying in formation with the Agena while tied to it by a 100 foot cord, and performing an automatic "hands-off" re-entry.

Two Outside Ventures

Gordon, 36, rookie astronaut, plans two ventures outside Gemini 11 — a 107-minute stroll during Gemini 11's second day aloft and a 140-minute "space stand" the third day, when the spaceman pops the upper half of his body outside the spaceship to photograph stars.

Navy Cmdr. Conrad, veteran of the eight-day Gemini 5 flight slightly more than a year ago, and Gordon are to blast off at 10:25 a.m. Friday, 97 minutes after their Atlas-Agena target rocket roars skyward at 8:48 a.m.

Rendezvous on Gemini 11's first orbit "is really the extreme of the gamut of rendezvous," said Charles W. Mathews, Gemini program manager for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Manned Spacecraft Center. "In others words, this is about as short as you can do a rendezvous."

"The biggest thing," Conrad said, is not that it's a first-or-big rendezvous but the fact that "we're going to do it on our own. It's the first crack at doing it with our own information and no help from the ground."

Because of the short time to rendezvous, the astronauts have to rely mostly on equipment aboard the spacecraft.

Victory Forecast By Wilson, Lefky

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson and Atty. Gen. Louis Lefkowitz today forecast Republican victory in the Nov 8 election after a rough and difficult fight

Both made the prediction in speeches prepared for delivery at their anticipated renomination on the final day of the two-day Republican state convention

The sessions will end tonight with the renomination of Gov Rockefeller for a third term in the same War Memorial Auditorium where all three men became a successful team eight years ago

"We realize we are in for a rough fight—a fight in which no holds will be barred, because the Democrat bosses are so patronage-hungry," Wilson said

The Democrats, meeting simultaneously at Buffalo, have nominated Frank D O'Connor, New York City Council president, for governor

Wilson said:

"At Buffalo, the Svengalis of Brooklyn and the Bronx are nominating this year's Trilby You remember Svengali — he was the crafty hypnotist who kept Trilby under his spell to do whatever he commanded — but the electorate will not accept a Trilby in the governor's chair"

Lefkowitz said the GOP team this year will be "even more attractive" with Charles T Lanigan of Rome, Oneida County executive, as the candidate for state comptroller

Lanigan also is to receive the Republican nomination today, to face Comptroller Arthur Levitt, the only Democrat holding statewide elective office

Both Wilson and Lefkowitz said the Republicans would win back control of the Assembly They now control the state Senate

Wilson's name was placed in nomination by State Sen John Hughes of Syracuse. Former Lt Gov Frank C Moore nominated Lefkowitz

World News In Brief

Report Syrian Purge

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Emulating Communist China's Red Guards, Syrian labor unions have launched a purge of "reactionary elements" from the Syrian government.

Syria's Socialist government announced Tuesday it had crushed a plot to take over the government by former leaders of the ruling Baath party. It said it would purge all reactionary elements from the administration.

Al Thawra, the Syrian government paper, reported that the executive council of the general federation of Syrian labor unions had empowered itself to carry on the purge.

Bumper Soviet Crop

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government says the current grain harvest promises to be higher than the average of 130 million metric tons in the last five years.

A lower than average crop last year — only 114 million tons — led to a Soviet purchase of $800 million worth of Canadian wheat this year.

The record grain harvest for all of the Soviet Union was 152.1 million tons in 1964.

50 Drowned in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — At least 50 persons, most of them children, are believed to have drowned in the ast two days as floods continue to surge through the Dacca and Narayanganj districts of East Pakistan, press reports said today.

Label O'Connor

campaign effort. As might be expected, he foresaw victory.

"The people want a Democratic governor," he stated simply.

O'Connor's victory over Samuels was a forgone conclusion —because the 56-year-old career politician had diligently lined up the votes he needed far in advance of the convention.

His triumph was especially sweet in the light of his bitter defeat four years ago when he made his first bid for the nomination. O'Connor thought he could win it then but party leaders forced selection instead of a political unknown, Robert M. Morgenthau, in a turbulent convention at Syracuse.

The first ballot rollcall never was completed because it became apparent midway that O'Connor would be an easy winner.

When O'Connor's tally reached 568 votes — just short of the 573 needed for nomination — Samuels stepped to the rostrum to concede defeat. He had received 132 votes at that point and could expect only a few more.

The millionaire businessman from Canandaigua invited the delegates "to join me in fighting for Frank O'Connor" and urged that O'Connor be nominated by acclamation — making it unanimous. The convention promptly did so.

The delegations had been polled beginning with Upstate counties and working down toward the New York City area —a device chosen by O'Connor strategists to demonstrate his support outside his home city.

The object was to counter often - repeated charges by Roosevelt that O'Connor had made a deal with New York City bosses last year to assure himself of the nomination.

In the balloting, O'Connor heavily outpolled Samuels in his rival's home territory—Upstate.

O'Connor racked up 392 votes to Samuels' 88 in the counties north of New York City. The Bronx then added 88 and Manhattan then added 88.

The tally was interrupted at that point, the outcome being obvious because of large O'Connor blocs not yet recorded from Queens and Brooklyn.

Sentences Are Meted Out in County Court

Three defendants entered pleas of guilty in County Court this morning before County Judge Raymond J. Mino and received jail sentences. In each instance the guilty plea was acceptable to District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca. Several other cases were called and adjourned to future dates.

Arthur Wesley Holmes, 29, of Kingston, one of three men accused of assaulting two men in a Washington Avenue bar on Sept. 18, 1965, entered a plea of guilty to two counts of third degree assault, a misdemeanor, and was sentenced to jail. One of the men assaulted was a New York City policeman. Disposition of the other two cases has been made under third degree charges.

Leniency Asked

Francis Martocci appeared for Holmes and told the court that Holmes had been a good prisoner while confined to jail for some 180 days and had been cooperative with the sheriff's department in a recent incident at the jail. He asked for leniency.

District Attorney Torraca said that leniency had alreday been shown by acceptance of a third degree assault charge under the second degree assault indictment. He said it was apparent Holmes had been the man who struck the blow and asked for a maximum sentence under each of the two counts of the charge and that the sentences run consecutively.

Martocci said his client, who was extradited from California and intended to go back to California where he had employment.

Judge Mino imposed a sentence of one year in jail under the first count of the indictment and nine months under the second count and directed that the sentences run consecutively, with credit for the time already served in jail. The Holmes case had been tried last June and resulted in a disagreement of the jury.

Edward Mayo Jr., 18, of 61 Newkirk Avenue, who was accused of taking a check from a local insurance office and attempting to cash it, entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny. He had been indicted for second degree forgery and second degree grand larceny. David Barnovitz appeared for Mayo and pointed out that the check had not been cashed and asked leniency. Judge Mino imposed a six month jail sentence and directed that Mayo receive credit of 146 days for time already spent in jail.

Other Cases

Robert Wayne Decker, 20, Gardiner, charged with burglary, third degree; unlawful entry and petit larceny in one indictment and possession of indecent articles in a second bill, entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny and was given four months in jail. Elmor Nathan appeared for defendant. On motion of Nathan the indictment charging possession of indecent articles was dismissed. Decker's attorney said the family of defendant had moved to Athol, Mass., and the defendant would also go there on completion of any sentence. Decker was accused of entering the C. Paul Jensen property in the Wallkill-Gardiner area.

Carolyn Betrand, Modena, charged with first degree assault, second degree assault and unlawfully having and illegally possessing a firearm as a felony, entered a plea of not guilty on arraignment. Powell Carries Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell says he carries a 38-caliber revolver strapped under his arm much of the time, but he doesn't advocate gun-slinging for all Negores.

"For one thing," the New York Democrat told newsmen Wednesday, "they cost too much."

He said he didn't carry the weapon to the news conference "because I feel I'm among friends."

Tells of Plane Deaths

TOKYO (AP) — The injured pilot of a small plane which landed on fire in Hokkaido told police today his male passenger started a fire, pushed the passenger's female companion out of the plane door and jumped out.

The girl, Yuko Sato, 19, hostess, fell about 600 feet to her death. Her body went through the roof of a house.

Pilot Yoshihiko Imamura, 49, was burned badly.

The body of the male passenger, Akira Kodaka, 64, was found near a river 800 yards from the airstrip.

NYC Raises Dividend

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Central Railroad Co. today raised its quarterly common stock dividend to 78 cents a share from 52 cents. It is payable Oct. 14 to shareholders of record Sept. 22. Declarations this year total $2.64 against $2.08 for 1965.

Calls for Collective Rhodesia Solution

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh of India today called on British Commonwealth nations to work out a collective solution to the Rhodesian problem. He intervened in Commonwealth debate now in its third day on this one knotty subject.

The gist of his speech was given to the press at a briefing shortly afterward. A spokesman for India said his government feels the Rhodesian problem is not one of Britain against the rest but that everybody in the Commonwealth has responsibilities to discharge. But India did not put forward any "cut and dried" solutions, the spokesman added.

"We have a feeling that at this stage of the debate, when we are still considering the problem, it would not be right to come up with a proposition. Also we would not like to see an Indian solution but a collective one."

Phone Installers Will Vote Today On Labor Contract

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 23,000 telephone installers prepared to vote today on a new contract that forestalled a nationwide strike and provided the year's second hefty wage increase in a major industry.

President Joseph A. Beirne of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers Union called it "the best contract ever negotiated in the communications industry," providing an estimated 7 per cent hike in wages and fringe benefits over 18 months.

To Set Pattern

The contract, expected to set a pattern for 700,000 other telephone workers in negotiations later this year and next, followed the recent airlines settlement in which machinists won an estimated 5 to 8 per cent gain.

Both contracts were far in excess of the old White House wage hike guideline of 3.2 per cent a year which the Johnson administration has all but formally dropped.

"Guidelines were never designed to be straitjackets," Beirne said in announcing the contract. It provides wage hikes of 13 to 20 cents per hour for installers now averaging about $3 hourly.

The wage hike, for 18 months, is retroactive to June 28 when the old contract expired with new pay talks scheduled at the end of the period. Other provisions of the contract, icluding improved medical and life insurance programs, pensions and vacations, will remain in effect over the entire three-year contract.

Amount to 6 PC

Beirne said the 18-month wage gains amount to about 6 per cent when figured on an annual basis.

He said the contract was noninflationary and that the telephone industry could still afford to cut rates.

The settlement, subject to ratification by the installers, averted a nationwide strike scheduled to start at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Beirne said he expected no problems in winning ratification by the installers, but said the vote would take about three weeks because the men are widly scattered throughout the country.

Some 300,000 other telephone workers had been expected to observe picket lines if a strike occurred.

"All our efforts have been geared toward preserving industrial peace and a good contract for our membership, rather than conducting a nationwide, crippling strike," Beirne said.

The agreement was reached in negotiations in New York and announced by Beirne here.

Beirne said 18 local union presidents will meet in New York Friday to review details of the contract. If the contract becomes a pattern through the Bell System as expected, he said, it will cost nearly $50 million.

New Jail Riot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The second riot at Franklin County's century-old jail in four months resulted Wednesday night in considerable property damage and injury to a policeman and three inmates. More than 200 police officers and firemen were rushed to the downtown building.

Mattresses were burned and windows smashed by rampaging prisoners.

GOP Schedule

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Here is the schedule for today's second and final meeting at the Republican state convention:

Call to order at 2 p.m. for nomination of lieutenant governor, attorney general, comptroller and chief judge of the Court of Appeals.

Killed on Northway

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Richard Lull, 21, of Oneonta, N.Y., was injured fatally Wednesday when his automobile struck an overpass abutment on the Adirondack Northway at Latham, near Albany.

Police said the impact sheared the car's body from the frame and hurled the engine about 65 feet.

FDR Jr. Accepts Liberals' Bid; Choice Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who declares he is "an independent Democrat in this fight," is scheduled to be nominated for governor by the Liberal party at its state convention tonight.

The party's policy committee announced Wednesday it would recommend Roosevelt's nomination to the convention along with the Liberals' state chairman, the Rev. Donald S. Harrington, for lieutenant governor.

Roosevelt, who withdrew recently from the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Wednesday night accepted the policy committee's invitation to run.

Alex Rose, state vice chairman and chief strategist of the Liberal party, said a poll taken by the party about 10 days ago indicated that the Democratic nominee, City Council President Frank D. O'Connor, would defeat Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller by 600,000 votes even with Roosevelt heading the Liberal ticket.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said Wednesday that O'Connor can win without the support of the Liberal party, which up to now had always backed Democratic nominees for governor.

But Kennedy also said at Buffalo, where the Democratic state convention nominated O'Connor, that a Liberal party ticket headed by Roosevelt would "very seriously" hamper O'Connor's chances of victory on Nov. 8.

Kennedy said the Liberal party could draw 250,000 to 400,000 votes — many of them from the Democratic fold.

Rose revealed the results of the Liberal party poll when a newsman asked him here whether Roosevelt's candidacy would wreck O'Connor's chances and insure re-election of Rockefeller for a third term.

"No," Rose replied. "We had a poll taken that makes O'Connor a winner anyway by 600,000.

"Of course, he might kick it away during the campaign. But our intention is not to ruin O'Connor or the Democrats. We are fighting for principles and Franklin Roosevelt embodies those principles."

Rose estimated Roosevelt's strength from the Liberal party poll at "somewheres over 500,000."

Roosevelt said his own Democratic party had started on "the road to disaster" with the nomination of O'Connor by "the Democratic hierarchy." He claimed that polls had shown he was the choice of the party's rank and file.

Roosevelt, explaining his bolt from the Democratic party to become the Liberal nominee, said at a news conference that he was acting to "take politics out of the back rooms of both (major) parties ... and let the people decide."

Roosevelt also said:

"I'm not sure I'll be drawing votes only from O'Connor ... I'll be drawing votes to the fight for principle which I've undertaken."

Roosevelt previously charged that the Democratic choice of O'Connor was boss-controlled.

He was asked what his Liberal nomination would do to his status in the Democratic party, and he replied: "Win, lose or draw, this decision will give me a strong voice as the spokesman for liberalism — as the spokesman for reform and as the spokesman for returning the right of selection to the people."

New York's last Democratic governor, W. Averell Harriman, needed the votes of the Liberal party when he was elected in 1954 because he got less Democratic votes that the Republican vote for the late U.S. Sen. Irving M. Ives.

Education Pork Barrel

NEW YORK (AP) — A Syracuse University dean said today that education has become "a large element in the congressional pork barrel" and a sure thing politically.

"From now on the problem for presidents, faced with the costs of international conflict and the dangers of domestic inflation, will be less to induce congressional support for education than to keep congressional action within fiscal and budgetary bounds," said Stephen K. Bailey, dean of the Maxwell Graduate School of Public Affairs at Syracuse.

Speaking before the annual convention of the American Political Science Association, Bailey said presidential initiative is turning into "a self-generating congressional force" in education.

Bailey said that, in effect, federal aid to education creates an ever-increasing demand for more aid that congressmen find hard to resist.

Charged After Mishap

A driver was injured in a two-car mishap at Smith Avenue and Grand Street reported at 4:43 p. m. Wednesday, and another was booked on a charge. Russell F. Stokes, 64, driver of the one car reported an injured left leg and was to be treated by a doctor. Vincent J. Adamo, 51, of 14 Wurts Street, was charged with a stop-sign violation. City court hearing was today put over to Saturday. Officers Howard Kelly and Leon Fitzgerald investigated.

Dewey Hits RFK For Boss-control

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, a revered figure to New York State Republicans, charges Sen. Robert F. Kennedy with boss-control in the selection of the Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

The 63-year-old, three - term governor noted in a speech before the opening session of the GOP state convention Wednesday, that the Democratic senator had endorsed a series of forums for aspirants to the executive mansion.

"He apparently wanted to convince people that the Democratic nomination for governor really wasn't settled a year ago in a back room."

Dewey was referring to the four forums held earlier in the year across the state. The participants included Frank D. O'Connor, New York City Council president who has won the Democratic nod, and Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., the Liberal party choice.

"Well," Dewey added, "of course, everybody now knows that they were just used to put on a show."

Expect Decision On GE's Appeal In Labor Strife

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-judge panel of the U. S. Court of Appeals is expected to issue a decision shortly on the General Electric Co.'s appeal from a lower court judge's order that the company must bargain with a committee including representatives of several unions.

The panel heard oral arguments on the case Wednesday and reserved dcision.

The panel is composed of Chief Judge J. Edward Lumbard of the Second Circuit of the Court of Appeals, who presided, and Judges Leonard P. Moore and Irving R. Kaufman.

The appeal is from a ruling by U. S. District Court Judge Marvin E. Frankel. He directed GE to cease refusing to bargain with a committee headed by the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers IUE and including representatives of other unions of GE workers.

Frankel got the case after the IUE complained to the National Labor Relations Board, charging that GE's refusal last May to bargain with the multi-union committee was an unfair labor practice. An NLRB hearing on the charge is scheduled for Sept. 19.

High Tax Coming Back as Grants Termed Threat

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — High federal taxes, coming back as grants-in-aid, are threatening the independence of American cities, says Michigan Gov. George Romney.

He says some system of sharing federal revenues is needed.

Shows Trend

The recent testimony of mayors in Washington, where they outlined their problems at a U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing on municipal needs, provided a vivid illustration of the trend, Romney said in an interview Wednesday. Pleas were based on the need for financial aid.

Their testimony before the subcommittee "made it clear that either the federal government is going to undertake the fiscal reform necessary to enable the states to carry out their functions (including financial assistance to their political subdivisions), or we will continue on the road we're already on — leading to a loss of state and local autonomy," Romney said.

He touched on the same subject at a speech later in the day at a convention of the Michigan Municipal League in Detroit.

Scores Flow

He told the group, made up of city officials banded together to improve municipal government, that the large flow of public money to Washington has limited the amount of assistance a state can render to its cities.

It also has created a local resistance to increased taxes, while local needs continue to grow, he said.

"State spending nationally has gone up 111 per cent in the last 15 years," Romney told the group. "State debt has increased nine times faster than national debt. Even greater state expenditures are required in the future to meet the soaring public demand for state and local services.

"State aid to local government is at an all-time high. Over 55 per cent of Michigan's total income is turned back for local benefits. Our 1966 state budget provides some $965 million for local benefits," he said.

But, he said, states "are blocked in raising money (for growing service demands) because the federal government has control over the principal source of public money — the federal income tax.

"As a result, federal grants-in-aid have been greatly increased," the governor said.

"Meeting the future money needs of state and local governments on this basis will not only destroy the cooperative federal division of governmental functions, on which personal liberty importantly depends, it will be wasteful and less effective," Romney said.

Sees Foreign Aid Bill Over the Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's foreign aid program is over the hill for this year—but not out of the woods.

After weeks of debate and fussing, a compromise $3.5-billion aid authorization was on its way to the White House today.

But the measure, which previously had been approved by the House, cleared the Senate Wednesday by only eight votes —33 to 25. Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which handled the measure, wasn't even there to vote either aye or nay.

But before the Senate gave its approval, one foreign aid critic, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., was urging that the appropriation measure providing the funds be slashed down. The appropriation follows the authorization bill, which sets ceilings and restrictions on the program, and may set off a new round of debate.

The measure as finally approved was a compromise worked out by a conference committee that reconciled dozens of differences between the Senate and House versions of the program.

Originally, the President had asked for $3,367,000,000 for the aid program—both military and economic. The House had authorized $4,109,119,000. But the Senate, in an obviously rebellious mood, chopped the request to $2,852,762,000.

In the Senate-House negotiations the administration ended up with $3,500,735,500-a figure that could be reduced when the appropriation bill starts through the mill.

New York State University, with 107,707 students, has the largest full-time enrollment of 1,095 institutions surveyed recently.

Man Is Found Lying on Road, Has Leg Injury

Early this morning a Scranton, Pa., man was found lying on the Woodbourne-Ellenville highway about two and a third miles west of Ellenville suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg. He was taken to Monticello Hospital.

State Police at Ellenville reported Peter Paul Kueider apparently had been traveling on foot along Route 52 when he was run over by a passing car. It is believed he may have been lying partly on the highway and the offending driver failed to see him or know he had been struck.

Troopers requested that anyone traveling that part of the highway some time before 6 a. m. today who may have felt a "bump" and failed to recognize the fact that they may have struck the man, report such incident to the troopers.

Kueider was found lying on the highway shortly before 6 a. m. by a passing motorist who reported the incident to the Ellenville state police. Troopers R. E. Pinnow and Kowalik investigated.

Today's Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNNIFF, AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The mask of Wall Street seldom reveals its anguish or hope, for a Wall Street broker must abide with outward serenity his personal extremes of black pessimism and glittering optimism.

The vice president of one of the nation's best-known investment advisory houses described a few days ago the members of a group that includes some of the sharpest brains in finance.

Labeled Cynical Bunch

"They're a cynical bunch,' he said. "They listen and chuckle but they don't swallow anything. They go and check it out."

But under even the most dismal circumstances it isn't difficult to find enthusiasm, for that, too, is basic to selling securities to the country's 21 million stockholders.

As the market slid recently to its lowest in two years, six young registered representatives who had just been certified to sell, gathered over lunch and talked bullishly.

"I'd rather be coming in now than when the market is at the top," said Reginald Johnston, 28, of Boston, who had forsaken a job as industrial salesman to sell securities.

As he spoke the Dow Jones industrial stock average was in a steep decline through 800.

"There are better buying opportunities now,' he said. "The big job is to convince people to buy. Perhaps a high market would be more difficult to sell; the investors would be satisfied with their brokers."

A low market "can only work to our advantage," said Blair Purcell, 29, who was a partner in a metropolitan Washington roofing materials company. "It will be difficult at first, but this is an opportunity to buy the right stock."

Michael Mahood, 26, of Houston, Tex., who once enjoyed the steadiness of an engineering job, was bullish too. He was less happy about his personal situation. "I've lost money right now," he said, "and I'm not jumping in myself."

Fortune Possible

These three young brokers, along with Ronald Swart of Detroit, Patrick Westmoreland of Santa Monica, Calif., and Arthur Kalbhenn of Philadelphia, had just completed a six-month course on investing at the brokerage house of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

By now they are back home selling to their first customers. After 10 or 12 months they lose their trainee's salary of $700 a month and go on straight commission, which amount to $15,000 or $20,000 after five years. Beyond that there is no limit. They could accumulate a fortune.

Sees Thailand Area as Peaceful, Exotic Country

By CONRAD FINK

ON THE CHAO PHRAYA RIVER, Thailand (AP) — Tucked away in a few corners of troubled Asia there still is a bit of that peaceful and exotic East which has made more than one poet sing.

So it is here on the Chao Phraya River where people live, love and die in boats.

Conveyor of Trash

At first glance, the Chao Phraya looks like any other Southeast Asian river. It's a muddy, moving conveyor belt for all sorts of trash discarded far inland and destined for the Gulf of Siam.

But just a few miles northwest of Thailand s booming capital, Bangkok, the Chao Phraya and its interlinking canals also are the giver and taker of life.

Thousands of wiry, smiling Thais, a gentle and polite people, fish from the waters, bathe in them, conduct business on them and travel, seemingly without halt, up, down and across them.

There are floating markets—and floating, noisily haggling shoppers. There are floating restaurants and boats full of hungry customers who pull alongside for a quick sip of coconut milk or snack of fried noodles.

All By Water

Want to buy a coffin? Or load of coal? Toothpaste? Cigarettes? All are delivered by boat.

Having lived on and from the water for generations, the people of the Chao Phraya are expert small-boat sailors.

School tots, who wouldn't be trusted on a busy highway, push off for daily classes in small skiffs. Preschool kids watch the day begin from swaying hammocks rigged in boat cabins or plunge bare-bottomed into the river for a quick dip.

Their fathers, if they dont' work on the river, at least use it as transportation to the job. Mothers do the morning laundry in the river or shop on it.

All this explodes in a symphony of clanging, banging and chattering—as only Asians can orchestrate it—long before the tropical sun has risen above the walls of lush greenery lining the rivers and canals.

Must Slow Down

When that cruel sun masters Southeast Asia's heavens, all life must slow down on the steamy Chao Phraya. The best thing to do is catch a snooze on a gently rocking boat or crawl under the rusting corrugated steel roof of a riverside shed.

In the late afternoon, when temperatures have dropped a bit, the river people hit their full, noisy stride again.

There is ample evidence that this river life is as old as Thailand, called Siam in olden days. Even today roads are few and poor, so much of the area's commerce moves along the canals.

Can the old way last unchanged? It's doubtful.

The 20th century has had visible impact.

Boats filled with camera-clicking tourists add to the traffic jams on the rivers and canals. Transistor radios add to the age-old noises of the river.

And there is a new hazard for the small skiff or unwary boat-These are narrow, sleek craft powered by enormous engines capable of churning up boat-swamping waves.

Like their Thai city cousins who are automobile taxi drivers, the boat taximen wear tight pants, long plastered-down hair and demonstrate homicidal lust for speed.

The Chao Phraya is changing.

G-U Sales Increase 6 PC for Month

EAST PATERSON, N. J.—Sales of the Grand Union Company for the five-week period ended Aug. 27, totaled $76,766,705, it was announced today by the Eastern food and general merchandise retailing chain. This represents an increase of 6.6 per cent over sales of $72,010,600 in the comparable period of 1965.

For the first 26 weeks of the company's current fiscal year, through Aug. 27, sales were $407,811,729, an increase of 7.8 per cent over sales of $378,257,313 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Grand Union, which operates supermarkets and Grand Way Department Stores in 11 Eastern states and Puerto Rico, had 533 retail outlets open as of Aug. 27, compared to 523 at the same time a year ago.

Families Feel Pinch of Higher Prices for Food

NEW YORK (AP) — Across the country, families are feeling the pinch of higher food prices. They spent an average of nearly $1,025 a family on food in 1965 — a record.

This year the total may run 6 to 7 per cent higher.

The latest increase is in the price of refined sugar — at a time when the price of raw sugar on the world market has dropped to the lowest in 25 years and there is a worldwide surplus of 20 million tons — about twice the annual U.S. consumption.

The U.S. sugar quota system intertwined with foreign policy has helped create an artificial shortage of refined sugar in the United States and guaranteed foreign producers twice the price they can get in the rest of the world — with the American housewife footing the bill.

But coffee — without sugar — is getting cheaper.

Three large companies have cut their wholesale coffee prices.

Potato prices are headed higher — but nowhere nearly as high as a year ago.

Tomato products also may cost more in the months ahead. The tomato crop was cut by bad weather.

Pork chops are down 30 cents a pound in a New York area supermarket chain this weekend. Smoked hams are down 3 to 11 cents on the West Coast and bacon 3 to 4 cents.

Canned pineapple and pineapple juice and fruit cocktail may be featured as specials at many markets.

Enshrine Erhart Plane

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The little, red Lockheed airplane that carried Amelia Earhart on her solo flight across the Atlantic in 1932 was "airborne" again briefly recently. It was lowered from its hanging display at the Franklin Institute to the floor.

The plane, in which Miss Earhart became the first woman to fly the Atlantic solo, is being turned over to the Smithsonian Institution.

Senate Now Has Compact Bill on River Valley Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate had before it today a House measure that would authorize the drafting of a federal-state plan for developing the Hudson River valley.

The measure, approved by voice vote in the House Tuesday, would empower the federal government to join New York State and New Jersey in forming a compact for the task.

Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut also could join, under terms of the proposal.

The measure was amended in committee to exempt any projects for which a license had been sought prior to July 1. The change was tailored to excuse from terms of the bill the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, which plans to build a hydro - electric plant at Storm King Mountain.

Federal agencies would have to consult with the Interior Department on any projects affecting the river, but the secretary of the interior would have no veto powers.

The bill also specifies that the compact deal with the need to abate water pollution and to preserve the scenic, recreational and wildlife resources of the river valley.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. Richard D. Ottinger, D-N. Y., over the opposition of Gov. Rockefeller, who contended that the authority to enter into such a compact existed without federal legislation.

Wawarsing Rated 17

ALBANY—Final state equalization rates have been established for 16 towns — including Wawarsing, 17—the State Board of Equalization and Assessment announced today. The new rates are based on assessment rolls completed by the town during 1965.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Folks:

Why don't you try using some plastic curtains (bought at your dime store) to make dust ruffles for a child's bed?

These plastic curtains come in so many beautiful, bubbly, and rough designs and colors that they look almost exactly like gorgeous material.

A pair usually costs much less than a dollar.

And while you're at it, buy another set to use as curtains in that room and have a darling matching decor.

If you have pinking shears, use them to cut the ruffles to size, to add to their attractiveness.

A hem can be made along the top of the strip of curtain, and it can be gathered with elastic. The elastic may be pinned to the boxspring welt on each side of the bed with a safety pin!

And that's about all there is to it.

One thing a dust ruffle does, besides being pretty, is prevent dust and dirt from getting under the bed.

Dear Heloise:

I found that running a strip of nylon net through the cracks and crevices in the high chair is the best method yet for cleaning out the spilled food.

Dear Heloise:

When I hang my little girl's underwear and little boy's shorts on the line, I put them over the line with the sides hanging down. I use one clothespin on each article.

When they are dry, I remove the clothespins and lift the garments off the line. . .already folded in half and ready to put away.

Don't throw away that old shower curtain.

Dear Heloise:

When using the vaporizer in my two small children's room, I put it in the playpen before turning it on.

Thus, I don't have to worry about them getting up in the night and stumbling into the vaporizer and getting burned.

Dear Heloise:

In a rush for an early morning appointment, I discovered I was out of cream or milk for my coffee.

I at once thought of the vanilla ice cream in the refrigerator.

I put a little of it in my cup of coffee. Presto! I've never had a better cup of coffee.

Nell Montgomery

Dear Heloise:

When I go shopping and I have to lift my daughter to sit her in the shopping cart, I place my hands under her armpits and I tell her to jump.

As she jumps up, I lift her. This takes a great deal of her weight off my arms and back, and she doesn't seem as heavy to lift. I find this easier.

Betty Longhini

• • •

Dear Heloise:

Try using a large, thick bath towel (an old one, or a "second" bought on sale) for an inside doormat.

Fold in half, then fold again. When one side is dirty, turn over or refold.

That way you have eight clean sides before you have to wash it.

It is thick on the floor, but is easy to launder and dries fast on the line.

Don't Let It Happen to You!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last night I went to sleep with the pillow over my ears to drown out the noise of my parents' quarreling. I am the oldest of six and I feel sort of responsible for the younger ones. My folks have been fighting ever since I can remember.

They fight about little things, like who put gas in the car last, and also over big things like money, and my father's not spending enough time with my little brothers.

Abby, this is giving me a nervous stomach because they fight a lot at the supper table. What can a 14-year-old girl do?

SICK OF FIGHTING

DEAR SICK: The only thing you can do, is to remember it. And make sure you don't give your children the same kind of unpleasant memories.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "insulted" wasn't fair. It was in response to guests who complained because the guest room they were offered was poorly furnished. "They obviously do not want guests," you stated.

After all, some families cannot obtain everything at once. We have a $500 bed (I am six feet, seven inches tall and weigh 250 pounds), but we have a $17 roll-away bed in our "guest room," which also doubles as a study with books stacked to every corner. We enjoy having guests, but we have not had the funds to furnish our guest room as we would like.

Someday we will have better accommodations. But in the meantime, I hope our visits together will make up for their having to sleep on a roll-away bed in a crowded room.

ONE OF YOUR EDITORS

DEAR EDITOR: Sorry about that, boss, but the guest wrote, "They have a beautiful, push-button home with every modern convenience imaginable. There is nothing too good for them or their children." From that, I inferred it was not so much a shortage of cash, but consideration. I could have been wrong.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: Altho we are past 60, we have been married only a few years. This question has come up several times and we are both rather puzzled about what is proper.

When my husband and I take a single woman in our car for a ride, where should she sit? Between my husband and me? Or next to the car door and let me sit by my husband?

Also when we are walking down the street, should my husband walk between the two of us, or should he walk on the outside with me next to him, and the other lady on the inside, next to me?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: In the car, you should sit next to your husband. While walking, be a little more generous and "share" your husband with the other lady. It will enable him to assist both of you, should either stumble.

See Enforcement Lagging on New Daylight Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government — at least partly because of confusion — may take it easy this year in acting against errant cities that fail to fully observe the new uniform daylight saving time law.

But next year, watch out!

Last April 14, President Johnson signed the Uniform Time Act of 1966, a law designed to end many years of confusion resulting from the semi-annual time-changing that took place on different dates in thousands of communities.

The law fixed the Daylight Saving Time period from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October. The switchover to the new system is to be in two phases.

In the first phase all communities wishing to observe Daylight Saving Time must do so for the full time period. That started last April.

The second phase, to become effective next April, requires that entire states must either observe or not observe the faster time. Unlike this year — and past years — there can be no partial observance of daylight saving time in any state.

The legislation also gave the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to enforce the law.

The ICC could go to court for an injunction to prevent any community from setting daylight saving time on dates other than those specified in the federal law.

But the ICC isn't going into court — at least not this year.

One reason, an ICC official says, is that "we believe states and communities should be left to their own devices to comply. We prefer always to proceed without bringing people into court."

Another reason, say ICC sources, is that the law is not clear about when the entire act — including the enforcement provisions — becomes effective.

They note that while part of the law went into effect last April, the entire measure doesn't become effective until next April. They feel their authority to go to court this year might be challenged.

There could be some confusion about next year.

Legislation setting up a Department of Transportation would turn over to the new agency enforcement of the daylight saving law, an ICC spokesman says. The measure, which the House has passed, is being considered by the Senate Government Operations Committee.

So, it may be the ICC never will get to enforce the new law.

Says Rockefeller Deceiving Public On River Cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., accuses Gov. Rockefeller of deceiving the public in predicting a cleaned-up Hudson River by 1970, under a $1.7 billion state anti-pollution program.

In fact, Ottinger told a Senate committee Wednesday, it will cost $8.5 billion and take 10 years or more to eliminate pollution from the river.

Addressed Committee

Ottinger addressed the Senate Interior Committee as it took up Hudson River legislation that Ottinger is seeking over Rockefeller's protests.

The House approved the measure Tuesday after drastically amending Ottinger's version of a plan to launch machinery for preservation and development of the Hudson River.

The bill gives congressional consent to a federal-state compact that would include New York and New Jersey and also could include Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The measure requires federal agencies to consult with the Interior Department on projects affecting the valley.

The House Interior Committee eliminated from the original Ottinger bill its most controversial section, which would have given the interior secretary veto power over projects he considered in conflict with aims of the river-development plan.

Would Curb License

It also would have prevented issuance of a license for a Consolidated Edison power project at Storm King Mountain, near Cornwall, for at least three years.

The revised bill, however, exempted Con Ed from that requirement by a provision limiting authority to projects sought since last July 1.

Meanwhile, Con Ed filed with the Federal Power Commission Wednesday additional testimony to support its application for the hydro-electric plant.

J. V. Cleary, president of Con Ed, listed benefits from the project as reduction of air-pollution in the New York City area, additions to recreational resources near Cornwall, and restoration of scenic beauty to "a rundown waterfront area."

Company officials estimated the total cost would be $183,598,500.

Would Be Accepted

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., told Wednesday's hearing that he and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., sponsors of the original version in the Senate, would accept the revised measure.

Ottinger said it would take $6.5 billion to clean up New York State waters alone and another $2 billion for the elimination of pollution from New Jersey waters that flow into the Hudson.

"There is no crueler hoax that can be played than to tell the people of New York that the job of cleaning up the Hudson River will be easy or cheap."

Ottinger said his estimate of the cost had come from several federal agencies working on water-pollution problem.

Studies Indicate Big Coast Quake May Be Brewing

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Is a major quake brewing in the bowels of the earth beneath Southern California?

New studies showing storms of tiny tremors along one of the big faults (cracks) in the earth's crust in this area — and dead calm along another large fault — were reported Wednesday at a meeting of the American Geophysical Union at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"We don't know enough about earthquake prediction yet to say what this means," Dr. James Brune of the California Instisute of Technology s Seismological Laboratory said in an interview.

Cite Theories

"There are theories that swarms of these microquakes may precede big shocks. It is also possible that lack of activity along a fault may indicate a strain is building up between the faces of the fault that could result in an earthquake of large magnitude."

Several seismologists in recent years have predicted that Southern California is overdue for a major earthquake. Records indicate big tremors in this area come about 100 years apart and the last one was in 1857.

One theory is that it takes 100 years or so for enough strain to build up to cause a major earthquake, and that this interval may be lengthened by microquakes relieving the strain. If there are no microquakes, this could mean the fault is locked and strain is building up without being relieved, or it could mean there is no strain in that area.

Measure Microquakes

A team of researchers headed by Brune last year began measuring microquakes along the southern part of the San Andreas Fault, a jagged crack that runs from the coastline north of San Francisco southeastward into Mexico.

They found virtually no activity along the fault from Palmdale, 70 miles north of Los Angeles, to Cajon Pass, 100 miles east of Los Angeles.

At Cajon Pass — a break in the mountains north of San Bernardino — another large fault, called the San Jacinto, branches southward from the San Andreas.

From this point southward both the San Andreas and the San Jacinto have had up to 16 microquakes per day, Brune said.

"The San Jacinto is currently the most active fault in Southern California," he added. "It is too early to say what this means, but it probably is related to some motion along the fault."

LBJ Campaigning for Slate Like Running for Reelection

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, campaigning for the Democrats like a man running for his own re-election, already has laid out the two themes he will hit hardest in this congressional election season.

Both were obvious before he began — the war in Viet Nam and the national economy — since they are the two problems uppermost in the public mind.

But it is the energy he has displayed so far — in spinning around the country, in the number of speeches he has made and the number of places he has visited, and the endless handshaking — that is impressive.

But there is also an obvious reason for the energy, besides his party loyalty.

If he hopes to be chosen for a second term in 1968, his foundation stone will be the number and the scope of his programs he can get through Congress between now and then.

The more Democrats he has in Congress to help him, the better his chances. So his whirlwind politicking so far this year, and for the rest of it, will have the long-range effect of campaigning for himself two years ahead of time.

In the House, where all 435 seats are at stake, the count now is 294 Democrats to 139 Republicans, with one vacancy in each party. That huge majority, if it can be retained, is Johnson's best hope for the future.

Publicly Republicans have been forecasting a gain this year of 40 or more seats. They used to talk of a gain of 30 but have worked their way up. But what they say in public is not necessarily what some of the best informed among them say in private. They're reluctant to be that optimistic.

In the Senate, Democrats outnumber Republicans 67 to 33, with 35 seats at stake in the election. In the Senate there may not be a shift of more than two seats in either direction.

But for Johnson — and no President has ever paid closer attention to what every member of Congress did, does or is likely to do — every vote counts.

This explains the energy, the trips, the handshaking. But getting out among the crowds, and being applauded, is probably a therapeutic reassurance to Johnson's ego, since opinion polls have shown him dropping in public approval.

What he says on Viet Nam has not varied very much and probably will not unless there is an unforeseen change. It can be stated briefly.

This country is in Viet Nam to stop Communist aggression against a neighbor and this country will stay there until the Reds give up trying to overwhelm their neighbor.

It's in the economic field that he can play a lot of variations on the same theme, as he showed in his speeches on Labor Day in the Middle West.

He promised to fight inflation, he explained how he was wrestling with the problem of holding prices without stifling economic growth, promised to help labor get rid of laws banning the union shop and at the same time appealed to labor to show restraint in seeking wage increases.

At the same time he hammered into his listeners' heads that this country has never been so prosperous as under the Democrats.

If there is a tax increase, it almost surely won't come until after the election.

Johnson has a number of times spoken forthrightly on the race problem but not much in his campaigning.

If the riots continue, he will have to get into that in some depth, and it's a touchy field, since the Negro vote is important to the Democrats. But so is the white vote. He may have his hands full before this is over.

Convention Hall Exudes Tired Air After Nomination

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Almost like the suddenly deserted Memorial Auditorium itself, a great deal of vitality appeared to have been drained from the State Democratic Convention after Frank D. O'Connor was nominated for governor.

The cavernous auditorium was littered with streamers, ruined posters and other debris. It exuded a tired air as the last of the crowd filed out.

And the delegates and other party offiicls also had a somewhat tired, bemused air about them.

It was almost as though, having nominated O'Connor and expended energy in a welcome for U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, the conventioneers were ready to call it a day.

The convention headquarters at the Statler Hilton Hotel was more subdued Wednesday night than on the eve of the convention Tuesday.

Where crowds of people had flocked through the halls, only a comparative few stood in small knots and discussed the day's events — and what might happen today.

Following the 29 minute demonstration for Howard J. Samuels—who lost to O'Connor —and a 20-minute period of pandemonium for O'Connor, almost any amount of noise had a tendency to sound quiet by comparison.

But even so, the lack of throbbing drums in the hotel lobby early today, and the death of people, created an almost uncanny feeling that something had happened to a whole convention.

Firemen to Push Fund Drive, $400 Collected So Far

A donation of $250 from the Ladies Auxiliary, a preliminary report on the current fund drive, results of the Rawhide Ranch refreshment concession, and the monthly fire activity report of Fire Chief Duncan Wilson were items on the agenda of the meeting of Woodstock Fire Co. No. 3 of Lake Hill.

The gift from the Ladies Auxiliary was accompanied by a letter which designated that the $250 was to be utilized for the purchase of a plectron alarm unit for use of the company's captain, and the balance was to be used to equip the second tank truck now under construction by the members of the fire company. President Walter Stone received the ladies' donation.

The fund drive report, which began August 14, indicated about half of the territory had been covered by the solicitators. Henry P. Eighmey, drive chairman, said over $400 had been collected to date, and the drive would be continued by the firemen until all citizens in the territory served by the fire company had been contacted. A brochure indicating the services offered by the fire company, a telephone sticker for reporting emergencies, and a card containing other telephone numbers are being distributed to each residence. Information relative to water sources and other pertinent facts are also being obtained by the solicitators.

A report from Alfred Ostrander, chairman of the refreshment concession at the rodeo at the Rawhide Ranch, indicated a profit of almost $200 on the project. The rodeo is a two-day annual event. Members of the fire company and the Ladies Auxiliary were in attendance.

Fire Chief Wilson reported to the company on the emergency calls for the month, and also said a testimonial dinner was being arranged, with details later. He spoke of a line officer's meeting held during the month which resulted in siren tests to be arranged at any time with the base station, calls to be made direct to the base station for in and out of service reports, stressed that only active fire company members are covered by insurance and therefore only those in this category will be allowed to fight fires, the possibility of a four-company drill in Willow to burn an old house, the report of insurance coverage on firemen and fire police from outside the territory when called in for an emergency, and the announcement that three plectrons were on order for Company No. 3.

Chief driver H. Phillips Eighmey, reporting for Captain Alfred Ostrander, said two drills had been held during the past month with good attendance. Station check for the month was assigned to firemen Bollenbach, Chase, Carl and Douglas Eighmey.

Fire drills for September would be held on Sunday, Sept. 11 at 9:30 a. m., and Wednesday, Sept. 28, at 7 p. m., according to the chief driver. All active members are urged to attend these drills, originating at the firehouse. It was also reported all active members now have copies of the new by-laws of the company.

Paul Shultis, Institutional Representative of Boy Scout Troop 62, sponsored by the fire company, reported the troop was in need of a scoutmaster and two assistants. He said a meeting of all parents of boys who belonged to Troop 62 would be held at the firehouse in Lake Hill Monday, Sept. 26, at 8 p. m. Shultis indicated the Troop, due to reregister in November, might not continue if suitable leadership was not found, and he stressed the importance of all parents attending this meeting.

GOP Club Plans Catered Picnic

The annual picnic of Town of Saugerties Republican Club to be held Sunday at Cantine Memorial Field, Saugerties, is planned as a family affair. Tickets are nominally priced and children under 12 will be admitted free. People planning to attend may bring their own picnic tables and lawn chairs.

The affair will be catered by "Sparky" Greco, proprietor of the Flamingo Restaurant. Food will be served buffet style and liquid refreshments will also be served.

Musical entertainment will be supplied by "The Toronados," a popular musical group from the area, comprised of Robert Musillo, Robert Farris and Stephen Salisbury.

The Republican Club had sought to have Governor Nelson Rockefeller or one of his running mates attend the affair, but was advised that due to the fact that the picnic came so closely on the heels of the Republican State Convention, the campaign schedule of the candidates prevented them from attending. However, the governor will be visiting in Ulster County Sept. 13.

Those who plan to attend the picnic are Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican candidate for Congress from the 28th Congressional District; Jay P. Rolison, Republican candidate for State Senate; Kenneth L. Also planning to attend are Senator R. Watson Pomeroy, H. Clark Bell and S. James Matthews, Republican candidates for delegate to the State Constitutional Convention, and William Keyser, Republican candidate for Ulster County Coroner.

Tickets may be obtained from any club member or from Town of Saugerties Republican committeemen. For further information, call Bernard Rinaldi.

Fish Points Up Higher Costs Of Grocery Items

POUGHKEEPSIE—"A bag of groceries which would have cost the housewife, in my district about $4 five years ago now costs her more than $10," Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican Candidate for Congress from the 28th District, pointed out today.

"Inflation is a sneak thief," Fish said. "Not until we see the figures do we realize how much it is costing us."

Fish added that the worst part of inflation is that it is concentrated on the one commodity which both rich and poor must have in order to survive—food.

Take a typical grocery list, look at supermarket prices as reflected in ads five years ago, and make a comparison with today's prices, the Republican candidate pointed out. Coffee, for instance, was 65 cents a pound then, now 89 cents; sugar 55 cents then, now 63 cents; bread has gone from 20 cents to 30 cents for a pound loaf; peanut butter, 34 cents then, 45 cents now; butter, 69 cents up to 91 cents; eggs, 53 cents up to 75 cents; bacon, 59 cents to $1.09 a pound; hot dogs, 49 cents in 1959 are now 95 cents a pound.

"It is no longer necessary to have help in carrying home $10 worth of groceries," Fish pointed out.

"My opponent says there is no inflation," the GOP candidate went on, "certainly any housewife knows better, no matter how many times he denies it."

"Incomes have gone up in five years," Fish added, "but it is ridiculous to assume that every family's income has more than doubled in that period of time, as have so many items of food."

Conservatives Blast Dems, GOP On Red Camps

The Conservative Party candidate for State Senator in the 38th District today lashed out at candidates in general and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick in particular for ignoring the Communist menace in the United States.

Frank E. Becker, the Conservative candidate, said that the candidates for office are becoming aware that the Communist menace actually exists.

He cited the recent disclosure of the Communist camp in Dutchess County. He said "Six weeks ago our Great Society Congressman wouldn't even admit that we have any Communists in Washington and now he cries outrage that the Communists have a camp right in Dutchess County."

"But Camp Unity (the Dutchess camp) is not the only leftist camp in the Hudson Valley," Becker alleged. "I must tell you of a camp in Ulster County near Accord called Camp Twin Link. We met some of the children who attended this camp at the Ulster County Fair. They are reminiscent of the cold-blooded Hitler Youth of the 1930's.

Becker continued, "We need a full scale investigation of this camp and any other camps in New York State which are teaching alien political philosophies. When government becomes so big, so unwieldy, and so stupid that the Communists can get tax subsidies for their brain-washing programs right here in the Hudson Valley, then it's time we cleaned house."

First Lady on Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson launches a four-day, pre-election trip to three Western states Sept. 20 to boost scenic highways, parks, dams and Indian crafts.

The trip—the First Lady's first beauty and conservation journey since mid-June — will take her to California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Sources said it is hoped the visit, billed by the White House as solely in the interest of improving America's visage, would help California Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown in his race for re-election against Republican Ronald Reagan.

The general outline of the cross-country trip was announced today by the White House. Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to the First Lady, said more details will be announced later.

Resnick Disputes Gotham Official On Dairy Prices

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick (D.-Ellenville) today stated that New York City Markets Commissioner Samuel J. Kearing indicated his "gross misunderstanding of the dairy situation" by his recent proposal to establish an agency to fix dairy prices at wholesale, retail and door-to-door levels.

In a letter to Mayor John V. Lindsey, Congressman Resnick said, "As a member of the House Agricultural Committee, I have made a thorough study of the price and supply situation of milk, butter, cheese, and ice cream in New York State and in the nation, as well. I believe that a black market is on its way. By limiting the price paid to farmers Mr. Kearing's proposal will bring this black market sooner and in a more dangerous form."

Gravely concerned with the plight of the farmer, Resnick said, "The farmer has long received an inadequate price for his milk. As a result, we have lost hundreds of dairy farmers and dairy cows in the past few years, and the future looks even more bleak unless the farmer can be assured of receiving a fair price for his products.

"If the price that the farmer receives is fixed, production will fall further, a major shortage will result, and a black market with very high prices will be created, warned Resnick.

"A man in Mr. Kearing's position should understand this. Yet, on Monday, September 5th, in referring to the Federal Milk Marketing Orders, the New York City Markets Commissioner stated, We already fixed the price of milk on the producer's level. I would hope that the Commissioner realizes, said Resnick, that these marketing orders fix only a minimum price, not a maximum price, and furthermore, this minimum price has been insufficient to maintain adequate production of dairy products.

"We need a positive program to stimulate production and I would begin with such steps as direct production payments to farmers. Unless we act affirmatively and immediately to alleviate this situation, we will soon see the day when the problem will not be few dairy products at high prices, but no dairy products at any price."

Montana is bounded on the north by three Canadian Provinces — Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

Seek for Causes Of Negro Rioting In Georgia City

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — While police maintained an alert against further rioting by Negroes, city officials and white and Negro community leaders sought today to pinpoint causes and prevent a recurrence.

Ten Negroes were jailed Wednesday after police broke up a leaflet-distribution gathering at the spot where several hours of violence began the day before, shattering the city's image of racial harmony.

But the day was primarily one of meetings. A major point of discussion was what to do about Stokely Carmichael and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, which he heads.

"Atlanta is not by far a perfect city but it is too great to be destroyed by simple-minded bigotry," said the Rev. Samuel Williams, local president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

He spoke after a two-hour meeting of the Atlanta summit conference, a body of Negro leaders from various organizations.

Many of those present were critical of the SNCC role in the rock-and-bottle - throwing, burning and overturning of vehicles which erupted Tuesday after an Atlanta policeman shot a fleeing Negro man, now hospitalized in fair condition.

"Our main concern here is Stokely Carmichael," said the Rev. Otis Smith, "whether or not we have a riot is up to him."

Carmichael was in the area before the rioting began but was not seen there later. Two SNCC members, William Ware and Bobby Vance Walton, 20, were arrested during the disturbance on charges of inciting to riot.

Replying to the criticism, Carmichael said, "SNCC did not and could not start a rebellion."

"This was started by an act," he said in a statement to a radio station (WAOK), "a white policeman shooting down a black man in a black community."

Not Smoky

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Bass Jr., of Nashville, didn't savor the idea of being near growling black bears which tore a car seat and ripped a gash in the Bass tent in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park

"I think they were hungry," Bass said, as he and his wife headed for a motel.

Farmers to Hold County Meeting In Britt's Store

In a statement released today, Joseph Sauer, chairman of the Ulster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee named some of the requirements necessary for a person to be eligible for election to the County Committee.

The committee will be elected by farmer-chosen delegates to a County Convention to be held on Sept. 16 at Britt's Department Store, Kingston at 1 p. m. The convention will be open to the public, and any person interested in observing the voting procedure may attend. However, only farmer-delegates to the convention may participate in the election process.

A candidate for the ASCS County Committee must be eligible to vote in the county, must be a resident of the county, and generally must not have been actively engaged in politics, such as serving as a member of a political committee or doing political ward work. Also, he must not be a full-time employee of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Chairman Sauer added that there were other restrictions and requirements concerning a candidate for the county committeeman post, but that these were the important ones.

Priest Is Jailed On Intrusion Charge

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest was arrested today when he refused to leave St. Peter's Hospital here, police said, after attempting to see a hospital director to discuss a complaint of a Negro employe.

The Rev. Donald J. Bauer, pastor of the Corpus Christi Church in South Onondaga, near Syracuse, was jailed in lieu of $50 bail on charges of disorderly conduct and unlawful intrusion.

Father Bauer and three union leaders had been turned down in requests for an appointment with Sister Mary Janet, director of administration at the hospital.

They sought to discuss the complaint that a Negro employe's work hours had been slashed because of union activity.

Also arrested was David W. Patrick, president of Local 200 of the Building Service Employe's Union. He was freed in bail.

Another Faces Charge For Refusing Service

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP) — A second soldier faces general court-martial today for refusing to go to Viet Nam. The first, Pvt. Dennis Mora of New York, was sentenced to three years of hard labor, a dishonorable discharge and forfiure of pay.

Mora, 25, stood at attention Wednesday as his sentence was passed by a 10-officer court after 18 minutes of deliberation. Seconds later, he was smiling at his family in the court room.

A defense attorney said the verdict would go through military appellate procedures, then would be appealed to the U.S. Military Court of Appeals, composed of three civilian judges appointed by the President.

Today, Pfc. James Johnson, 20, also of New York, goes on trial for the same charge. Both soldiers told a news conference in New York June 30 that they would not fight in Viet Nam. A week later, Army authorities picked them up and brought them here.

Hope for Accord On Limitation of State Medicaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee hoped to reach agreement today on a bill to limit the scope of federally aided state medical programs for those deemed needy.

Sources said Wednesday the committee would set $4,200 as the top income level for a family of four to be considered eligible for aid.

Under the most generous state plan now in existence, New York's new, controversial medical - aid law, a family of four with a net income of $6,000 would be eligible for aid in paying medical bills.

The House committee neared agreement on the measure's provisions Wednesday but did not write a final draft.

Congressional concern about the medical - aid provisions in the federal Social Security law mounted when it became apparent that states were submitting for approval to the Health, Education and Welfare Department plans that would cost far more than originally anticipated.

The committee sources said that some estimates set the first - year cost to the federal government of the New York State program at $217 million, while federal officials initially had estimated the first - year cost for the nation at $238 million.

The sources also said the Ways and Means Committee was seeking a formula intended to prevent states from obtaining a disproportionate share of available federal funds.

The federal measure, one source said, will set a basic income eligibility of 90 per cent of the average, per capita income of the respective state, or 70 per cent of the national average, whichever is greater.

The basic eligibility then would be adjusted according to the number of children in the family. The present federal enabling act sets no income limits.

Under the proposed changes, the source said, New York State still would receive the $217 million in federal funds the first year, but would not obtain additional funds as the plan expanded.

The state estimates the overall cost at $531 million a year at first, but the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department said the total could go to $1.4 billion.

The amendments would require New York to cut back the scope of its program, under which about half of the state's 18 million residents are considered eligible.

The revisions would take effect next March 31.

Need $200 Million For Completion Of Viet Projects

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The expanding war has so altered initial estimates of U.S. construction programs in Viet Nam that another $200 million is required to complete projects already on the books, U.S. Navy officials said today.

The money is needed to finance projects currently being built by the RMK-BRJ Consortium, a group of U.S. construction companies that holds contracts worth $800 million.

The U.S. Navy supervises the construction.

To Improve Port

One example of the expanding costs is improvement of the Saigon port, where the initial estimate of $10 million has been upped to $50 million. The increase was caused by demands for more wharf space to handle the vastly increased sea traffic to Viet Nam from the United States.

The Department of Defense is now considering increased allocations to enable completion of current projects.

The deputy officer in charge of construction, U.S. Navy Capt. W. R. Rogers, said today: "This is not a critical situation Building is going ahead all over Viet Nam by our civilian contractors. This money is needed because the needs of our customers, the Army, Navy and Air Force, have expanded."

RMK-BRJ operates on a cost-plus basis ranging from 1.7 to 2.46 per cent of the eventual cost of a project. It is building jet airfields, deepwater ports, warehouses, power plants, ammunition storage depots, troop cantonments, hospitals and a wide variety of other projects.

51,700 Work Force

At its peak, the combine's work force numbered 51,700, the largest force ever assembled for an American construction program.

While some projects are costing more because of the expanding war, the over-all programming in Viet Nam is less at this point than envisaged a year ago, U.S. Navy officials said. For this reason, RMK-BRJ is geared up for more work than they are getting.

Four companies make up RMK-BRJ — Raymond International Inc. of New York, Morrison-Knudson of Boise, Idaho, Brown and Root of Houston, Tex., and the J.A. Jones Construction Co. of Charlotte, N.C.

The consortium has started laying off workers, including Americans Officials from the consortium are known to be unhappy because some contracts they feel they could have handled cheaper have gone to other contractors.

Charge Drunk Driving

Patrick Malloy, 41, of Bronx, was picked up Wednesday by Thruway state police on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Taken before Justice of the Peace Robert Stedge of Town of Ulster, he was held in $200 bail for a hearing on September 26. He was committed to jail pending supplying bail.

Foresee Stall Of Voting on CR Before Election

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The near-certainty that the Senate will not vote before the November elections on the hotly disputed open housing section of the civil rights bill is bringing quiet sighs of relief from some senators up for re-election.

As matters stand, the Democratic leadership is likely to have to put the House-passed bill on the shelf after a couple of weeks of snail-paced filibustering by its opponents. Even if the measure is revived later, it would be in a postelection session.

In two days of maneuvering, supporters of the legislation have not been able to keep enough senators on hand to transact business. After a 75-minute call of the roll produced the required 51 Wednesday, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., managed to get in a motion to take up the bill.

But the Senate quickly turned to a $3.5-billion foreign aid authorization. After it sent that bill along to President Johnson by a 33-25 vote, the quorum vanished. When an hour's effort failed to get enough members back, Hart gave up and moved for adjournment for the day.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called the outcome "a disgraceful exhibition of doing nothing." He said opponents and proponents of the bill were equally guilty of absenting themselves.

"Unfortunately," he said, "you've got a lot of them campaigning and that seems to be taking precedence."

Appears Hell-Bent for Moscow Collision

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China's actions and words these days suggest that the men now emerging at the top of the heap in Peking consider Moscow a threat to their chances of nailing down and insuring their power.

Foreign Minister Chin Yi's statement in Peking about the possibility of talks with the United States on Viet Nam and the statement by the Chinese ambassador in Warsaw, full of belligerence toward the Americans, are not so contradictory as they might seem.

Badly Needs Outside Foe

It all seems to mean that the Peking regime does not want to get involved in war with the United States. But it badly needs an outside enemy to excuse internal measures. It could hardly do without the United States as an enemy now and apparently wants to add the Soviet Union to its list of foes for good measure.

Whoever controls Red China now — and Defense Minister Lin Piao seems to be calling the shots — the regime seems hell-bent for collision with Moscow. Meanwhile, around the Red world, everybody is getting into the act. Peking may be happily anticipating an all-Communist donnybrook of global proportions.

Communist parties in Europe now comment freely, frequently and acidly on Red Chinese antics. At the same time, all display worry that a contagion which has swept China might spread beyond its borders and prove, as the Bulgarian party said, "most dangerous" to Communist world aims.

The Bulgarian party, faithful echo of Moscow, warns that China's purge, which Peking calls "the great proletarian cultural revolution," might spread to other countries and "create difficulties in uniting the people's masses." In Communist language, "people's masses" means Communist parties. The statement reflects Moscow's worry that more splintering and confusion are in prospect under the hammer blows from Peking.

Few Probabilities

Peking's latest official actions seem incomprehensible unless one considers a few probabilities.

— That there has been a strong pro-Moscow element in the Peking leadership and that the Kremlin must be represented as wholly wicked if the "antirevisionist" leaders are to nail down their authority for good.

— That in the midst of the struggle and confusion in Red China, the emerging leadership wants to force Moscow to make the first move and take the blame for breaking the slender thread still holding the two together.

The latest sequence of events seems to make Moscow the main target of Peking's maneuvers. First, Foreign Minister Chen talked to Japanese visitors about Viet Nam talks, saying he didn't want to see the United States and China "come to a clash." This seemed to spark hopes in Washington of a change in Peking's attitude toward negotiations on Viet Nam.

Then the Chinese ambassador in Warsaw, after one of his innumerable meetings with the U.S. ambassador, accused the Kremlin of "singing a duet" with Washington about U.S.-Chinese reconciliation. Moscow had been needling China about those talks in Warsaw, the only point of U.S.-Chinese contact for years.

Hopes for a changed Peking attitude faded again.

But there was no real conflict between Chen Yi's remarks and those of his envoy in Warsaw, Chen — and Mao Tze-tung himself — had spoken before about not wanting a clash with the Americans.

Wants Final Rupture

The Chinese ambassador would not act on his own. He had specific orders. Evidently the idea was to surround Peking's position and defend it from Soviet insinuations that the Chinese, after all, were not all that tough in facing up to the Americans.

Since there has been no real change in attitude, there emerges a picture of the Kremlin and all "revisionists" as the main targets of such goings-on. One can surmise that Peking really wants a final rupture and is working hard to prod Moscow's patience to the breaking point.

Western Style Square Dancing Is Popular; Open House Gala Is Planned for Saturday

It will be western style square dancing Saturday night from 8-11 p. m. in the municipal auditorium, Kingston, and Don Blair will be doing the calling.

DON BLAIR

Sponsored jointly by the Lefooters Club and the Kingston Recreation Department, the gala open house fun night is expected to attract a capacity crowd. All adult couples are invited to attend.

It took the talents of Don and Mary Arthur of East Hampton, Mass., now residents of Saugerties, to organize a western style square dancing club in this area with the assistance of Don Blair. The club's first open house was held on September 12, 1964 in the Mt. Marion School. Approximately 50 couples signed up for the first class which ran for 21 weeks. Sessions were held every Friday night. On February 20, 1965, the Lefooters Square Dance Club graduated its first class of 22 couples.

Another class was started in March 1965 and 21 weeks later, the Lefooters graduated 30 couples. Thirty-two more couples were added to the roster of accomplished dancers by Feb. 12, 1966.

The Lefooters are now looking forward to their third year of activity and the fourth class. Western style square dancing is fun but knowledge of the steps is necessary. Classes will be held on Monday nights beginning Sept. 19 in the Hurley Reformed Church hall. The instructor will be Don Blair.

In addition to Don and Mary Arthur, founders of the local club, many others have contributed their talents to the growth and enjoyment of western style square dancing in Ulster County. They include Paul and Grace Clark, program chairmen; Floyd and Joan Perkins, secretaries; Stan and Bonnie Stempniak, treasurers; Charles and Barbara Stevens, hospitality; Bob and Alice Booth, publicity.

Directing activities for the Club now, which boasts a membership of 77 couples are the following:

Henry and Joan Yochmann, chairmen; Fred and Cynthia Fetty, program chairmen; Bill and Marge Tompkins, secretary; Richard and Marge Fredericks, treasurer; Ben and Shirley Hill, hospitality; Ron and Dixie Westerveldt, publicity.

About square dancing, one spokesman for the group told The Freeman, "New England has experienced a tremendous growth of western square dancing in the last decade. More than 80 clubs were formed in the Springfield area of Massachusetts alone. So many people throughout the New England States are now square dancing that the governors of five states have declared the week of October 9-15 as "Learn to Square Dance Week."

"Square dancing is a wholesome recreational activity. It contributes to the health and social well being of our citizens and community. It brings together men and women from all walks of life and requires no special skill or equipment. Participants can readily develop proficiency under the guidance of competent callers.

"Like our sister clubs in New York State, we in Ulster County want to grow in size and numbers. We feel that our State has a great potential. There is only one club in Poughkeepsie and one in Kingston at the present time. The Albany area has more than 15 clubs."

Doing The Right Thing

BY ELIZABETH L. POST

"I'LL LET YOU KNOW" IS NOT ENOUGH HOSTESS DESERVES A DEFINITE ANSWER

Dear Mrs. Post: One of my pet peeves is the phrase, "I'll let you know" in answer to an invitation. A friend of mine almost always says this instead of giving me a definite answer. It sounds as if she wanted to wait and see if anything better comes along before accepting my invitation. Don't you think this rude?—Valerie King.

Dear Mrs. King: Unless the "I'll let you know" is followed by some such phrase as "I have to talk to John and see if he has made any other ocmmitments," or "When I find out for certain that we will be in town that weekend," it is inexcusably rude not to give a definite answer.

Even when you qualify your response in such a way, you should make every effort to follow it up and let the hostess know at the earliest possible moment.

Dinner Guest On A Diet

Dear Mrs. Post: At a dinner party I attended last week, one of the guests sat throughout the whole meal and refused every bit of food that was passed to him, saying, "I'm terribly sorry, I'm on a diet. I thought this was dreadfully rude. Shouldn't he have either gone off his diet or refused the invitation?—Lorraine

Dear Lorraine: Yes, he should have refused the invitation explaining that he was on a very strict diet. Then if he really wished to join the party, he might have suggested to the hostess that he come in after dinner.

Engagement Ring Replaces Old Wedding Ring

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a widow and have just become engaged. My fiance will be giving me a ring very soon and my question is, when should I remove my wedding ring and what should I do with it?—Paula S.

Dear Paula: Since you are now engaged to be married again, you should remove your wedding ring immediately. Put it away safely and if you have a son, he might like to use it for his future bride.

"How to Plan and Budget Your Wedding" by Elizabeth L. Post, is now available to readers of this paper. Ideal for brides-to-be, their fiances and parents, this brand-new, 16-page booklet will help in preparing for the "perfect" wedding. West Coast Branch Of Huguenot Society Holds Conference

Descendants of New Paltz French Huguenot families and friends of the Huguenot Historical Society, New Paltz, N. Y. held a meeting at the Hotel Claremont, Berkley, Calif. on July 26.

Since there are so many members of the Society in California and the West Coast, a branch was organized by the president, Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, in 1962. Mrs. Wallace Martin of Eureka, Calif., Dr. A. Elting Bennett of LaFayette, Calif., and Mrs. John Carroll of Oakland, Calif. are the representatives on the West Coast. Hastings Harcourt of Santa Barbara is the Duzine representative for the area.

The representatives along with Mr. Hasbrouck who was in California this summer, held a reception at the Hotel Claremont, Berkley at 12:30 p. m. Those attending were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Martin of Eureka, Miss Amelie F. Gier and Miss Grace Gier of Oakland; Fred M. Kjelland of Alameda, Mrs. W. A. Lewis of Fortuna, Mrs. Blanche H. Knapp of Scotia, Mrs. Friederiche H. Jackson of Alamo, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bevier of Pacific Grove, Miss Suni Roberts, Mrs. Ella Searles, Mrs. Anah Roberts of Santa Rosa; Miss Josephine Deyo of Santa Rosa; Mr. and Mrs. G. Allen Lovell, San Francisco; Mrs. Philip Ursinger, Mrs. Andrew Ross of Daly City; George Hasbrouck, Camino, California; Mrs. Ethel Hargreaves, Mrs. Velma G. Stwers, W. R. Stivers, John Carroll, Mrs. Rosalie Monk, Oakland; Richard Green, Waterford, Calif.; Mrs. Thomas S. Gene Gatliff, Fannie Ryckman, Elston Jr., Carmel, Calif.; Betty Sheldon Lewis, Tulelake, Calif.; Dr. and Mrs. A. Elting Bennett, LaFayette, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Hasbrouck and sons, Charles and Edward from New Paltz, N. Y.

After a luncheon, a meeting was held in the Oakland Room. Members of the various family units and guests were introduced. A brief report was given by the president of the Society on improvements made on Huguenot Street and plans for the future. As funds for the purchase and improvements made to the stone houses come to a large degree from members at a distance from New Paltz, there were many questions concerning goals accomplished since 1962 and future needs of the Society. There were representatives from the Deyo, Hasbrouck, Bevier, Freer and Elting families present. Mrs. Lovell of San Francisco, editor of the Blauvelt News, was most helpful in noting how such newspapers can be of help to family associations.

Slides were shown of the houses and a display of important historic documents and items from each family was available. The meeting ended at 4:30. The officers for the West Coast were re-elected and it was decided that branch meetings might be alternated between the Bay Area and Los Angeles Area. Mr. Harcourt suggested that Santa Barbara might be a good place for the southern area.

Carol Ann Wiley Is Bride-Elect

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wiley of Glencrest Village, New Hartford, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter Carol Ann, to Terrence Robert Mellert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Mellert of Woodstock, former New Hartford residents.

Miss Wiley attended New Hartford Central School and was graduated from Penn Hall Preparatory School, Chambersburg, Pa., and Chandler School for Women, Boston, Mass.

Mr. Mellert is a graduate of New Hartford Central School and attended Utica College. He is majoring in music.

Mr. Mellert is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James G. Norton of Kingston. He is also the grandson of Mrs. William Mellert of Kingston and the late William Mellert.

Hasbrouck Visits Crispell Group in Scranton, Pa.

Each year, Crispells from all over the United States return to a small valley located near Scranton, Pa.—Noxen.

In the late 1700's, Thomas Crispell of Hurley, Ulster County, N. Y., went to Pennsylvania. There are more than 300 known descendants in the area.

Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, president of the Huguenot Historical Society, went to Noxen with his family on August 13th at the invitation of the Crispells to tell them about the Crispell Family Association founded in New Paltz on May 7. Over 90 members of the Crispell family were present at the gathering.

Following the presentation of the plans of the Crispell Family Association by Mr. Hasbrouck and a discussion period, it was decided by the Crispells of Pennsylvania to visit New Paltz. The Pennsylvania Branch will attend a special meeting of the Crispells in New Paltz on November 19.

Freer-Ausanio Nuptials Are Announced; Bride Chooses Wedding Gown of Lace

Miss Carol Helen Freer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Freer of Ulster Park, wed Justin Edward Ausanio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gennaro Ausanio of 235 Downs Street, Kingston, on Sunday, Aug. 28, 1966.

The wedding ceremony took place in Sacred Heart Church, Esopus, N. Y., at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Joseph A. Wall, CssR, officiating.

The altar was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and mums; organist Arthur Perry provided traditional wedding selections. Daniel Freer, brother of the bride, and John Freer, cousin, of Esopus, served as altar boys.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace gown fashioned with a scalloped neckline accented with crystals, fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves and a hooped skirt of tiers of lace ruffles with a sweep train. Her veil of silk illusion was shirred to a crown of pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis in cascade style.

Maid of honor for the bride was Miss Joanne Woinoski, 41 Hanratty Street, who wore a deep pink empire gown of georgette over taffeta with overskirt of georgette falling from the high, bow accented waistline.

Her headpiece consisted of a deep pink bow and veiling and she carried a cascade of pink carnations.

Mary Jane Freer, sister of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid in a light pink gown of georgette over taffeta, high waistline with self bow and ruffled sleeves. A tiny coronet of matching pink had long back streamers. She also carried pink carnations.

Joseph Misasi of Colonial Gardens was best man, while Dennis Donato, 221 Downs Street, Kenneth Kittle, 110 Florence Street, Jerry Ausanio, brother of the bridegroom, and George Freer, brother of the bride, served as ushers.

The reception was given at Reggie's Inn, New Paltz, N. Y., after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Canada. The brdie wore a navy and white tattersall check dress with navy coat and matching check lining. Her accessories and corsage were white.

Mr. and Mrs. Ausanio are both graduates of Kingston High School. The bride is employed by the New York Telephone Co. The bridegroom is attending Ulster County Community College and is employed by IBM.

The couple will reside at 235 Downs Street, Kingston, N. Y.

Preliminary Titles Are Announced by Beauty Judges' Panel

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — One beautiful teen-ager sobbed with joy and another bubbled with happiness.

The girls, from opposite ends of the nation, shared honors Wednesday night in the opening round of competition in the Miss America contest.

Miss California, Charlene Diane Dallas, 19, who was awarded her state title by default, performed a classical selection on the piano to take talent honors.

Miss New Hampshire, Nancy Anne Naylor, 19, won the swim suit competition. Her father, an Air Force pilot stationed in the Philippines, flew in as a surprise after a year's absence. He brought along her 15-year-old brother, Steven.

Nancy said she spotted her father, Lt. Col. Harold Naylor, as she paraded down the 120-foot runway in Convention Hall.

"I saw him there waving over the floodlights," she said backstage later. "I was thrilled."

Mrs. Naylor has been with Nancy at the family's home at Nashua, N.H.

Nancy, who lived and traveled throughout Asia and 42 states in this country, hopes for a career in the diplomatic service. She is a sophomore at the University of Colorado.

Miss California played "Toccata," by Khachaturian.

While calm and sure of herself onstage, the statuesque brown-haired beauty broke down in tears afterwards. "I am ecstatic," she sobbed.

Charlene became eligible for the pageant after the original Miss California surrendered her title to continue her education at California State College in Hayward, where she is a sophomore.

Charlene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dallas of Danville.

Safety Tips

Keep the ledge in front of the rear window free of all objects. A fast stop or rear-end collision can send deadly projectiles speeding toward the back of the driver's head. The ledge is no place for thermos bottles, cameras, flashlights, reels or anything else. If you stop suddenly and these items come roaring at 50 or 60 m.p.h. toward the back of your head, you've got problems.

Why We Say--

DUKE'S HOUSE: This complete expression, of course, is "People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones." It started with the Duke of Buckingham who led a mob to throw stones through Puritans' windows. But the Puritans retaliated with attacks on the Duke's house (which had many windows). When he complained to the king, the expression, "People who live in glass houses . . ." etc., was applied.

Penney Founder Will Mark 91st Birthday on 16th

James Cash Penney, founder of the nationwide chain of department stores bearing his name, will observe his 91st birthday Friday, Sept. 16.

Associates at the Penney store here will participate in the observance by sharing an appropriately decorated cake, according to manager Gordon Dew of the Kingston store, 318 Wall Street.

While he has not been directly involved in the company's management for a number of years, Penney continues to serve on the board of directors. This makes him one of the last retailing pioneers still active in the businesses they founded.

Penney has an office on the top floor of the company's 45-story headquarters building in New York and comes in almost every day of the work week when in the city.

One of Penney's favorite topics these days is opportunity—opportunity for young people to achieve success in business, especially retailing. Among requisites of a person entering retailing, he feels, are an interest in people, a capacity for hard work and a sound education. Says the department store chief founder.

"There is in retailing almost unparalleled opportunity for advancement and access to top management positions with excellent salaries."

Penney feels there is more opportunity for the individual today than ever before. This comment comes from a man who began his carer in 1895 paid $2.27 a month as a junior clerk in a small drygoods store.

Deadline Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Persons enrolled for doctor bill benefits under medicare have received notices from the Social Security administration to pay their $9 quarterly premium before Oct. 1.

Commissioner Robert M. Ball said more than 90 per cent of the 2.5 million persons sent the notices already have paid the fee.

If no payment has been made for three consecutive months, the protection is canceled and an individual cannot sign up again until Oct. 1, 1967.

Penitence Rites Set Saturday at Ahavath Israel

With the approach of the Jewish New Year, the Holy Day of Rosh Hashonoh, a season of penitence starts. To introduce the spirit of prayer and repentance, the Jewish people are called upon by religious custom to gather in the synagogues at midnight after the last Sabbath before Rosh Hashonoh to offer special liturgic arrangements of supplications. In Hebrew it is called Selichos.

The Selichos services will be held Saturday at 12 midnight, at Congregation Ahavath Israel. The sermonetter and prayers will be read by Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman, and the liturgy will be chanted by Cantor Larry Jacobs, assisted by the volunteer congregational choir, consisting of Margo Colen, Bob Beckwith, Sheldon Levy, Ben Schecter and Ralph Wahl.

Preceding the religious services at 10 p. m., a social gathering and supperette will be held in the vestry hall of the congregation, at which time the latest report on the new building will be given by the building committee to the congregation assembled, and the floor will be open for discussion on every phase of the building project.

All members of the congregation are being invited to this supperette and to the religious services which will follow.

Trump Play Is South Weakness

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

West opened the king of spades and shifted to the queen of trumps. South popped his king on the queen; cashed his ace and started on the diamond suit. He managed to discard one spade on the third diamond but West ruffed in at that point and proceeded to set South with two more spade tricks.

	NORTH ♠ 10 2 ♥ 8 4 ♦ K Q J 10 2 ♣ A J 10 9	8
WEST ♠ A K Q J ♥ Q J 10 ♦ 8 4 ♣ K 7 3 2		EAST ♠ 7 4 3 ♥ 3 2 ♦ 9 7 6 3 ♣ Q 8 5 4
	SOUTH (D) ♠ 9 8 6 5 ♥ A K 9 7 6 5 ♦ A 5 ♣ 6

Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			1 ♥
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ K

South proceeded to criticize North's raise to three hearts. South pointed out that North had shown at least 10 or 11 points when he bid two diamonds and that 11 points did not warrant the raise with only two trumps. North pointed out that South had gone right on to game with his own 11 high card point opening and that, in any event, the game contract would have made if West had started with three or more diamonds.

We aren't going to get involved in the merit or lack of it in North's three-heart bid. It wasn't the best raise ever given but it did have some merit. It is the sort of raise we give or withhold depending on how we feel about conditions in general at the time. As for South's rebid to four hearts we are all for it. He held a strong distributional hand and his partner had given him a delayed raise.

The partners failed to discuss the one real point of interest which is that South should have made his contract.

He had to lose a trump trick sometime. Why not right away while he still could keep a trump in dummy to guard against the spade suit? That way he woul deven make an overtrick unless West took his second spade right away.

Siena Golfer Leads ENYGA Field at Wiltwyck With 70

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

In 1928 there were 28 dailies publishing and 24 colleges playing football. Today, New York city has three remaining newspapers (with hopes for a fourth) and two intercollegiate football teams.

Columbia University is one and Wagner College is the other college football team still active in the metropolitan area. They may stay as long as the remaining newspapers.

• The Fiddler's Touch:

Leon Randall's two successive rounds of par golf in the Area Round Robin were the result of a spectacular display of chip shots and long approach putting. In both departments, the Wiltwyck veteran was phenomenal. He one-putted at least a dozen greens at Wiltwyck. . . Bill Van Aken's par-70 with eight birdies at Woodstock was one of the most bizarre rounds of golf this observer has ever seen. From tee to green, the Woodstock ace was the same superb golfer he has been all season. . . Despite his minus-10 rating, Ricky Barthel could still win it. But if he doesn't, he could have a lot to say about who does eventually take it—Randall or Van Aken.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Speaking of bizarre golf rounds, Ernie Schrimer, the Saugerties attorney, is alleged to have posted a par 70 at Twaalfskill without the benefit of a par—just bogeys, birdies and eagles. . . Pete Zeeh, the Ulster County tennis champion, banged up a knee playing touch football and couldn't defend his title. Reminds one of the Rocky Marciano incident. The Brockton Blockbuster retired undefeated as world heavyweight champion but his young son, with a bit of piggy back riding, shelved the old man for at least three weeks. . . A New York City attorney who won that $2,500 hole-in-one contest in Sullivan County is being chided by his friends. If he accepts the cash prize, he forfeits his amateur standing. The USGA rule is that amateurs cannot accept more than $200 (in merchandise). Anyway, you look at it the attorney is in a dilemma.

• The Tenpin Beat:

The absence of Kingston bowlers in the New York State Keglers Association, that new enterprise at Newburgh, is surprising to this observer. This looks like one of the best possible deals available to the bowler who can't afford the luxuries of the professional circuit. There is a separate division for handicap bowlers. A $2,500 payoff for first place in the open division such as that recently won by Jim Mack should be a tremendous lure to any bowler who can compete in his own backyard. We hate to think the Kingston bowlers are boycotting this new enterprise. To our knowledge, Herb Petersen is the only Kingstonian among the more than 400 members of the NYSKA. Other local hotshots have just and sufficient cause to bypass the association, we hope. . . Incidentally the 1967 National All Star will be held at St. Louis next May 19-28. Defending champions are Dick Weber and Joy Abel. On the subject of the All Star, isn't this the year the Hudson Valley proprietors are going to stage women's eliminations?

• The Last Season:

James Rattray, 6-2, 200-pound broth of lad from Port Ewen, is co-captain of the Kenyon College (Ohio) football varsity this season. A two-way player, Rattray was offensive end and defensive linebacker in 1965 when he was second on the squad with 31 pass receptions for 352 yards. Young Rattray also co-captains the lacrosse squad, even though he never played the game prior to college. He played basketball and football at St. Peter's Prep in Peekskill. He missed the last game of the 1965 season because of an injury but is in top shape for the upcoming campaign. Kenyon, located at Gambier, Ohio, plays in a 15-school conference that also includes Muskeegan, Wittenberg, Baldwin-Wallace, Ohio Wesleyan, etc.

Syracuse U. which built a national reputation on a ground crunching game featuring Jim Brown, Ernie Davis and now Floyd Little, may loosen up a bit this year. "We may throw at least four or five times a game," says Coach Ben Schwartzwalder.

Charles Murphy Has 34-36 for His 5th Victory

Charles Murphy, Jr., a Siena College golfer, carved out a 2-under par 34-36-70 Wednesday at Wiltwyck Country Club to capture his fifth Eastern New York Golf Association victory of the season.

Dr. Charles Kovacs and Tom Stenson of Wiltwyck shared low gross honors in Class B at 81 with George Gunderman of Rainbow. Dr. Kovacs had a low net of 70.

Dr. Harold Newman of Wiltwyck led Class C in both gross and net with 82-17-65.

Murphy birdied the second and eighth holes for a 2-under-par 34 on the front nine and had birdies on No. 12 and No. 16 to offset two bogeys for even par 36 coming in.

The Siena swinger had previously won tournaments at Berkshire Hills, Woodstock, McGregor Links and Mt. Anthony. He finished six strokes ahead of runnerup Paul Fasulo, an 8-handicapper from Ballston Spa, who carded 76 to lead Bill Macarelli of Catskill by a shot.

Attorney Seymour Werbalowsky was one stroke off the pace in Class B with an 82. There Wiltwyck golfers finished among the leaders in Class C—Milt Dubin, 84-14-70; C. Lincoln Christensen, 91-20-71; and Al R. Heisman, 88-17-71. Ed Kovacs posted 82-8-74 in Class A.

Flag Tournament To Mrs. Kennedy

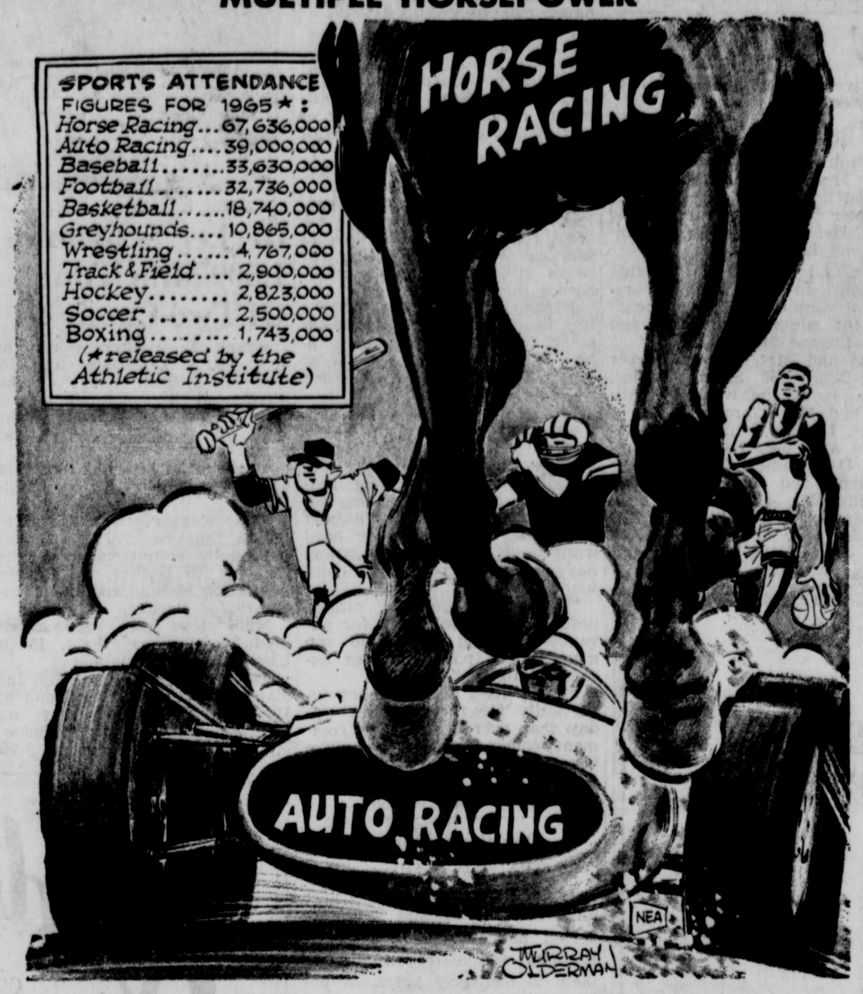

Mrs. Harry Kennedy, the club champion, finished in the 18th cup with her allotment of handicap strokes to win the Flag tournament for Woodstock Country Club women. She also captured low gross and low net honors with 83-13—70.

Mrs. Alex Sharpe Jr. finished two inches from the 18th cup with 93-22—71. Mrs. Joseph Fitzsimmons and Mrs. Walter Van Wagenen ended in the 17th cup, with net 74's.

Mrs. Kermit Schwartz, 97-27—70, placed first in the Kickers tournament. Runnerup was Mrs. Edward Gormley, 110-35—75.

Mrs. Gormley also captured the 9-hole tournament with a 34 net on 52 gross and 18 handicap. Mrs. Charles Quinn was runnerup on 59-18—41.

Hidden Player Trick Pays Off

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Wizard of Candlestick Park did it again.

Just one day after he had extracted a three-hit performance from the previously listless Ray Sadecki, San Francisco Manager Herman Franks played presto-chango, now you see him, now you don't, with his line-up Wednesday and, lo and behold, the Giants beat the Dodgers again, 3-2 in 12 innings.

The hidden player trick involved one Frank Johnson about whom just a bit more than nothing was known. And for good reason. Until Tuesday, Johnson was spending his days at the Giants' Pacific Coast League farm club in Phoenix, where he hit .315.

With the score tied 2-2 in the bottom of the ninth and a chance to climb to within half a game of the National League-leading Pittsburgh Pirates at stake, Houdini Franks decided it was the perfect time to test Johnson and he put him out in left field.

Johnson didn't discredit himself out there, but as the game went into the 10th inning, he came to the plate with Willie Mays on first and two out. If Franks had not juggled the lineup, the batter would have been Jim Hart, who had produced the Giants' only runs to that point with a two-run homer back in the first inning. Johnson struck out and Franks must have wondered what happened to his magic wand.

History Repeats

The game sailed along into the 12th, entertaining the record Dodger Stadium crowd of 54,993 no end, when history repeated itself in record time. With two out, Dodger reliever Joe Moeller missed on three close pitches to Mays and decided to throw the fourth one wide purposely rather than let Willie have a whack at an easy one.

Up came Johnson, again and he singled to right-center and then left the wizardry to Mays, who somehow made it all the way home, scoring when Dodger catcher John Roseboro dropped the ball.

In the only other National League games, Atlanta beat Pittsburgh 8-3 and St. Louis edged Houston 6-5.

Snuffs Two Rallies

The Dodgers threatened in their half of the 12th, loading the bases, as they had in the 11th. But, as he had the inning before, Frank Linzy personally took care of the third out. In the 11th, Linzy struck out Jim Barbieri and in the 12th, he got Jim Lefebvre to bounce one back to the mound and outraced him to the bag.

The Dodgers are now in third, 1½ games behind Pittsburgh.

Bill Woodward's bases-loaded single in the fifth drove in two runs and broke a 3-3 tie sending Atlanta to its victory over the Bucs. It was Pittsburgh's third straight defeat and the Braves' eighth triumph in nine starts.

Tim McCarver hit a two-run homer in the eighth off Mike Cuellar for the St. Louis decision. Dave Giusti had held the Cards hitless through five innings. Mike Shannon homered in the seventh for St. Louis.

Southside Wins Series Opener

The highly favored Southside Men's Club had to struggle to defeat Ted's Essos, 10-8, in the first game of the consolation round finals in the Saugerties Softball League.

John Freligh, the winning pitcher, needed relief from brother Gordon in the sixth inning and seventh rally by Ted's had to be smothered to insure the victory.

Woody Sperl, the loser, was nicked for 12 hits, including three each by Don McCaig and Bill McCormick. Each hit a double and two singles. Bob O'Connor slashed two triples and a single for Ted's.

Denning Praises Success of First Junior Program

The following letter was submitted by M. Leslie Denning of Woodstock, president of the 1966 Mid-Hudson Junior Golf Classic.

"Now that the 1966 Mid-Hudson Junior Golf Classic has concluded its first successful season, mention should be made of the two men who were most instrumental in establishing the tournament.

"Bill Van Aken, chairman of the Golf Committee of the Woodstock Country Club, and Charles J. Tiano, sports editor of the Freeman ,are the two persons who did more than anyone else to supply the enthusiasm which started the ball rolling.

"A committee was formed by representatives from each participating club: George Shirick and Leon Randall, Wiltwyck; Mrs. Alice Beehler, Red Hook; Jack Purvis, Twaalfskill; William Gressick, Catskill (who also represented the PGA, under whose rules the tournament was conducted) and also Tiano, Van Aken and I from Woodstock. The Board of Governors of each club gave their full support to the project.

"A total of 56 boys from the five clubs participated, 44 of them in at least three matches, one match being played at each of the member clubs over a period of two months. Trophies, medals and certificates were awarded at a luncheon held at Wiltwyck on Aug. 23, the final day of the tournament.

"The Junior Classic was held to provide interest and a competitive outlet for our junior golfers from the age of 12 through 17.

"I am very proud to comment on the good behavior, good sportsmanship and an over all feeling among the boys that the pleasures and companionship enjoyed were well worth the effort.

Yup, Yanks Dead Last

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now Ralph Houk knows how Frank Chance felt 53 years ago.

Chance, a Hall of Famer who starred at first base for the Chicago Cubs, managed the New York Yankees in 1913 when they were in last place on the next-to-last day of the season.

Today, Houk's Yankees occupy the American League cellar for the first time in September since that day in 1913.

Houk undoubtedly hopes things turn out as well for him as they did for Chance — the 1913 Yankees came on to win on the final day and finish seventh in an eight-team league.

The Yankees, winners of 29 pennants and 20 World Series, plunged into the basement Wednesday night by losing 3-2 to league-leading Baltimore while Boston was edging Cleveland 5-4 and Kansas City was beating California 6-3.

In other AL games Wednesday, Minnesota nipped Chicago 6-4 and Detroit downed Washington 4-0.

As last-place teams have a habit of doing, the Yankees lost their game the hard way — Baltimore scoring the winning run in the eighth inning without getting a hit.

The Orioles loaded the bases on a walk, a sacrifice-fielder choice on which pitcher Mel Sottlemyre failed to throw out the man at second and an intentional walk to Frank Robinson.

Brooks Robinson then hit a hard grounder to third base which Clete Boyer bobbled and then attempted to get a double play instead of going to the plate for a force out.

Boston erupted for four runs in the sixth in beating Cleveland. Jose Tartabull's bases-loaded single brought home the first run and broke a 1-1 tie.

Danny Cater was the big man in Kansas City's victory. He doubled home a run in the first and singled home a pair in the seventh. Jack Aker picked up his 24th save for the Athletics, stopping a threat after California loaded the bases in the sixth.

Earl Wilson gained his ninth straight victory and 18th of the season against nine losses for Detroit by limiting Washington to three hits. The Tigers got three of their runs in the opening inning when the first four batters got hits.

Loses Tourney; Named to U. S. Golf Cup Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., who lost the U.S. Amateur Golf Tournament in a playoff Sunday, was named Wednesday to the U.S. World Cup team for the fourth straight year.

Joining him will be Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, Calif.; Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., and Bob Murphy of Gainesville, Fla.

Don Allen of Rochester, N.Y., Jim Wiechers of Atherton, Calif., and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., were picked as alternates and Jess Sweetser of Washington, D.C., the non-playing captain.

The U.S. Golf Association made the selections for the tournament for the Eisenhower Trophy at Mexico City Oct. 27-30 in which amateur golfers from 27 nations will compete.

Max Might Maul Clay But Bookies Back Champ, 10-1

(AP) — Karl Mildenberger says he sees something to worry Cassius Clay, but Clay isn't letting it bother him.

Just as Max Schmeling said, "I see something" before knocking out Joe Louis in 1936, Mildenberger said Wednesday, "I've seen all Clay's fights and I think I have found something to make him worried."

Schmeling had referred to a weakness in Louis' style that enabled him to upset him, but Joe corrected the situation in their second meeting in 1938, knocking Schmeling out in a round.

Louis, an adviser to Clay, also saw a comparison between the upcoming fight and his loss to Schmeling.

"Clay won his last three or four pretty easy," the former champion said. "Clay might let down a little on this one, just like I did."

'68 Olympics in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The new head of Mexico's Olympic Organizing Committee says all installations will be completed in time for the 1968 Games to be held here.

Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, who succeeded former President Adolfo Lopez Mateos when he resigned the past last month because of ill health, said Wednesday there should be no cause for alarm.

Mexico so far has not announced when the installations will be constructed or where.

Has Son on Grid Team

Army General Charles (Monk) Meyer Was Football Star at 137 Pounds

WEST POINT, N. Y., — Too small for the Army Plebe team but good enough to be mentioned for all-America honors before he graduated, that was the story 30 years ago of Charles Robert (Monk) Meyer, now a Brigadier General in Viet Nam.

There's another Monk at West Point this fall but he doesn't fit the mold of his father. He weighs 200 pounds against 137, stands 6-3 against 5-10 and plays linebacker on defense while the general was an offensive halfback. They wear different numbers, young Monk is 61 while his father favored 66. And Charles, Jr. didn't have to bring his own shoes to school as his father did in 1933.

Colonel Red Reeder, USA-Ret., prolific writer on cadet life at the Military Academy and military history, was one of the Plebe coaches that year. Red remembers that they didn't have a place on the Plebes for New Cadet Meyer, consequently Meyer received leftover equipment. There weren't any shoes, so Meyer wrote home to his high school coach in Pennsylvania and borrowed his prep day pair.

These shoes must have contained the ingredient for Meyer became a reserve halfback on the 1934 team. He scored touchdowns against Davidson, Sewanee and The Citadel and passed for one against the Citadel.

Led Win Over Yale

He came into greatness in 1935. He sparked both touchdown drives in the 13-0 win over Harvard. He played 60 minutes in the 14-8 Yale victory, running for one touchdown and passing for the other. On defense, he contributed two key pass interceptions. He started to do the Army punting and his kicking prowess contributed to the 6-6 tie with Notre Dame. He also threw the TD pass in this one. Navy 1935 was his target as he passed for two scores in the 28-6 win.

His triple threat ability continued to show in 1936 and Monk Meyer, the 137-pound youngster from Pennsylvania became an Army grid great. Twenty-five years later, in the fall of 1961, Sports Illustrated gave him a Silver Anniversary award. He also captained the Army basketball team.

Little Monk, or maybe it should be Young Monk, was an Army brat, playing his schoolboy sports in Carlisle, Pa.; Frankfurt, Germany, and Junction City, Kas. He played halfback, end and tackle, in football, was a 14-foot pole vaulter and was a regular in basketball.

He's been called Charles by his friends, Bobby by his parents and now he's known as Monk at Army. They started him at end as a Plebe, then moved him to linebacker his sophomore year where he was "cannon fodder" for the varsity on the B team. He lettered as a linebacker last year, playing beside Townsend Clarke, Army's all-America candidate. His best performance was against Notre Dame, especially the way he guided the interior defense when Clarke was injured.

The senior Monk played in 25 Army games over the three-year period, 17 of them victories. Young Monk can only see action in 16 and his record going into the current season is an even 3-3 for the 1965 season. Both Meyers were in losses to Colgate. The General had a tie and a loss to Notre Dame while the youngsters' eleven lost to the Irish last fall. Against Navy, Charlie Sr. won one and lost two. Junior has yet to face the Middies. The father dropped one to Pitt while the son faces the Panthers for the first time this fall.

Little Monk wrote a stellar chapter into the Army grid history with a pair of small shoes. Big Monk can't put on the shoes, they're too small, but he could produce a sequel to the story of 30 years ago.

Big Jack Favored In Akron Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Practice rounds get under way Friday in the $77,500 fifth World Series of Golf at Akron's Firestone Country Club. Thirty-six holes of medal competition follow Saturday and Sunday.

Masters and British Open champ Jack Nicklaus seems to be the man to beat, judging from past performances on the par 70, 7,180-yard course. But Al Geiberger, a slim Californian, is expected to give Nicklaus a run for the $50,000 first-prize money.

Geiberger, who likes to fortify his game with peanut butter and jelly sandwiches he carries in his bag, has picked up $45,000 in prize money during his last two visits to Firestone.

It will be the fourth World Series for Nicklaus, who won the first and finished second to Gary Player last year. His five-under-par score of 135 in the 1962 inaugural still is the low total for the 36-hole event.

Geiberger, who will be playing his first series, started winning here just 13 months ago when he took the $20,000 first prize in the American Golf Classic. Last July, he added another $25,000 by winning the PGA tourney.

Rounding out the Big Four are U.S. Open champion Billy Casper, and Gene Littler, winner of the Canadian Open.

Chiefs Raise Exec.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Promotion of Jack Steadman to executive vice president and general manager of the Kansas City Chiefs' football club was announced today by Lamar Hunt, president of the American Football League team.

Hunt also announced that Steadman had been given a new three-year contract. He has been general manager of the Chiefs since Nov. 1, 1960, the year they entered the league.

CADDIES AND FORECADDIES have been named for the Thunderbird Classic golf exhibition Sunday, Sept. 11 at Dutchess Golf and Country Club. The match will feature PGA tour pros Doug Sanders and Dave Marr, 1965 PGA champion. Caddies, from the left: Bob Fritz, Mike Cummings, Fred Lux, Jr. and Rod Harris. Forecaddies are Charles Garvey and John Van Benschoten. The Childrens Home of Poughkeepsie will receive the proceeds of the event.

Stargell Fights Slump, Bucs Have 20 Games to Go

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "There's nothing wrong with Willie, he's only human," says Pirate Manager Harry Walker of Willie Stargell, currently fighting a batting slump.

Stargell's bat has been silent since last Thursday and Pittsburgh is beginning to feel it. They dropped their third straight Wednesday night as Atlanta romped over the Pirates 8-3. The setback cut their National League lead to a half-game over San Francisco, which edged Los Angeles 3-2 in 12 innings.

Stargell, the second half of Pittsburgh's one-two punch with Roberto Clemente, has watched his batting average skid from .330 last week to .313 — but he's optimistic.

"It's a funny thing, sometimes you go with a lot of hits and sometimes you don't," said the slugger in the Pirate dressing room after a one-for-four performance.

He went into Wednesday night's game with one hit in the last 26 times at bat. After flying out to Mack Jones in the first inning, he ended a 0-for-14 famine with a single to center. But in the fifth, with Clemente on second with a double, he was thrown out by Dennis Menke for the third out. Pitcher Ken Johnson got him on strikes in the eighth.

With 20 games to go, Stargell must get his form back if the Pirates are to win the pennant —and Walker knows it, but he's just as hopeful as Stargell.

"With so many games to play, you can't stay hot all the time," Walker says. "Once you get a little disturbed, you begin to fight it. It just takes a little while to get out of it."

Clark Graebner, Our Last Chance To Win Davis Cup

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The lonesomest man in the National Tennis Championships today—and perhaps the proudest — is the 24-year-old son of a Cleveland doctor, Clark Graebner.

He's the lone American in a batch of invaders — five Australians, a Spaniard and an Englishmen — who square off in men's quarter-final matches today and Friday.

"I'm glad I won, but, gee, I'm sorry our other guys had to lose," Graebner said after he had survived a two-hour duel with England's Graham Stilwell 9-11, 8-6, 6-3, 7-5.

The good-looking 6-footer, who for years has been labeled strictly a doubles player and is ranked only 13th nationally, now becomes a key man in the United States' plans for recovering the Davis Cup — a bleak prospect.

The nation's No. 1 player, Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., lost in straight sets to Australia's Fred Stolle 7-5, 6-3, 9-7. Marty Riessen, his longtime doubles mate from Evanston, Ill., yielded a tough one to two-time champion Roy Emerson of Australia, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3.

McKinley Loses

Chuck McKinley of Port Washington, N. Y., bowed to Wimbledon champion and the defender, Manuel Santana of Spain 9-7, 9-7, 8-6.

This is a big year for Graebner. He won the Pennsylvania championships at Merion and went to the final of the Eastern at Orange, N. J. He teamed with Ralston to defeat the Mexicans in the American Zone final at Cleveland 5-0.

Graebner's big moment comes Friday when he plays Stolle, Ralston's conqueror, in the quarter-finals. If he wins, he gets a shot at the Emerson-Owen Davidson winner, another Aussie test.

Two American girls — Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco — remain to challenge former champion Maria Bueno of Brazil in the women's division.

Colonial Band To Play Army's Michie Opener

WEST POINT, N. Y. — The Fife and Drum Corps from the 1st Battalion, 3rd Infantry ("The Old Guard") stationed at Ft. Myer, Va., will perform during half-time at the Army-Kansas State football game at Michie Stadium here on Saturday, Sept. 17.

Dressed in Revolutionary War period uniforms and playing replicas of 18th Century musical instruments, the U. S. Army's most unusual musical unit will bring a note of high color and colonial Americana to the half-time ceremonies.

Drill revolutions of the Fife and Drum Corps are the same ones prescribed for the Continental Army by Baron Von Steuben, the Prussian ofifcer who drafted the first set of regulations for General Washington's Army at Valley Forge in the winter of 1777-78.

The Old Guard Fife and Drum Crops is a prominent feature at Washington ceremonies and such special events as the Cherry Blossom Festival and Inaugural Parades.

Birds, Giants, Bucs, Bums Get WS Tix Go Ahead

NEW YORK (AP)—Four major league teams had the green light today to print tickets for the World Series, which, barring a playoff, will open in a National League city Wednesday, Oct. 5.

Commissioner William Eckert said Wednesday he had authorized American League-leading Baltimore and the three top National League contenders—Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and San Francisco—to print 1966 Series tickets.

In the past, when teams located as close together as Baltimore and Pittsburgh played in the Series, there were no open dates.

However, Eckert said this year there will be a day off for travel "for the convenience of the players, as well as the fans, regardless of the teams or the cities involved."

He also said that in the event of a playoff there would be an open date between the end of the playoff and the start of the Series.

In case of a best-of-3 playoff, it would start the day after the regular season ends.

The series would move to the American League city Saturday, Oct. 8, Sunday, Oct. 9 and Monday, Oct. 10, if necessary. If it goes beyond that point, play would resume in the National League city Wednesday, Oct. 12, and continue Thursday, Oct. 13, if necessary.

Winners Named In Kicking Match

In the 12-years-and-under division, Jay Ackert was first and Dennis Harrison finished second. In the 13-15 age bracket, Steve Longendyke captured top honors and Dave Post was second. Arthus Davis Jr. won the 16-18 honors.

Winners in each division were awarded two season passes to the New York Jets football games. Second place finishers received football helmets and jerseys.

Omaha King's Win in Juvenile Boosts Bid for 2-Year Honors

MONTICELLO — The king reigned supreme here at Monticello Raceway and shouts of "Long Live the King" could be heard throughout the grandstand. The king, in this case, is King Omaha and he reigned supreme by winning last night's featured fourth race, the $15,000 Juvenile Education Program final for freshman pacing colts.

Those doing the shouting included practically every fan at the track. They were happy because they had backed him down a solid 4-5 favorite in spite of his outside eight position and he had won like all 4-5 shots are supposed to — easily and without giving his supporters too many moments of doubt.

Owned by Lou and Isadore Singer of Danbury, Conn., King Omaha was given a masterful and confident drive by Bobby Camper. He experienced a few anxious seconds before getting to the front at the quarter but from there, the pickings were easy.

As the gate left, Clint Galbraith hustled Niagara Ace to the top. Camper found himself three wide in the first turn but went on after the lead and got it at the quarter in 30 seconds flat.

Bob kept the big son of Duane Hanover - April Counsel moving to the half in 1:01.4 but was able to get a little breather the third quarter. Reaching that station in 1:38.4, it was even money from there that the king would get home a winner.

With a final quarter in 31 seconds, he was able to hold off Niagara Ace's stretch by three-quarters of a length as Dream Pick recovered from an early break and came on for third.

The victory undoubtedly clinched two-year-old pacer of the year honors for King Omaha. This was his seventh triumph here at the Mighty M and his ninth overall. His $7,500 share of the $15,000 purse boosted his seasonal earnings to $32,442.

In posting the win, King Omaha returned $3.60, $2.80 and $2.20 across the board.

The 5 and 2 daily double returned $40.60. Winning horses were Flashy Filly in the first and Maynard's Own in the second.

The twin double returned $19,009.40. Winning combination was 1-6-4-6 and there was one lucky ticket holder.

A crowd of 2,824 was on hand to wager $195,381.

Farrington Tops Harness Racers

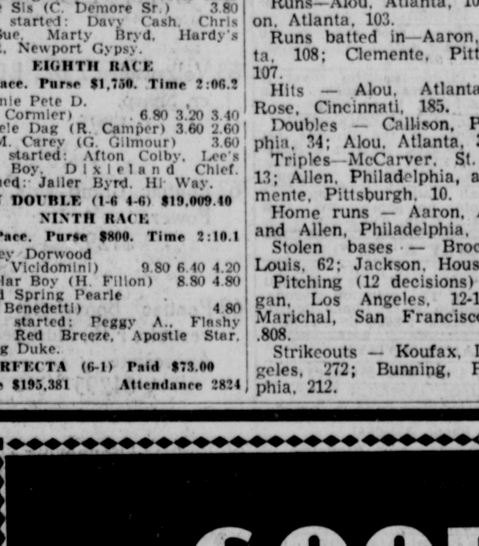

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Farrington of Richwood, Ohio, who holds the harness racing record of 312 winners in 1964, topped the 200 mark in winners this year for the fifth time in six years, U.S. Trotting Association figures showed Wednesday. Only Farrington has won 200 races in a year more than once.

Stanley Dancer of New Egypt, N.J., who had 133 victories, topped the money winning list with $840,501.

SPACIOUSNESS

PROXIMITY

This Colonial stone in nearby Old Hurley has been the ideal environment for rearing 4 children, all of which are now away in college. It is ready to provide to another family coming along the ideal "Homestead" for their formative years which will remain a fond and close recollection for the rest of their lives. The residence with its 18" stone walls was built in 1789. All the Colonial charm has been retained in spite of its luxury 2½ baths, modern kitchen, etc. Our children tended to move from the second story bedrms. to the relatively secluded finished rms. of the third floor which provided the privacy so desirable as they became teenagers. Situated on a lovely full acre with trees, lawns, etc., play apt. and 4 horse stalls in main barn, adjacent small stone building with studio, this irreplacable heritage of America with all modern conveniences is only $42,000.

Education Conference

On Saturday, Sept. 10 I am sponsoring an Educational Conference at the Paughkeepsie City High School. This conference is the third of a series which have been conducted in the past year. The first, which focused on Community Development was held in March and the second focusing on Business Development, was held in June. At Saturday's conference representatives from both Federal and State education agencies will discuss the various programs through which federal aid is made available to local educational agencies.

Long Tradition Here

America has a long tradition of aid to education beginning with the land grant colleges established by our founding fathers. While the major responsibility for public financing of education has rested traditionally with local governments, the State and the Federal government have increased their contribution. Today the Federal government provides about 11.5 per cent. The rest is provided by private expenditure by institutions, organizations, and individuals. As our society becomes increasingly more technical the demands upon our educational system increase correspondingly.

In terms of dollars activities in the field of education are startling. Expenditures on education constitute a significant part of our gross national product — approximately 5 per cent. Moreover, they are growing rapidly. Direct expenditures for formal education in elementary schools, high schools and colleges increased from approximately $18 billion a year in 1955 to a current level close to $40 billion. By 1975 these outlays are expected to increase by another 50 per cent, reaching $60 billion a year. While accountants refer to this as an expenditure I prefer to call it an investment in our children and the nation's future.

Our nation has long recognized the great importance of universal education and rapid technological advance both to the health of our free political institutions and to the prosperity and growth of our economy.

Concern Continues

All children white as well as black, "advantaged" as well as "disadvantaged" can and indeed must learn vastly more than they are now being taught. Furthermore, when our children cease to be children we still have to be concerned with educating them because unlike our forefathers who had one job for a lifetime contemporary and future Americans will have several jobs. Education does not end at the high school graduation or even the college graduation but is a continuing process.

Recognition of this need has resulted in the passage of a wide-range of new State and Federal educational programs covering a fantastic number of fields. There are programs for the physically or culturally handicapped, the pre-schooler, dropouts, for the mentally retarded, the speciallytalented, for additional public library services to serve the 15 million Americans who are now without them, for adults who need training for a new job and for construction of the facilities needed to take care of the 9 million college students we will have by 1975.

As one can imagine the variety of programs now available can be very confusing. So in order to assist the educators of the 28th District in understanding what programs are available and how they may apply I have invited representatives from the State and Federal agencies to outline their programs and to be available for individual consultation with the 1100 educational leaders who have been invited.

Participants Listed

The Federal participants will be: Mrs. Irma Grey, National Foundation for the Arts and Humanities; George Nicolau, Deputy Director Northeastern Regional Office, Office of Economic Opportunity; James Moore, director, Student Financial Aid; Allen A. Schneider, acting chief, Social Science Institute Branch, Division of Educational Personnel Training, Bureau of Elementary and Secondary Education; David Bushnell, director, Division of Adult and Vocational Research, Bureau of Research; Guy Smith, Legislative Assistant, Office of Legislation; Miss Arlene Hope, Library Extension Service; Milbrey Jones, program specialist, School of Library Services, State participants will include: Carl E. Wedekind, Director of Research, Office of the Associate Commissioner for Research and Evaluation, State Education Department; Herbert F. Johnson, Associate Commissioner for Educational Finance and management; Mrs. Ester Swanker, Title III Administration, Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The guest speaker will be Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the President's Council on the Arts and Humanities. In addition to his responsibilities on the President's Council Mr. Stevens also serves as Chairman of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

I expect that Saturday's conference will be an interesting and exciting day for all of the participants. For my own part I have always considered education to be the greatest challenge facing our future generation and I am proud to be sponsoring this conference.

FORCED LANDING—Thomas A. Beltz, (right) 14 of Leghton, Pa., who flew from his home in a 350-pound Schweitzer glider, made a forced landing this week in a field opposite the home of Armand Decker, physics teacher at Rondout Valley Central High School. Decker is at left. The youth was forced down due to the lack of thermal air needed to carry him home again. The glider was towed back by his father, an Eastern Airlines pilot. The youth is in the 10th Grade at Lehighton High School and had previously soloed for seven hours. He is a member of the Dutchmen Soaring Club, Kitztown, Pa. (Freeman photo by Wagenfohr).

Rochester Town Studies Relief Of Tax on Aged

Tax relief for the elderly and the purchase of land for a parking area were principal topics discussed at last week's Rochester Town Board meeting in Accord.

Further discussion was held on the possibility of the town purchasing a small portion of land in Accord for use as a parking area.

Irving Buckner, representing the O & W Lines, owner of the land, was present and explained that his company is interested in selling the entire parcel, and not a small portion. Board members agreed to table the matter.

Bids previously received, for supplying bridge material to the town, were discussed. It was agreed by board members that the bid be readvertised due to insufficient interest of bidders. After publication of the first notice to bidders only two bids were received.

The Town Board, in studying the possibility of enacting a local law granting a 50 per cent tax exemption on real property to persons 65-years-old or over, reported that 32 residents have filed their names as being qualified. Before a town may enact such a local law a public hearing must be held.

The following persons were approved to serve as Democratic inspectors of election of the Town of Rochester, for the year July, 1966 to July, 1967:

District 1: Essie Ford, Eva Reimer, Accord.

District 2: Angela Pellicane, Accord; Amelia Gaydos, Kerhonkson.

District 3: Grace Keator, Accord; Philomenia Beesimer, Kerhonkson.

Further discussion was held on the redistricting of the Election Districts boundaries, necessary due to the requirements of Permanent Personal Registration which will go into effect next year.

All town constables will be fingerprinted by the Sheriff's Department on Sept. 28 at 8 p. m., at the First Municipal Building in Pataukunk. It is requested that all constables of the Town of Rochester appear for such fingerprinting.

Kingston Rotary Hears Bob Richards' Message

"Life's Higher Goals," a General Mills film production featuring Bob Richards, now a clergyman, who was an Olympic star and three times U.S. Decathlon Champion, was enjoyed by members of Kingston Rotary Club at its luncheon-meeting Wednesday.

In a forceful message, the narrator brought out the analogy of the sport world and the struggle for life in reaching higher and lasting accomplishments.

Minimum Wage Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has sent to the Senate for final congressional action legislation that would set the minimum wage at $1.40 an hour by next Feb. 1 and $1.60 an hour by Feb. 1, 1968.

The bill, passed Wednesday by a 259-89 vote, also would extend coverage to 8 million more workers, including for the first time farm workers, employes of restaurants, laundries, hotels, motels and hospitals and tipped employes.

The present minimum wage for the 30 million workers now covered is $1.25 an hour.

Former Troopers Slate Meeting At Gov. Clinton

The Association of Former New York State Troopers will hold its quarterly meeting in order to nominate officers for 1967 at the Gov. Clinton Hotel Sept. 17.

Luncheon will be held at 1 p. m., preceding the meeting. This meeting will be of special significance since a speaker from the Social Security Office, Kingston, will explain Medicare and numerous amendments to the Social Security Law regarding life, accident, health insurance and various survivor benefits. Because of the meeting site, good representation is expected from downstate Chapters.

It is stressed that all former Troopers, whether Association members or not, are cordially welcome and urged to attend.

Among other important business will be discussion of a plaque to be placed under the portrait of Col. George Chandler in the lobby of State Police Headquarters. Also, with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the State Troopers rapidly approaching, a resume of the planning of ceremonies will be reviewed.

Reds Fail Anew in Channel

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong made another unsuccessful attempt to block the main shipping channel to Saigon today, exploding a mine near a U.S. Navy minesweeper. It went off harmlessly 40 yards away.

Probe Costly Fire

U.S. officials sought to determine whether Communist saboteurs or a short circuit caused a million-dollar fire that destroyed an American military warehouse and damaged another near Saigon before dawn.

Grenade attacks, assassinations and other violence were on the rise as the Communists increased their terrorist attempt to disrupt the national election Sunday.

U.S. miliary authorities said there were only small, scattered actions in the ground war, but Vietnamese headquarters said two battalions of government infantrymen battled off two battalions of Viet Cong and killed 30 Reds. There was no letup in the U.S. air offensive against North Viet Nam. American fighter-bombers flew 122 multiplane missions against the Communist North Wednesday, striking oil depots, bridges, missile sites and transportation lines.

In the South, U.S. B52s bombed an area 40 miles north of Saigon where the Viet Cong Phu Loi battalion was believed based. The veteran enemy unit engaged the U.S. 1st Infantry Division in a bloody battle last month.

Pilots Are Busy

Other American pilots flew 379 single-plane sorties in the South Wednesday, and the U.S. command said they destroyed or damaged more than 300 suspected Communist structures, hideouts and sampans. South Vietnamese airmen flew 317 sorties.

Air Force pilots reported destroying a surface-to-air missile site 35 miles northwest of Vinh and damaging two more elsewhere. Navy pilots had reported knocking out a missile site near Vinh a day before.

U.S. fliers also claimed destroying or damaging 22 bridges, 58 cargo barges, nine antiaircraft gun positions, 36 trucks and four oil storage depots Wednesday.

The U.S. command reported the Viet Cong tried to mine the 57-foot minesweeper 17 miles southeast of Saigon. A spokesman said there were no casualties to the crew nor any damage to the ship.

Second Try in Weeks

It was the second attempt in two weeks to sink a U.S. minesweeper and the fourth incident in the shipping lane since Aug. 23, when a mine ripped through the U.S. cargo ship Baton Rouge Victory and killed seven American crewmen. On Aug. 28, a Viet Cong mine sank a Vietnamese navy minesweeper.

Violence Continues

At least five persons were killed and more than a score injured in Viet Cong attacks aimed at frightening off as many as possible of South Viet Nam's five million voters. Among the widespread violence was the assassination of a government security agent, his wife and three children southwest of Saigon and burning 50 dwellings in a refugee hamlet 340 miles from the capital.

Grenade attacks also continued in and around Saigon. Police offered rewards up to a million piasters — $8,475 — for killing or capturing any Communist in an act of election terrorism.

The U.S. Command announced that American forces in Viet Nam totaled 305,400 men last Saturday, but this does not include 3,000 arrivals since then from the 4,500-man 11th Armored Regiment, which completes debarkation by Sunday.

American headquarters also announced the termination of Operation Toledo, a sweep of the swamplands 40 miles southeast of Saigon by U.S., Vietnamese and Australian forces begun Aug. 10. The allies killed 11 Viet Cong, captured 10 and destroyed 170 hits, 202 bunkers and 11 tunnels, while sustaining light casualties, a spokesman said.

The congressman also extended a most cordial invitation to boat owners, public officials and other interested persons all along the route of the survey team's cruise tour and motorcade to come out and ask questions and discuss the entire subject at length with agency heads. He extended a similar invitation to the meeting at the Kingston Power Boat Association.

ROBERT B. CARRS

To Speak at Data Process Meeting

Robert B. Carrs, audit manager with Price Waterhouse & Company in New York, will be the guest speaker at the September meeting of the Hudson Valley Chapter of the Data Processing Management Association. The dinner meeting will be held at Talbot's Inn, Pleasant Valley at 7:15 p. m. Tuesday, Sept. 13.

Carrs, a graduate of New York University, has been involved with a number of companies having extensive Electronic Data Processing systems. He has been a speaker to numerous groups on various aspects of the relationship of data processing and auditing; most recently at the Edison Electric Institute, American Gas Association National Conference of Electric and Gas Utility accountants.

efeller are both committed to changing the system to a direct primary. That will give everybody a chance and you won't have to be a millionaire to run for the nomination."

The defeated candidate said he had no regrets. But, he was asked, had he known six months ago what he knew last night, would he do it over again?

"I can't answer that," he said. "But I will not be a candidate again.

Held Out for Another

"I was holding out for another candidate to come into the picture but none came," Samuels said. "I visited the Nassau and New York County delegations to talk with the delegates but there was no real hope. At five o'clock I knew it was over but the delegates committed to me, the little guys, the kids and my staff wanted me to continue fighting right into the convention. I'm glad I did."

Samuels' wife and eight children were staging a demonstration at the auditorium along with several hundred others, mostly teen-agers, as he went over his notes.

"Were we good, were we as good as O'Connor?" Samuels asked.

"We were great," Auletta said, his eyes moist. He poured two soft drinks, for himself and Samuels.

Samuels smoothed his long grey hair. His deeply-shadowed eyes looked sad. "I think we ought to go to the convention," he said. "I don't want to be late."

Great Inner Feeling

In the short ride to the convention hall, Samuels pondered:

"You know, for the first time in this six-month campaign, I had tears in my eyes this afternoon when those lelegates asked me to keep fighting. It was a great inner feeling to know that some people really had faith in me and would go all the way in the face of an obvious defeat."

Samuels was driven to the rear of the convention hall. There were no crowds to greet him. He walked into an empty caucus room and went over his brief speech.

It took Samuels 90 minutes to write his speech. It would have taken him less than 90 seconds to deliver it if he wasn't interruped by shouts of "We want Howie" from his dwindling list of supporters.

"It's not easy for us as a family to accept defeat," he told the overwhelmingly pro-O'Connor convention. Then he called for a unanimous nomination.

Samuels, within seconds, was lost in the crowd of professional politicians that jammed the platform. Minutes later the cheers were for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Frank D. O'Connor.

Resigns Planning

these members and of Supervisor Majestic has resulted in their domination of the board since February. Although Supervisor Majestic is not even a member of the Industrial Development Committee of the Board of Supervisors, to which committee the Planning Board is supposed to report, he seldom misses a meeting of the Planning Board, and at such meetings, members, who are either naive or politically motivated, invite him to speak.

Assails Majestic

"A little over a year ago I learned that Galeville Airport would no longer be used by the Signal Corps of the First Army and might again become surplus, and I asked for and received permission of the Board of Supervisors to apply for its return to Ulster County for development as an industrial park. Supervisor Majestic "stole the bail" and gained a great amount of personal publicity out of advocating its use by the Atomic Energy Commission. When finally cornered, it was proved that neither he nor anyone else had put in a formal application to the Atomic Energy Commission for consideration of the Galeville Airport as the site for the contemplated unit, but by that time Supervisor Majestic had gained all the personal publicity out of it that he could and he couldn't care less.

"This spring it was learned that federal funds would be available for local governmental units for additions or improvements to local water and sewer district facilities, which would be in conformity with an overall plan for the county, and that such a county plan must be started by late 1968. Supervisors Penney and Barthel submitted the non-partisan resolution No. 64 to the Board of Supervisors, indicating the intention of the county to have such a plan prepared and authorizing the Planning Board to apply for federal or state aid for the preparation of such a plan.

"This resolution was passed unanimously by the Board of Supervisors and the Planning Board proceeded to study the state and federal programs to see which would be most beneficial to the county.

"Supervisor Majestic was not content with this. He hadn't received any personal publicity out of it. The result was that at the June meeting of the Board of Supervisors he submitted a resolution which would have created a county sewer commission to make such a study. I appeared at this meeting, requested the privilege of the floor and spoke against the resolution. As a result, the resolution was defeated unanimously with even Supervisor Majestic voting against his own resolution. Apparently, he later regretted his vote because he resubmitted the same resolution at the August meeting of the Board of Supervisors, where it was defeated by a straight party line vote of 21 to 12. However, he had accomplished his purpose, which was simply to get personal publicity out of it The idea of a county sewer commission was not his original idea. He freely admits that Orange County created such a commission and he got the idea there. What he doesn't admit is that Orange County created its commission after the Ulster County Board of Supervisors passed its resolution No. 64, authorizing the Planning Board to do this work for Ulster County.

Final Straw

"The final straw which has broken this camel's back has been Supervisor Majestic's harassment on the Intermunicipal Water Supply Study. This study was started by the Planning Board, and the contract was, I have been given to understand, the first such contract signed by the state, although Orange County had applied for such a study a year earlier.

"This study has been making good progress, and is, in my humble opinion, the most important thing the Planning Board has undertaken. If the Planning Board can provide a plan for supplying all the water needs of the county in the forseeable future, it will have justified the confidence placed in it by the Board of Supervisors and the money spent on its budget during the past three years of its existence. The Water Resources Committee of the Planning Board has been outstanding in its cooperation and the willingness of its members to devote time and effort to making this most important study.

Cites Harassment

"Despite this, Supervisor Majestic has continually harassed and hampered its efforts and his latest such act to attend the August meeting of the Planning Board and to claim, among other wild claims, that he had talked with Mr. Leary of the State Health Department and had been assured by Mr. Leary that the Board of Supervisors and the Planning Board had the authority to and could direct where the test wells under this study are to be drilled.

"Among other claims at this meeting, Supervisor Majestic stated that he was as competent to designate where the test wells are to be drilled as anyone, and that it was foolish to spend any amount on trained geologists for this purpose.

"Supervisor Majestic appears to be supremely confident that he knows everything. He is continually pointing the finger at others to divert attention from his own shortcomings. I have yet to learn of an original idea of his own."

"Because of his continual attendance at Planning Board meetings, his harassment of the Planning Board for what I consider strictly personal political purposes, I can no longer enjoy membership on the board and must resign."

Prior to the vote, the Rochester dean said he still was an enrolled Republican and planned to remain in the GOP.

Later, when told that the Liberals planned to select Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. as their candidate for governor, Adams said:

"I think everyone expected it. I can't see that it will make any difference to our campaign. But there's no doubt he'll pull some sentimental votes."

The Conservatives, a four-year-old party initially created to draw conservative Republican support from Gov. Rockefeller, must outpoll the Liberal party to gain Row C, the third row, on the ballot.

In its 1,500-word platform, the party called for repeal of the state sales tax, the New York City payroll and income taxes and the state's medical-aid law.

In a keynote speech today, the party chairman J. Daniel Mahoney of New York City, attacked the state's tax laws.

"We are going to spell out the fact that New York State taxpayers are more heavily taxed than any other taxpayers in the United States."

At the same time, he drew aim on State Education Commissioner James E. Allen's plans for achieving racial balance in the public schools.

He said Allen "must be stripped of the power to treat the public schools of New York State as so many laboratories for social experiments by Albany's bureaucrats."

A committee was appointed to investigate renovation of the town hall and improvement to the community building at Maple Hill. Supervisor DeFilicis, Councilman Karl Strobel and Town Attorney Raymond LeFever will comprise the committee.

In other business, the board noted that metal street signs and posts have been installed in the High Falls area, completing the program of all metal poles throughout the town. New school crossing signs were installed in the area of Tillson School.

James Warnot of High Falls was appointed a town constable.

New Paltz today is recognized as a pioneer among public colleges in providing non-Western studies for all students and in encouraging other colleges, both in and outside New York State, to build on its experience.

An article in Saturday Review three weeks ago cited New Paltz, along with Dartmouth, Antioch, Earlham College, and the State College of Iowa, for their initiative in extending undergraduate studies "beyond the confines of the Western World." The New Paltz program, particularly in Asian-African studies, is accepted in academic circles as one of the finest in the nation.

Dr. Haggerty has been an officer of a number of important national and international educational commissions and committees. He has served as president of American Overseas Educators Organization and of World Education, Inc., and is currently the president of the International Council on Education for Teaching.

The New Paltz president has seen the institution grow in population as well as in its academic status. In 1944, when he assumed office, the college had a student body of 357. Today its students number over 3000 and the student-faculty population will grow to over 5000 in the next four years.

Its faculty, under policies initiated by Dr. Haggerty, has been drawn from scholars especially experienced in study and work in foreign countries. Over a third of today's faculty has served outside the United States in various educational and administrative posts, and their average overseas experience, including foreign faculty members, amounts to over nine years each.

In the past six years alone, the college has quadrupled its course offerings in Asian-African studies to a total of over half a hundred courses. Course work in Latin America and Eastern and Western Europe has tripled to nearly 100 offerings, and other international studies and related subjects have grown from four-to-five fold.

During the same six year period, biological and physical science courses have increased from 21 to over 80, mathematics from 10 to 86 and foreign languages to 125 from the 21 offered in 1960.

Similar magnitudes of growth have taken place in history, political economy, and the behavioral sciences, as well as the art education curriculum, a New Paltz specialty.

Remarking on the college's role in the liberal arts field, Dr. Haggerty said, "The years I have been at New Paltz have been a period of rapid growth in the size of the college and in the expansion of its program as a multi-purpose institution. Its capability for service to the region should grow rapidly as the present expansion of facilities is completed.

"I feel a great sense of appreciation to my many colleagues on the staff who are working unceasingly to make New Paltz an institution of excellent quality. The progress made at New Paltz could not have occurred without them and without the hearty support of the officials in Albany, the Legislature, and the people of the Hudson Valley area."

Dr. and Mrs. Haggerty have not decided where they will make their new home, but presumably it will be in the New York area.

Also proposed is that no left turns be permitted from Albany into Clinton Avenue, from Clinton into Albany Avenue, Pearl Street into Clinton Avenue and Clinton Avenue into Pearl Street.

Another measure in the traffic committee report dealt with restricting parking on a section of Hasbrouck Avenue.

Alderman William G. Davis (D-Lib) 13th Ward felt that the aldermen should have been permitted to vote separately on the various proposals and when they came to vote as submitted in the report they were disapproved by a 7-6 vote. Davis is a member of the council's Traffic Control Committee.

A. O. Smith Affected By Downturn in Auto Sales

Q—" Ihave $9,000 invested in a mutual fund; adequate savings and comfortable income; I hold 100 E. F. MacDonald at 10½ and 100 A. O. Smith at 28½. With tight money, the war and inflation confronting us, should I take a loss in order to move my funds into bonds?" W. W., C. K.

A—A. O. Smith is so closely identified with the automotive industry—General Motors is the automotive division's largest customer—that a decline in car production is quickly felt and reflected in the price of SMC shares. A further drag on sales naturally followed the transfer of the welding products business to new owners and the decision to discontinue manufacturing private label water heaters. The slack should gradually be taken up by anticipated growth in the air conditioner market which uses A. O. Smith motors and by promising developments in other divisions.

Hold these shares for recovery, but readers who are overinvested might find faster growth elsewhere. Your mutual fund should not be disturbed but the mixed activities of MacDonald are difficult to evaluate in terms of genuine growth. I would shift from that investment into a more closely integrated growth stock.

Q—"What do you think of mortgage investments? I have $10,000 lying in the bank which I would like to see earning all it can. What rate of interest would I receive on a mortgage contract?" G. H.

A—You are right in wanting to put your money to work at the maximum rate of return consistent with preservation of principal. This seems to be a profitable time to negotiate a mortgage loan, if you keep in mind that such a loan usually locks in your funds for a considerable period of time. The interest rate will depend on supply and demand conditions in your local area. However, funds are scarce and rates are high even on prime risks. I know that the national average on non-Federally backed loans has risen above six per cent.

At Wednesday's afternoon and evening sessions, the delegates appeared cheeful but rarely enthusiastic. The decisions on candidates had been made and the platform stirred no noticeable interest.

The nomination of the delegate-at-large slate for the Constitutional Convention likewise failed to excite much attention.

Dewey Given Salute

The bunting - and - balloon - decked convention hall came alive with applause briefly, however, when former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey spoke.

The three-term governor and two - time presidential aspirant received a standing ovation when he took the rostrum to denounce so-called bossism among Democrats.

Tanned and beaming broadly, the 63 - year - old Dewey drew cheers when he predicted relection of Rockefeller

As Rockefeller prepared to to take up his party's standard formally for the third time since 1958, observers continued to speculate on the governor's future plans.

Although he has declared repeatedly his complete lack of interest in making another bid for the presidency, speculation persisted that if he continues as governor of New York State, he could not be completely counted out as a White House hopeful.

As recently as Tuesday night, Rockefeller continued to cast himself in the role of underdog in the gubernatorial battle.

And he has asserted publicly — though many observers disagree - that the Liberal party's independent stance will have no bearing on the outcome of the election.

Among the pledges were proposals to seek a lowering of the legal voting age from 21 to 18 and a direct primary election for statewide offices.

Rockefeller vetoed last year a Democratic bill calling for a statewide primary in what Democrats termed a politically inspired move to protect his bid for a third term.

This year, Rockefeller has said he would favor some form of statewide primary.

the forthcoming retirement of Mrs. Martin said:

"The thousands of Girl Scouts and the hundreds of adult volunteers that have come in contact with "Marty" during the seven years she has served our council will all be a little bit richer for having had contact with such a dedicated and loyal person.

"She will be sincerely missed by all of us who have been trained in our volunteer roles by her and by all of us who have relied on her vast knowledge of the Girl Scout movement in helping us do our job."

In addition to professional training Mrs. Martin has had training in every phase of scouting, administrative and functional. During her 19 years in Girl Scouting she has held many volunteer jobs and as district chairman and member of the board, was responsible for organizing Girl Scouting in the Saugerties Neighborhood.

She has been active in church work, the Woodstock Library Fair, a member of BPW Association of Girl Scout Professional Workers, and American Camping Association. Locally she has been a member of the technical advisory Committee of the Community Action Committee, past vice president of Ulster County Council of Social Agencies, and former chairman of Professional Advisory Committee of the Community Chest.

Awarded Thanks Badge

Fifteen years ago Mrs. Martin and her husband, Kenneth E. Martin, who has also been active in Girl Scouting for many years were awarded the Thanks Badge most significant award in Girl Scouting, offered only for outstanding service beyond that required by the positions held.

She has one daughter, Mrs. J. Wilcox Mellin, and two grandsons. Her husband is a department manager for Montgomery Ward.

Upon her retirement Mrs. Martin whose immediate plans include a vacation to the New England States said, "My years in Girl Scouting have been a real challenge — the contacts I have made, the wonderful volunteers in Scouting with whom I have worked personally enriched my life. I feel that the opportunity to work for the youth of the community is important and most rewarding and I will always remain deeply interested."

Accuse L. I. Man On Ticket Cashing At Race Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — A Great Neck, N.Y. man has been accused by federal authorities of operating a $1.3 million ticket cashing service for bettors at New York, New Jersey and Florida race tracks.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Raymond Grunewalk said John Edgar "The Fat Man" Oppenheim, 31, received about $200,000 in fees from the legal owners of 110 winning pari-mutuel tickets worth $1.3 million.

At Oppenheim's arraignment Wednesday in Brooklyn Federal Court, Grunewald said the owners of the tickets sought the service to avoid paying income taxes on their winnings. As front man, he said, Oppenheim was given from two to ten per cent of the ticket value.

Oppenheim operated at Roosevelt and Yonkers Raceways in New York, at the Freehold, N.J. harness track and at tracks in Florida, the government attorney said.

Oppenheim was specifically charged with defrauding the government by filing false statements on Internal Revenue Service forms. The forms are completed at race tracks by owners of winning tickets of over $600.

Debates Possible, Is Rocky View

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller said today he foresaw the possibility of debates with Democrat Frank D. O'Connor and other gubernatorial aspirants during this year's election campaign.

Questioned at an impromtu news conference, the Republican governor, who will be renominated tonight, said.

"I envision a confrontation where these things (campaign issues) will be discussed."

Rockefeller recalled that he had participated in a face-to-face discussion of campaign issues in 1958 with the then governor, Democrat W. Averill Harriman, and other candidates.

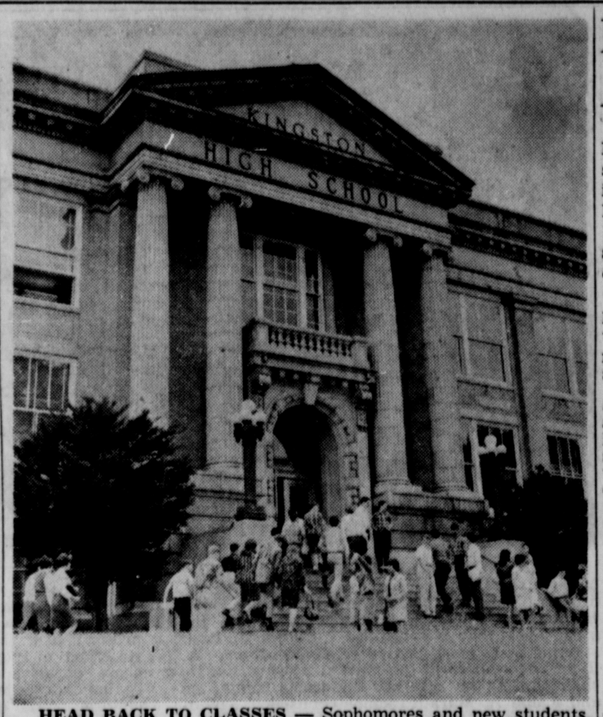

Asked to evaluate a report by the Liberal party chairman, Alex Rose, that a recent poll had indicated O'Connor would defeat the governor by 600,000 votes, the governor noted that he, Rockefeller, had cast himself in the role of an underdog as the camaign began.

The governor said, however, that the poll could be misleading.

He said he had no idea how the poll was taken, what persons were polled or how questions were phrased.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—In 20 seconds Wednesday, the Republican State Convention adopted a 3,500-word platform that took 29 minutes to read.

Key points in the platform point with pride to Gov. Rockefeller's record, pledge a direct primary for statewide office and call for lowering the voting age to 18.

Only about half of the 1,417 delegates appeared for the platform reading, and most appeared not to be listening.

Highlights of the platform also included promises to:

— Carry through the state Pure Waters program and seek an end to water pollution through New York State in six years.

Morgenthau Forgotten

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Robert M. Morgenthau, whom the Democrats nominated for governor only four years ago, walked the state convention floors today, unnoticed, unremembered and unheeded.

Despite political custom that dictates at least a token appearance by the most recent nominee Morgenthau was not accorded any role in the convention.

Resnick Answers Charges; Asks Concern With Issues

"Sooner or later Hamilton Fish Jr. will have to learn that sneers are no substitutes for issues," Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick said today.

The congressman made his statement in an angry retort to charges made by Fish, yesterday. "Some people dip their pens in acid. Some dip theirs in venom. Mr. Fish seems to prefer mud," Congressman Resnick said.

"I was more disturbed than angered that a man running for a seat in Congress should base his campaign on such charges—some wild, some foolish, some untrue and all irresponsible. Of course the reason for these tactics is obvious. In the absence of issues, he hides his own incompetency behind a barrage of name-calling. I was under the impression that Mr. Fish was above such nasty vicious attacks. Obviously, I was mistaken. We now begin to see his other face."

Discusses Statement

Overcoming his initial inclination to simply ignore the charges, Congressman Resnick decided to issue the following point by point refutation:

"Mr. Fish accuses me of being a liberal I don't know when this became a dirty word. If voting for Medicare, aid to education and medicine more housing, sensible immigration laws, higher minimum wages, and the many other Great Society programs makes me a liberal, I plead guilty—and I am proud of it. I am sure that the people of this area must thank their lucky stars that Mr. Fish was not down in Washington trying to turn back the clock these last two years.

"On another issue, Mr. Fish is two years behind the times in discussing the relation between Channel Master Corporation and labor unions. These baseless charges were rejected by voters in the last election. At that time I made it abundantly clear that it was Joe Resnick—not his factory or his brothers — that was running for election. If Mr. Fish insists on bringing my family into this campaign, he will leave me no choice but to do likewise with him. I would rather not disturb the skeletons in his family closet.

"Mr. Fish accuses me of using the government frank for campaign publicity mailing. I challenge him to produce evidence to back up this outrageous lie.

Cites Pet Bill

Probably the most foolish thing he has done is to question my contribution to the Pet Protection Bill. My work in creating this bill has been acknowledged by everyone from President Johnson to Drew Pearson and the Humane Society of the United States. Everyone who reads the newspaper or hears the radio knows this bill originated with an incident in Ulster County July 4 weekend in 1965. But what really disturbs me most is that with the world in turmoil, with war in Viet Nam, with high interest rates creating pressures in the economy, with a world food shortage developing — with all these great problems to discuss, Hamilton Fish huffs and puffs, and brings forth a mouse. When will he begin discussing the real issues?"

Rainfall Heaviest Of Summer, But Slim Help to Lake

September, which last year poured 6.27 inches of rain in the watershed area feeding Cooper Lake ,the city's main reservoir, began this year as though it means business again.

Last weekend brought the heaviest rains of the summer, leaving 3.12 inches to produce slight intake in reservoir storage which had gained nothing from earlier summer rains and benefited little from below-average spring rains.

It is now 6.1 feet below spillway level or about 78 per cent of storage capacity. It had gone down near that point last summer, but substantial August and September rains took up the slack.

Edmund T. Cloonan, water department superintendent, noted that last weekend's rain contributed more than all of August. July and August together, in fact, had contributed only 4.21 inches to the watershed.

Cloonan said the recent rain of two days was the heaviest for a similar period since the 1960 downpour, which lashed the area as an aftermath of a hurricane.

Issued Summons After Car Hits Tillson Store

Harry Snow, 46, of New Paltz, was issued a summons for following too close after his car had struck another vehicle on Route 32 at Tillson early this morning and then struck the building of George M. McEvoy which houses a store and post office. He will appear before Justice of the Peace Daniel McMonagle later.

It was reported considerable damage was done to the exterior of the building and inside the store merchandise was knocked from the shelves and damaged.

State Police at Lake Katrine reported that the Snow car was traveling south at about 12:30 a. m. today on Route 32. John H. Rowe, 18, of Tillson attempted a left turn and his car was struck by the Snow car in the rear. The Snow car pulled to the left and struck the building.

Injured and taken to Benedictine Hospital was Rowe, operator of one of the cars, who suffered injuries to his forehead. Also taken to the Benedictine Hospital suffering from a laceration of the right hip was Jeanette Snow, 31, a passenger in the Snow car.
